Firemen rush victim to ambulance. He died

Activist Wins Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — In a landmark decision, the Federal Court of Canada dismissed today an appeal by United States authorities for the extradition of Puerto Rican activist Humberto Pagan.

The appeal marked the first time in Canada a state has appealed a decision refusing extradition.

Pagan, 22, faces a murder charge in Puerto Rico in connection with the death of a police captain, killed during a student demonstration.

Last year, County Court Judge A. E. Honeywell ruled against an extradition appeal by U.S. authorities, saying there was no factual basis for the murder charge in evidence presented during a three-week hearing.

Last August, the Federal Court refused to hear the U.S. appeal against Pagan, saying it had no jurisdiction in the matter.

The U.S. then went to the Supreme Court of Canada, seeking the right to take the appeal to the Federal Court.

Pagan still faces a deportation order issued after he fled to Canada under a false name.

The U.S. has three courses of action open in the case.

The matter can be dropped, a last appeal can be made to the Supreme Court of Canada, or an entirely new extradition hearing can be launched, with new evidence.

Sources indicated the latter possibility is unlikely.

U.S. Recession Fear Growing

Times News Services

The U.S. National Petroleum Council, the board chairman of Atlantic Richfield Oil Co. and a prestigious economic forecasting group are predicting that the United States energy crisis may quickly lead to serious unemployment and a recession.

"The 1973 U.S. economy is now vulnerable to a recession and may quickly succumb to the effects of the growing fuel crunch," was the conclusion of a special forecast of the Wharton Econometric team at the University of Pennsylvania.

If no emergency actions are taken, a National Petroleum Council report said, anticipated fuel shortages will "cause an annual loss of $48 billion from what the U.S. gross national product in 1974 would otherwise have been.

A commerce department official said next year's GNP will probably be about $1,400 billion, not counting energy losses.

Atlantic Richfield chairman Robert O. Anderson said his firm's refinery operating rate will drop to 85 per cent by year's end and, after that, into the low 80s, "if we are lucky."

Both Anderson and the National Petroleum Council report said unemployment resulting from fuel shortages could reach as high as 8 per cent.

At the same time warnings came from sources close to President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, as well as Harvard economist Otto Eckstein and Treasury Secretary George Shultz, against alarmist economic predictions based on still uncertain energy variables.

Shultz told the senate finance committee that "there have been lots of very dire and foreboding statements" on the implications of the shortages. "I think myself it's too soon" to be making such judgments.

He said the problem may "be handled by measures that will still allow the economy to move ahead powerfully."

Professors Lawrence Klein, George Green and F. Gerard Adams of the Wharton school said in their special forecast that although the economy has for some time tottered on the brink of mild recession, "It now appears that a substantial shock is coming from an unplanned source — the cutting off of Middle East oil imports."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield today called on Congress and President Nixon to stop "dilly-dallying" and start printing gas ration coupons.

"Unless something is done, mark my words, it'll mean recession in 1974," Mansfield said.

U.S. corporations reported sharply slower growth in profits in the third quarter of the year, led by declines in auto industry earnings, the U.S. commerce department reported today.

Personal income of Americans rose at a slower pace in October — a $9.2-billion increase compared with an increase of $11.2 billion in September.

In New York, some company officials were warning that fuel oil cutbacks could lead to bankruptcies of some companies. Inability to buy fuel would temporarily close some operations and would force marginal companies to shut down.

In Detroit the automobile industry was reducing prices on large cars with low gas mileage as the mood of the buying public changed and a definite trend toward smaller cars was under way.

In Los Angeles construction officials were concerned that the energy crisis would postpone or cancel many projects on the books, including some for refinery expansion. Some refineries were being forced to consider cutbacks, rather than production increases.

In Vancouver oil industry officials were confident that supplies would be available in British Columbia in the near term but the trend towards conservation would reduce volume of sales and lead to an uncertain corporate performance.

The uncertainty was reflected in the stock market with the Dow Jones industrial index under pressure and the Toronto market trending downward in sympathy.

The Dow Jones on Sept. 13 had been 880.57 and rose dramatically to a peak of 987.06 on Oct. 26, powered by signs that a predicted recession in 1974 either would not happen or would be of small duration and extent.

THE END OF THE CREAM

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Conservationist and architect R. Buckminster Fuller says the United States has "not a crisis of energy, but a crisis of ignorance."

Fuller said, "Much of the crisis is in confusion over the issues and the excitability of man, especially when he is ignorant. We do not have a shortage of energy; we have to understand how to convert energy to our use.

"We've been taking the cream from the top for many years," he said. "We've just put the pipes into the ground, and up has come the oil.

"We've been living on our savings account, and, of course, you can't do that," Fuller said. "If a family lives on its savings instead of its income . . . well, it can't do that for long."

Fuller said that other sources of energy must be considered and he mentioned the sun and wind.

"The prospects of harnessing wind power is immediate," he said, "but nobody seems interested in the windmill."

Fuller, who invented the geodesic dome, said that wind as a source of power "can be accumulated in good batteries." He said a project of the National Academy of The Sciences in Massachusetts has built "a battery of windmills to feed right into a power plant."

Fuller said solar energy is also capable of being conserved. He said he once lived in a room in Carbondale, Ill., with tinfoil lining the floor and ceiling with the result "heat bounced back and forth with remarkable efficiency."

Fuller, now a visiting professor at Southern Illinois University here, said alternative sources of energy are not being implemented because of the lobbies against them.

"The enormous amount of wealth released when petroleum was let loose in this country made the oil companies very powerful," he said. "The present government is really paying attention to big money, and the lobbies are so powerful.

"We have options that most people don't know we have. Humanity has just broken out of its eggshell and we have to make good within a minute. We'll see more changes taking place in the affairs of man in the next five years than in the entire history of man."

ATHENS FIGHT RAGES

Times News Services

ATHENS — Battles flared between thousands of student demonstrators and police throughout the Greek capital today after the students issued a call to topple the regime.

Battles between club-carrying rioters and baton-swinging police erupted in almost every square in the city.

In a matter or minutes the city turned into a battleground as squads of policemen raced through the streets hitting at anyone in front of them.

Announcers shouted over the radio station broadcasting from the student-occupied Polytechnic Institute that "tonight is our night."

The announcers issued instructions for groups of demonstrators to move through the city, and told them: "Don't be afraid of police, the junta collapses tonight."

The station dubbed itself the Radio of the Free Students.

"We appeal to anti-dictatorial and progressive forces to join us," the broadcast said. "Our struggle is anti-fascist and anti-imperialist. We want to free Greece from foreign capital."

On Thursday, more than 10,000 demonstrators choked off the main Pattission Boulevard in the capital for four hours to show support for about 3,000 students barricaded inside the Polytechnic.

Rookies Blast Off

Times News Services

CAPE CANAVERAL — Three rookie astronauts rocketed into orbit today to start man's longest space voyage, an 84-day "holiday cruise" aboard the earth-orbiting Skylab space station.

Gerald Carr, William Pogue, and Dr. Edward Gibson soared into space atop a Saturn 1-B rocket at 6:01 a.m. PST.

Ten minutes later, Mission Control reported their Apollo ferry ship was safely in orbit ready for the marathon journey.

The astronauts immediately began tracking down the 85-ton Skylab space station, a demanding task expected to take more than eight hours.

The first of five manoeuvres leading to the rendezvous came two hours later when the pilots fired the main engine of the Apollo for the first time for two seconds. This raised them into a higher orbit and narrowed the gap between Apollo and Skylab.

"That was one heck of a kick in the pants," Carr said.

The astronauts plan to sleep in Apollo tonight and enter the space station Saturday morning.

Doctors advised them to move cautiously in the first days in space to avoid the motion sickness problems encountered by the second Skylab.

All three astronauts, however, appeared to be in great shape in orbit and enjoying their first exposure to prolonged weightlessness.

"I'll tell you it's neat, it's really neat," Carr said. "You've got three happy rookies up here."

"It's a great world," Gibson said in an enthusiastic burst of communications with the ground.

"We can't hardly take our eyes away from the windows," Pogue said. "There's already nose smears on them."

The rocket, plagued by structural cracks and a fuel tank problem during the last weeks of checkout, worked flawlessly.

Launch director Walter Kapryan admitted he was "scared to death" when the space machine went through the period of maximum aerodynamic stresses but said all studies showed the rocket would work as well as it did.

During the marathon flight, which will span United States Thanksgiving Day, Christmas and New Year's, the spacemen are to conduct extensive studies of the sun, earth and man.

They will also take an unprecedented look at the comet Kohoutek, now streaking in from deep space.

Fire Kills 24 In Los Angeles

Times News Services

LOS ANGELES—A fire described as the worst in the city's history raced through a three-storey frame apartment building early today, killing residents in their beds while others jumped to their deaths trying to escape the flames.

The fire department said at least 24 persons were killed, including nine children, and more than 30 others injured.

"The place was loaded with kids, unfortunately, and we lost some of them," said fireman Steve Varney.

The blaze erupted in the middle of the H-shaped Stratford Apartments, a wooden building housing 120 to 150 residents, most of them Mexican-American.

"When we arrived there were people hanging from windows and jumping or falling. There were people standing beneath them with blankets, trying to catch them, or yelling at them in Spanish to stay in the building as long as they could—not to jump," Varney said.

"Everything was quick," said Vince Alvarez, who lived on the first floor with his wife Cristina and son Porgy, 15.

"I was asleep, and when I got up to get some water, I saw smoke and fire in the hallway. People were screaming and there was fire all over.

"I screamed to my wife 'let's go!' after I got my wife and son out, I was coming out the window and a lady that jumped almost hit me. She had a baby in her arms and she threw it to my son and he caught the baby."

Witnesses said when the first firemen arrived bodies lay in piles on the street. Bodies were stacked by firemen in a makeshift morgue across the street.

Most of those who survived lived near fire escapes, survivors said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Whelan Recalled

ROME (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has unexpectedly called Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan back to Ottawa to attend an unusual Saturday morning cabinet meeting.

Whelan said he was not sure why he had been called back but suspected it was for a general cabinet meeting that may precede a Commons adjournment.

U.S. Output Grows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board reports American factories increased production by 0.6 per cent last month, a sizeable figure considering that some industries are now running flat out with no room left to expand.

The commerce department reported significant improvements in the U.S. balance of payments with foreign trading partners in the July-September quarter.

$15M 'Missing'

NEW YORK (Reuter)—More than $15 million worth of negotiable U.S. government treasury securities are missing from the vault of the Chase Manhattan Bank here. More than $10 million of them belonging to customers.

Norse Crown Up

OSLO (Reuter) — New exchange rates for the Norwegian crown were announced today as a result of the government decision Thursday night to raise the value of the currency 5 per cent.

When foreign exchange markets reopened this morning the crown was back at the centre of the floating band of seven West European currencies after pressing its ceiling early this week.

IRA Ambush

BELFAST (UPI) — Irish Republican Army gunmen used the rural home of an elderly couple today to ambush an armor-plated police car, wounding one policeman in the leg.

FIRMS SCRAMBLE FOR TANKERS

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Oil companies are scrambling in search of tankers to ship excess crude from Vancouver to eastern Canada via the Panama Canal.

Already one company — Gulf Oil — has lined up one ship carrying 180,000 barrels and several others with refineries in Quebec are expected to follow.

"The situation is that there are at least three shippers in eastern Canada endeavoring to line up tankers and we anticipate they will have some success," said Kenneth Hall, vice-president, operations, of Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co. Ltd., owner of the pipeline that supplies Vancouver and Washington State.

Hall predicted the port of Vancouver will see four to five tankers in about 10 days.

In Ottawa, Environment Minister Jack Davis said Thursday his department doesn't know whether the proposal to ship oil through the Strait of Juan de Fuca is ecologically safe.

But in any case, he said, the volume required from the West Coast would be only "a drop in the bucket" compared to the quantity of Alaskan oil which would be carried by huge tankers into the Cherry Point refinery from Alaska.

Israel Offering Deal to Syria

By United Press International

With the Israeli-Egyptian prisoner of war exchange in its second day Israel stepped up efforts today to get back PoWs held by Syria and prepared to submit to Egypt a three-part plan to pull both armies back from the Suez Canal. The plan would set up a UN-controlled buffer zone on each side of the canal.

It would be the second stage of a Middle East settlement leading to a peace conference in Geneva. But there were indications the Arab world was in disarray and that both a proposed Arab summit conference and the Geneva peace conference might be postponed before the early December date mentioned earlier.

In the PoW exchange, 28 Israeli soldiers flew to Tel Aviv from Cairo to a tearful welcome from Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and 294 Egyptians flew from Tel Aviv to Cairo aboard planes chartered by the International Red Cross. Nine of the Israelis had been held since the 1970 war.

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan also disclosed a "far reaching" offer aimed at letting Syrians return to captured territory in the Golan Heights in exchange for a prisoner release.

Dayan offered to let about 15,000 Syrian villagers return to abandoned homes in territory captured by Israel in exchange for a trade of prisoners seized in fighting on the Golan Heights.

At the United Nations, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said that despite a request to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to help achieve a PoW exchange with Syria, "unfortunately, I can't say there is reason for hope."

Syria was reported by officials in Tel Aviv to be holding 70 to 80 Israelis, while about 150 Syrians were reported in Israeli hands.

LETHAL WASTE SPILLS AGAIN

RICHLAND, Wash (UPI) — An estimated 7,000 gallons of lethal nuclear waste spilled into the ground from a pipe Thursday at the Hanford Atomic Reservation.

But a new spill-monitoring system kept the leakage small, according to officials of the federal plant, where more than 530,000 gallons of nuclear waste have leaked into the ground since 1958.

Gas Price War Feared in City

British Columbia is beginning to produce surplus gasoline and the oil industry is concerned about a possible price war in Vancouver and Victoria, B.C. Petroleum Association president Barry Sleigh said today.

He said refineries are going full out to meet a heavy demand for furnace oil.

"However, we can't refine furnace oil without producing gasoline at the same time. We are concerned about the situation because surpluses usually lead to price wars."

Sleigh said British Columbians can expect to have sufficent supplies of furnace oil for many years and surplus supplies of gasoline during winter months.

"Petroleum products in short supply are lubricating oils and a possible shortage of heavy bunker oil in the winter of 1974-1975."

Bunker oil is used as fuel in heavy industries.

Sleigh said industrial fuel oil from California was guaranteed by contract for this winter but industries should get contracts for next winter right away because American supplies are uncertain.

He said industries could also face a serious problem of maintenance of machinery if lubricating oils become scarce, as seems likely.

Motorists and homeowners, however, are assured of good supplies of oil.

"If the British Columbia refineries are unable to meet the demand, we can import product from offshore. If that is not available, we can import furnace oil from the prairies, where there is a surplus."

Furnace oil brought by train from Edmonton or Calgary would be more expensive than B.C. fuel because of

Advance Vote Brisk

Mayoralty elections in three of the four core municipalities are probably responsible for the brisker-than-usual activity at advance polls in Greater Victoria this year.

The advance polls close at 4:30 p.m. in most municipalities today.

The Victoria city clerk's office reports early voting was heavier than usual in the two-day advance poll.

In Saanich, a spokesman for the clerk's office described the advance poll as "steady and certainly better than last year."

By 10 a.m. today, 81 persons had cast ballots in the advance poll in Oak Bay which a polling officer described as "much better than last year."

In Esquimalt the advance poll after two days was considered "healthy."

Last year in the city of Victoria only 28 per cent of eligible voters cast ballots in the municipal election. This year, with the mayor's post being contested, the vote is expected to be higher. Mayoralty elections are also being held in Saanich and Oak Bay.

Polls for regular balloting open at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Sidney 'Dry'; Permits Held

Development in Sidney is slowly grinding to a halt as a result of inadequate water supplies, but the problem can be solved through development of a regional concept, Capital Regional Board Chairman Jim Campbell said today.

Sidney's water supply will have to come from outside the municipality, said Campbell, but a solution can't be reached until the conflict between regional planning and municipal planning is eliminated.

Without "substantial" residential development Sidney can't afford to bring in outside water so a change in people's attitudes toward land value is needed, he said.

Development along the water route from Victoria would pay for the necessary services but would break the rules of the agricultural land reserve plan, said Campbell.

If Sidney can't accumulate enough funds to pay for water from Victoria as a result of the provincial government's land freeze, the town should be compensated by other residents within the regional district, he said, adding all other alternatives must be studied before a solution is chosen.

Jack Bosher, chairman of Sidney Waterworks district board of trustees, said, "All we can do in Sidney at the moment, as I see it, is to drill more wells."

The town now receives an emergency water supply from Elk Lake but supplies are limited, he said.

Sidney is supplied by 12 wells, he said, and mineral content in the water found in other wells has been too high for human use.

Total estimated cost of piping in water from the Sooke-Goldstream complex is between $3 to $4 million, he said, and would require federal or provincial assistance.

"But there has never been a grant for water systems," said Bosher.

The swimming pool, part of Sidney's proposed recreation complex which goes to referendum Saturday, will require in excess of 50,000 gallons a month, he said, and the water would be supplied "at the expense of the houses."

In March, 1972, the town council placed restrictions on building permits and allowed only single-family dwellings to be built. There are now 600 applications for building permits which will not be granted until the water problem is solved, he said.

transportation charges, he said.

"British Columbians must be prepared for increases in price but there is no supply problem."

Sleigh said furnace oil supplies were guaranteed for this winter and Alberta supplies would be available next year. Imperial Oil is expected to open its huge new refinery at Edmonton about September, 1974.

"The refinery will produce large surpluses of furnace oil and gasoline during the 1970s.

Sleigh said B.C. might need access to the furnace oil but probably would not need to import gasoline in view of the projected surplus here.

He said British Columbia refineries are guaranteed access to Alberta oil through the Trans Mountain Pipeline and any crude oil exported from B.C. has to be surplus to the needs of this province as part of the national oil policy.

Social Workers Hit ECC View

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada was sharply criticized Thursday by two social development groups for its recommendations to cut proposed increases in government spending for social and welfare programs.

"The Economic Council of Canada sinks into what must be one of its lowest depths," said the Canadian Association of Social Workers, a group representing about 4,000 government and private social workers across Canada.

"One is left to infer from this that we as a country are over-committed to the basic survival of the poor through welfare programs, social insurance programs, etc., and that indeed there are a great number of welfare bums in this country. . . . This is not the case," the association said in a statement.

Reuben C. Baetz, executive director of the Canadian Council on Social Development, said in a statement it was hard to believe the Economic Council could blame inflationary problems on social welfare programs for the poor.

"While we, of course, agree that there must be some limits placed on the growth of transfer payments along with limits in other public spending, we are not convinced that the arbitrary 11 per cent proposed by the Economic Council is necessarily a maximum.

The Economic Council, a federal advisory body, issued its 10th annual review Wednesday forecasting continued strong growth in the country's economy, but warning that inflation could wipe out much of the gain.

It's principal recommendation on government spending was to cut $4.6 billion from the total $56.3 billion estimated for social and welfare programs from 1973 through 1976.

The council said in its review that it does not oppose such programs, but it believed the rate of increased spending on them was too fast.

Council secretary Fred Belaire said in an interview that the recommendation was not to cut current spending but to reduce the planned rate of increase to 11.2 per cent a year.

Current projections are for increases of 14.5 per cent this year and 21 per cent next year, the council said in its review.

Support for the Economic Council, however, came from Finance Minister John Turner who said it "makes a lot of sense" in warning of the dangers of high government expenditures.

Restraints should be applied at all goverment levels, he told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield who asked whether the government agrees with the 11 per cent annual increase recommended.

In Regina, Saskatchewan Social Services Minister Alex Taylor said Thursday the proposal to cut back on income security payments to fight inflation is outrageous.

He said the proposed reduction came at a time when corporation profit increases are breaking all records and amount to "a war on the poor."

Fuel Lack May Cut Sidney Ferry

Ferry service between Sidney and Anacortes likely will be cancelled next week as a result of the U.S. fuel shortage, Washington State's Director of Emergency Services, Thomas Prior, said Thursday.

A decision will be made Saturday when Washington State Ferries officials and state highways department personnel meet in Seattle to discuss fuel-saving measures.

The Sidney-Anacortes ferry uses about 400 gallons of fuel per trip. The service has been uninterrupted since the Sidney dock was built in 1960.

Brud Blaney, of Blaney's Travel Service, said today the Evergreen State, which makes one daily run, averages about 50 per cent capacity during the winter. Capacity is 100 cars and 1,000 passengers.

The cancellation will not have a serious effect on Canadian traffic, said Blaney.

Sidney Chamber of Commerce president Carl Drost said Sidney merchants won't "cry" about the cancellation but there will undoubtedly be some minor effects on the town's economy.

Major U.S. Recession Feared

the subsequent Arab cutbacks in oil shipments to the United States has had a severe effect on the index in November.

The Dow Jones closed Thursday at 874.55, completely wiping out the gians in the September-October surge.

The decline has been on a broad front with oil companies and the car industry feeling the brunt.

General Motors shares closed Thursday at $55.50, its lowest level in 11 years. On Wednesday, GM traded 172,000 shares worth about $9 million as panic sellers and bargain hunters were active.

Ford was also under heavy selling pressure and slipped to $44.37 on Thursday.

In Washington, Senate Republicans, aided by 12 Democrats who broke ranks, beat back an attempt Thursday to force President Nixon to impose gasoline rationing by Jan. 15 as the Senate began a long debate on emergency legislation to ease the energy crisis.

As approved by the Senate interior committee, the bill instead allows the president to begin rationing "scarce fuels" when he thinks it is necessary.

The amendment was introduced and supported by most of the Democrats in part as a reaction to administration officials who have been arguing against rationing and saying that the demand for gasoline should be controlled either by letting prices go up or imposing a high tax on it.

Nixon said today at the signing of the Alaska pipeline bill there is a possibility Arab countries may soon lift their embargo on oil shipments to Western Europe and the United States.

However, at a news conference after the signing ceremony, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton said he doubts the Arab oil embargo will be lifted before the end of December.

Nixon's suggestion that the embargo, in effect since early October, will be lifted shortly does not mean that oil will be available any time soon, Morton said.

"I don't think we should plan on it this year," he added.

In Ottawa, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday he hopes to make a statement early next week detailing measures to head off oil shortages this winter.

He said the statement will be drafted after he receives a report on a meeting held earlier Thursday by his officials and representatives of the 10 provinces. Energy conservation proposals were discussed.

The statement will cover voluntary restraint measures and long-term contingency plans for handling shortages, he told reporters.

In Europe, Chancellor Willy Brandt announced today that West Germany will ban Sunday driving on Sunday, Nov. 25, and on some succeeding Sundays as part of an emergency effort to offset the shortage of Arab oil.

Brandt said the Sunday-driving ban was but one of the oil emergency powers he had decided to use.

The Danish government also plans to ban Sunday driving effective Nov. 25 and also ration oil supplies to the industries, parliamentary sources said today.

Danish industries can expect a 5 per cent reduction in their oil supplies, the sources said. The authorities also were expected to recommend or order a 30 per cent reduction of private oil and electricity consumption.

TV Channel 9 Seeks Feedback

Channel 9 general manager Richard Meyer will be in Victoria Monday to ask supporters of the Seattle educational station to help raise money to keep the station on the air.

The meeting, scheduled for 5 p.m. in the boardroom of the Empress Hotel, will also allow Victorians to provide local reaction to the station's programs and to offer suggestions for future Canadian shows.

WORK STARTS ON CHUNNELL

CALAIS (AP) — Without waiting for the formal treaty signing expected Saturday in London, bulldozers and 30 workmen started excavations today for building the English Channel tunnel linking France and Britain.

The preliminary work started today was for a descent path to move equipment down to the level for drilling operations through the chalk underwater formation.

the weather

A thick layer of cloud blanketed southern British Columbia last night and rain fell steadily along the south coast. In the interior snow was reported at most stations except in a few southern locations where the temperature remained above freezing and the precipitation fell as rain.

The weather system causing the rain and snow will move eastward to Alberta by this evening and precipitation will bend gradually. On the coast the rain will be prolonged somewhat by a weakening low pressure area which is presently off the Washington coast. There are good indications that Saturday will see a brief break in the current spell of wet weather.

Shutdown Set At James Bay

MONTREAL (CP) — The James Bay Development Corp., an arm of the Quebec government asked to fulfill a $6-billion dream of harnessing the energy of five mighty northern rivers, today is working out the mechanics of shutting down construction on the project.

As the developers tried to cope with the court order to cease work and get out of the area, Premier Robert Bourassa and officials of the corporation said appeals were already being prepared to the decision of Mr. Justice Albert Malouf.

A higher court will be asked to stay the injunction, they said.

The stop-work order took effect officially late Thursday afternoon when it was delivered to the development corporation, a Crown agency, and its subsidiary James Bay Energy Corp.

Legal counsel for the Indians and Inuit of James Bay said they are ready "and have been for weeks" for the legal arguments in appeal court.

They said that if the appeals court decides in favor of the corporations, they would immediately call on the whole appeal court to uphold the original injunction.

"Its very rare indeed that a panel of appeal judges reverses a ruling where an exhaustive hearing has thoroughly aired the issues," said lawyer Robert Latvack, adding that if both procedures fail, both sides still have recourse to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Officials of the development company said Thursday a plan may be ready today for the shutdown.

Such simple matters as feeding men in the bush and reaching about 1,000 of them scattered in numerous work camps 600 miles northwest of Montreal must be considered.

"We don't want people to have nothing to eat or find themselves stranded," a company spokesman said."

The project currently employs about 4,000 men and more than $200 million has already been invested in it. Construction has been going ahead on a 450-mile highway, three airstrips the first dam and power house on the La Grande River and a permanent city.

The injunction comes at a crucial time in the construction plan.

Construction companies had been preparing to build the winter road system to move in equipment and material north in preparation for next summer's construction.

If these winter roads are not built, officials said, much of the work planned for the summer of 1974 will not be carried out even if the legal dispute is resolved.

The injunction came as Hydro Quebec completed filing a $125 million securities issue with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington to finance further construction. Any effect of the judgement is not yet apparent.

In Ottawa, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said he hoped the judgment would result in the Quebec government sitting down with the Indians and Eskimos to negotiate a settlement of the native claims to rights over the land.

He was "satisfied" with the decision and was ready to take his place in the bargaining if the Indians wanted his help, he added.

Consumer Aide To Get $39,000

The appointment of a 35-year-old former law professor from Ontario as the new deputy minister of the B.C. Consumer Services Department was announced today by Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young.

William Neilson, a professor at Osgoode Hall Law School for the last six years, was appointed by cabinet order Thursday at a salary of $39,000 a year.

The department, created through legislation passed at this fall's session of the legislature, was made official also Thursday in another cabinet order.

Neilson, married with three children, has law degrees from the University of British Columbia and Harvard Law School, and is a specialist in the consumer services field.

NEILSON

Neilson, asked why he had accepted the B.C. position, said: "Because I've bitched for seven years and now I think I should try to apply some of the thoughts and programs I've been talking about."

He said his main objective is to make the Consumer Services Department "the best small department in North America."

2,800 MEN IDLED AT M-B OPERATIONS

About 2,800 men are idle at MacMillan Bloedel operations in the Alberni Valley today in snowballing labor strife likely to continue at least until Monday.
to continue at least until Monday.

Lack of progress in negotiating wage revisions for tradesmen appears the main cause of friction, but a union spokesman said the trouble began last Saturday because a supervisor did work in the jurisdiction of a tradesman.

The entire Somass sawmill division and most of the company's logging divisions have been shut down as walkouts and suspensions spread.

A spokesman for the company said Thursday bargaining on the wage rates won't go ahead until the men go back to work.

A Pause to Consider

The injunction granted by Mr. Justice Malouf of the Quebec Superior Court which for the time being halts further work on the $6-billion James Bay Hydro-electric project probably has no Canadian precedent in the magnitude of its causes and its effects. The injunction will be in force at least until a final hearing is held on the rights of the native residents of the vast area affected by the power project.

The plan for the northern power development that would harness three rivers and involve almost one-fifth of the area of the province has been a key factor in the political fortunes of Premier Bourassa's government. It has been promoted as a source of thousands of jobs, the generator of thousands of megawatts of power to meet Quebec' needs of the near future, the producer of profits for provincial coffers from domestic and over-the-border sales, and probably a major factor in the victory of Mr. Bourassa in the recent provincial general election.

But the whole project also ran head-on into the objections of the Indian and Eskimo people whose historic lands would be inundated, industrialized and exploited, and whose residents would in many cases be displaced. Before this particular era such objections would probably not have been given a hearing. Progress would have been the overriding consideration; industrial need the sole criterion. It is therefore a land-mark decision by the court to halt the whole process until the various considerations are sorted out.

The final outcome may fall one way or the other. The salient fact at this point is that the courts have found valid grounds for argument even when the contestants are Indians versus industry, people versus politicians.

Perhaps the qualified success of Indians in other parts of Canada in fighting for legal recognition of their historic claims to land and compensation may have encouraged the Quebec Indians in their effort. But what the whole incident exemplifies is the modern confrontation between the old and the new—between the frontier concept of Canada and the encroachment of the white man's mechanized civilization.

Not for the first time, but certainly in respect of the biggest undertaking, society has been ordered to stop and work out the relative values and advantages to be gained by preservation of a primitive environment in contrast to its conversion as a site for vast industrial power production.

This dramatic confrontation has been increasingly seen on smaller stages: the value of a pulp mill and its effluent compared with the value of the fish in an adjacent river; the need for a strip mine in contrast to its topographical destruction; the requirements of oil production as against the need to preserve the marine environment. There have been many such situations in which a new evaluation of the planet's real needs has arisen where heretofore there was little if any thought of questioning the demands of industrial progress.

The results of the Quebec confrontation should be watched by every Canadian—indeed by every resident of the planet, for it embodies the elements of the vital decisions that must now be made by mankind everywhere as we approach a crossroads in our global journey.

Rationing Should Be Rational

As the United States girds for possible gasoline rationing early in the new year Canadians will be interested in how such a system is implemented, since rationing north of the border is also within the realm of possibility. At present two systems are being considered in the U.S. The first — similar to Second World War rationing — would incorporate a basic allotment of coupons for each driver, with unlimited gasoline available to essential services such as police and fire departments. Another system, reportedly favored by some members of President Nixon's cabinet, would be in the form of a heavy tax — perhaps 30 to 40 cents a gallon — which in theory would drive down demand.

In the strictest sense the second system is not really a rationing scheme at all. It would result in the wealthy family with two or three cars having gas to burn while less fortunate people might find it difficult to drive to work or to shop more than once a week. If Canada reaches the point where rationing is the only alternative to diminishing fuel stocks then it should be up to the government to allocate fuel.

Obviously, municipal services such as ambulances, fire and police would have first call. After that, public transportation and business people to whom a car is essential should have priority. But a draconian tax on fuel would only create deep antagonisms in Canadian society. And we have enough hot problems now without pouring gasoline on a new one.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Face to Face With the Facts

WASHINGTON — In the higher art of politics, at any time or place, the successful artist must learn, above all, to retreat while seeming to advance, and vice versa. Of this subtle technique we are now seeing in Washington, and even more clearly in Ottawa, a wondrous exhibit.

But the disorderly retreat from the many-sided fiasco known as the energy shortage is only one stage in a pending deeper assessment of the North American economy. And while the shortage doubtless will be surmounted somehow, it, with its surrounding problems, has turned much of the politicians' glamorous plans and programs into sad, or comic, nonsense, depending on your sense of humor.

We must go back a long way, and take in a lot of territory, if we are to understand what the immediate oil crisis is telling us. Obviously it is telling us, among other things, that government, business, labor unions and society as a whole have grossly miscalculated and mismanaged the fuel, the essential ingredient, of our high, so-called living standard.

Precious Asset

When a continent that recklessly wasted this precious asset until yesterday finds itself rationed today and may well be chilly tomorrow, the first lesson is taught, rather suddenly. But it is only the first lesson and not truly learned yet.

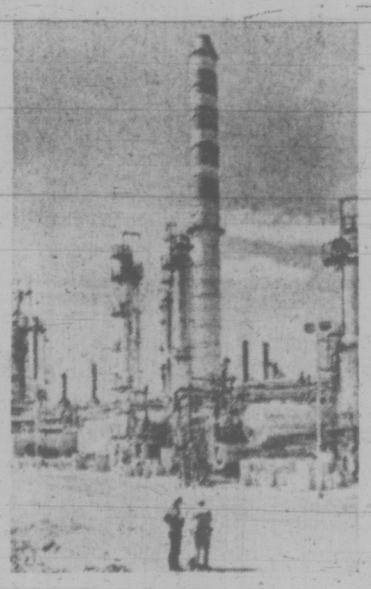
A second lesson, perhaps still more ironic and certainly less understood, is the politicians' retreat from their solemn resolve to avoid further serious intervention in the economy, even on a temporary basis. For what are the hasty, clumsy and preliminary regulations of fuel if they are not the very sort of controls, whatever name they carry, that were to be resisted at any cost, including the total cost of modern life?

By devious routes and under heavy smoke-screens, North American government is now reversing direction and advancing stealthily toward still wider controls because, with all their obvious difficulties, they are unavoidable, in some vital areas at least.

It would be quite unfair, however, to suppose that all politicians, businessmen and labor leaders did not foresee the energy crisis, in general anyhow, and beyond it the larger problems of the continental economy.

In Washington especially, though less in Ottawa, they were grasped by some men as early as August, 1971, when President Nixon briefly froze prices in his economic phase one. He successfully enforced phase two which is generally forgotten, and then plunged into the disaster of phase three. But these men have never changed their minds in the present chaotic phase four.

Two of them, among the most powerful in the Congress, told me that some equivalent of phase two, some revised and better method of controls, would have to be reimposed very soon — and this, unfortunately, at a time when



Controllers Take Over

American labor has lost all faith in the president.

A few days after that conversation on Capitol Hill, he announced a fuel-rationing system, as yet crude, embryonic and sure to need drastic refinement. So did the Canadian government which, up to then, had condemned all such interference with the overstrained market mechanism as unworkable, indeed unthinkable.

Another irony is thus revealed: Government in Washington and Ottawa undertakes to control, or at any rate to temper, the market forces in the case of fuel but it is not prepared, so far, to control or even to admit the major cause of continental inflation.

As explained by one of the most eminent American economists, a man who long served government and lately returned to university life, the strongest pressure on prices henceforth will not be the national and worldwide law of supply and demand, strong as it is. In the United States, at least, the strongest pressure in the next year will be the rising direct cost of all production, mainly in the form of wages and partly in the form of profits.

Up to now, wages have advanced much less in the United States than in Canada because the American unions have been much more modest in their demands than their Canadian counterparts. That situation seems certain to change in the early future. The American wage contracts of 1974 threaten a new cost-explosion which already is under way here.

Canada Vulnerable

My informant added, in neighborly fairness, that Canada, with its much greater dependence on foreign trade, is much more vulnerable than the United States to the demand-pull forces, the tight commodity markets and the high prices of the world.

Or, as this man said: "Canada can't help importing our American inflation through trade every day and is now vastly aggravating it by raising its own internal costs. And it doesn't have to."

In detail these are immensely complex and controversial matters on which honest men will often disagree. But no one who understands schoolboy arithmetic can longer question a simple and surely a paramount fact—that for about a century the North American people have deluded themselves with impossible economic expectations of all sorts.

Though long enjoying an affluence beyond any other people's grasp, they were persuaded by government, business, labor unions and the whole social apparatus to demand, and expect as an inalienable right, far more than even the affluent society can yet produce. And in modern times they tried to close the gap between the possible and impossible by inflating the currency—an ancient conjuring trick that always fails in the end.

Now the energy crisis appears overnight to proclaim the first clean break in this grand delusion. Others will follow.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Municipal Elections

Next Saturday's elections in Saanich are of significant importance because after eight years we have a change in mayor and a large turnover in aldermen, together with a $4-million referendum involved. We have so often been accused of apathy. Well, for once, let us all get out and vote! After all, these are the people we entrust not only with setting the amount of our taxes but also with the wise spending of them.

It has been said that over the past several years Saanich, like inflation, has been trying to do more than its taxpayer's resources permit.

Next year, with recent changes in the Assessment Equalization Act, homeowners could have a chance of getting a reduction in their taxes. The old council however saw it as an opportunity to push through this money by-law. Both the timing and the manner of presentation seem open to question.

Included in the referendum are capital expenditure recreational items lumped together with road maintenance, drainage, etc., which normally are paid for with regular tax funds. This is presented in an "all or nothing" package, council hoping thereby to force acceptance through. At the very least I consider this unethical and somewhat crafty. In effect council is saying "We do not think you are competent to decide how much, when and where your money shall be spent."

It might surprise council to know how many of us have projects of our own, like painting the house, we would like to do but cannot afford because of high taxes. — Saanich Homeowner.

Negative

How many of the Saanich candidates have a constructive idea or platform? To me, a 43-year-resident, I think we need some different representatives. This group did not ask if we were in favor but voted their increase in allowances. They raised our taxes which is so easy to do, and now have created confusion for voters by having the road program and arena on the same ballot.

With a likely assessment change, and if we postpone the arena for a year or two (as Oak Bay is building one) our taxes could possibly stay the same for a change. Through the years I have noticed that when borrowing payments are completed we do not have our taxes reduced.

Let us put in a mayor and aldermen who at least say they will try to prevent a tax increase and vote "no" on the borrowing to express our opinions of the council's methods.

But may I take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the work done by Mr. L. Passmore and our mayor, Mr. Curtis. — Frederick O. Holm, 2964 Harriet Rd.

Island Voice

For the past four years the Gulf Islands have been suffering from an ill-conceived, but necessary in places, "10-Acre freeze" interrupting the natural development of all these Islands.

During this time a great deal of hard work has been done by thoughtful people, to derive plans under which the development of the Islands will take place in a manner acceptable to the majority of the Islanders. These plans also proved acceptable to the Capital Regional District, which is at this time our regional government.

Now, there comes a three-day visit of a Legislative Committee, made up of people who have never lived on an Island, of people who are urban oriented, of people who are politicians with no experience in the subject material they have been given to study and who have never even seen the Islands before, but they liked what they saw and decided they would have them.

The Committee's report and recommendations are a final insult to the pioneers of these Islands, and to the more recently arrived, like myself, who have spent a mere 20 years here.

That a bureaucratic group, the trust that is proposed for these Islands, should be inflicted on a group of people, who incidentally own the Islands, is pure unmitigated gall.

These Islanders have over the past 100 years developed their own society; and without resorting to becoming a municipality they produced a hospital for themselves away back in 1913, and they now have their own modern 35-bed hospital. They produced over the years a school system of which to be proud, they developed seven water districts on Salt Spring Island alone. All community services, volunteer and otherwise are of a standard most urban areas envy. In all this no help in the planning or development was ever required from Victoria.

Why now, Mr. Lorimer?

Naturally other inhabitants of the province, some as far away from us as 1000 miles, on the face of the newspaper reports, and not really being informed on the Gulf Islands, will think this is a good idea: until they remember that like their own places, the lands of these Islands are privately owned, through hardwork and honest purchase — that the people here have the real right to say what will happen to their Islands.

They have done a good job so far, interference from those on the outside, no matter what its avowed purpose, can only change and harm our way of life and our Islands.

It is time that the present provincial government was made to understand that the islands are only charming because the people on them have made them that way. That disagreements between Islands are a family affair, and when it comes to controlling our Islands' destinies, we are 100 per cent for doing it ourselves.

I think the people of the Islands should write to the Premier direct. Now! We want our own Plans. — G. S. Humphreys, R.R. No. 1, Ganges, Salt Spring Island, B.C.

Success

The ladies of the Royal Jubilee Hospital Auxiliary would like to thank those citizens of Victoria and district who attended our annual bazaar, and so contributed to its tremendous success.

The money raised through our bazaar will be spent on medical equipment for the Royal Jubilee Hospital.— Mrs. G. B. McKay, President, Royal Jubilee Hospital Auxiliary.

Criticism

The existing Esquimalt Council has placed Esquimalt taxpayers in a position whereby their taxes are going to be increased to unreasonable levels year by year. Undoubtedly some taxpayers on fixed incomes will be forced to sell their homes.

In order to pay for the construction of a swimming pool under the guise of a recreational complex, Council are going to have to borrow over half a million dollars. This, coupled with the interest will total at least three quarters of a million dollars which will have to be paid back by the taxpayers.

Grants from the senior governments will nowhere near cover the cost of the project. Subsidizing the operating cost of the pool will further increase taxes.

Not too many months ago the story was published in the local newspapers that Esquimalt Council was going to borrow $400,000 in order to have urgently needed municipal buildings constructed. Was this a myth deliberately fed to the people of Esquimalt by the Council?

It is a well known fact that buildings, equipment and manpower are required.

I have been informed that on one occasion when the police had to question a group of young people, the staff room and the toilet room had to be used for this purpose. This was due to lack of proper facilities. Such conditions for our police force to work in are a disgrace and not in the public interest — a prime example of neglect by Council.

The lives of persons living in the upper sections of condominiums and apartment buildings throughout the municipality have been placed in jeopardy because Council have not purchased the aerial ladder truck which they publicly announced was being budgeted for. Equipment on hand is obsolete. I know of two occasions when the fire truck was called out and it broke down on the way to the fire.

I cannot help but wonder how long Esquimalt taxpayers are going to permit their business to be conducted in such a slipshod manner.— George R. Banfield, 847 Carrie St.

Wants Information

In the matter of the Oak Bay municipal election, and being the recipient of some four or five appeals by form letters of candidates for Council it behooves me to wonder how little we know of what goes on in camera on policy to be implimented.

In the case of the recreation centre my recollection is that it was defeated in a referendum a few years back, and mostly by retired people who would not be able to use it. Now with that class of voters rapidly reaching 50 per cent of the tax-paying population, the centre is going ahead without a referendum, and we do not have any information on the following matters.

How much did the site cost? How many families were uprooted? How many houses were destroyed? How much in excess of $1.6 million will the complex cost, and what the annual deficit will be?

We are also in total ignorance of how much the council and mayor are paid and how much was their increment in their stipend during the last couple of years?

We understand both senior governments contributed heavily to the O.A.P. centre, but we never knew to what extent. — Perplexed.

Mau Mau

The Mau Mau thought all they had to do was to kill their masters, take over their wives, cars and houses and live happily ever after. This was understandable in the case of the natives in South Africa, but less understandable is the naive belief of so many of our people that a socialist government can take over industry and commerce and operate them to secure all the production necessary to ensure a decent standard of living.

Even the most simple-minded must have observed the incompetence and bumbling of all the governments they have seen in their lifetime and it is impossible for me to see how they can expect any government to be able to handle all the problems: employment, raw materials, capital accumulation, etc., etc., etc., in addition to all the regular and necessary work usually performed by a government.

Perhaps we should not be in too great a hurry to help them to get rid of Mr. Strachan, a man who seemed at one time, at least, to have grasped some of the facts of life as well as the dreams. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra St.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 16, 1913

That it is the intention of the city engineering department to drill the tunnel in Victoria West for the northwest trunk sewer by means of a series of shafts, so that the two faces will be exposed for the workmen, was explained by Assistant City Engineer Foremen this morning. There will be three tunnels, the parts connected by open cuttings, and work is to be commenced on them directly. As the expense of sinking shafts would be great in some of the deeper parts of the work, the intention is to reduce the number of those originally planned. The approval of the right of way through the Hudson's Bay property, in order to meet the revised plans to carry the outfall further westward to comply with the recommendations of the consulting engineer, is expected in a day or two.

Beau Ideal of Those Heady Days

By PETER C. NEWMAN

(A book review in The Globe and Mail)

Whenever an international crisis blows up these days, one of its minor but invariably painful consequences is watching Mitchell Sharp do his obligatory 45 seconds on the evening TV news. The reporters — heavy men, most of them, with hairy forearms and deep voices — thrust their microphones out and Sharp obliges with small pussyfooting homilies — an orange tabby on a man's errand. His eyes have the opaque quality of peeled grapes as Sharp spins out the meaningless diplomatic patois, and as I watch him, I try to remember just how long it's been since anybody cared what Canada's Secretary of State for External Affairs said or thought about world issues.

The date, to be exact, was June 17, 1957, when Lester Pearson stepped down as this country's foreign minister, after nearly 10 years of creative diplomacy marked by an almost romantic readiness to gamble against the odds of superpower self-interest. It was his — and Canada's — decade. Mike-Volume 2 1948-1957 (University of Toronto Press. $12.50) tells the first-hand story of that heady time, and tells it superbly well. John Munro and Alex Inglis have edited the text with such sensitivity that it is difficult to credit the book's disclaimer that Pearson wrote only five of the eleven chapters himself.

Pearson emerges from this memoir as the beau ideal of international statescraft. During that brief flowering of diplomacy between the innocent past when ambassadors still wore handkerchiefs up their sleeves and the darker present when presidents tape their conversations, LBP set an exuberant style all his own. Light on both feet and ready to move in any useful direction, he came to be regarded as an immensely capable talisman whose powers of positive negotiations kept the Cold War cold. As chairman of the NATO Council, president of the United Nations Assembly, the main moving spirit behind the Colombo plan, the new Commonwealth, the Korean Peace talks, the 1956 Middle East UN emergency force, and on half a dozen other major occasions, he became the "honest broker," an eternal seeker of the middle ground, testing all of the infinite contingencies that might lead to a way out. He was not always successful, but his interventions somehow seemed to spark a progression of crises that precipitated their own solutions, like thundercloud that send down the rain to clear a sultry day.

The book is perhaps even more revealing than Lester Pearson or his collaborators meant it to be. The fact that federal Liberals in this country recognize very little if any barrier between politics and the senior civil service (since they are what Jack Pickersgill likes to call "the Government Party") comes out vividly as Pearson reminisces about his first day in the Commons after his switch from having been a deputy minister. "The change to me did not seem startling," he writes. "It felt like being promoted from general manager to president in the same company: 'External Affairs Ltd.'."

He not only praises the quiet diplomacy he practiced so well, but calls publicity and frank disclosure "an exceptional weapon" which is "an admission of diplomatic failure." You feel the suffused glow of a hundred Rideau Club dinners as he lists the comrades of the Old Boy network that made the Pearsonian diplomacy tick: Norman Robertson, George Ignatieff, John Holmes, E.L.M. "Tommy" Burns, Dana Wilgress, Geoff Murray, Bert MacKay, Arnold Heeney and Hume Wrong.

Typical was the message he sent to Hume Wrong, then Canadian Ambassador in Washington, on March 16, 1949, after both men had helped negotiate the original NATO pact: "Without your skilful and experienced help, we would certainly not have had as satisfactory a treaty as that which you will be signing for Canada. I am happy that my name will be associated with yours in that signature. It marks another stage in our joint progress from the days when we used to put our initials, together, on first year pass-papers in history at U of T."

Pearson's buddies weren't all Canadians and some of the volume's most interesting sections are the glimpses he gives of world figures: a visit to Douglas MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters, with the general acting like the Mikado himself; Anthony Eden, while he was prime minister of Great Britain, asking Pearson if he could arrange an invitation for him to open the Canadian National Exhibition; a slightly tipsy Nikita Khrushchev imploring Pearson to help him negotiate his way into NATO: and this description of an airplane ride he took with John Foster Dulles in 1956: "He began to talk about the state of the world and if my few responses lacked some of their usual clarity and wisdom it was because I was fully preoccupied with trying not to be air-sick. I was certainly in no position to yield to that constitutional weakness, so I let Dulles do the talking.

"However, he made one observation which I could not allow to pass unchallenged. It was about consultation: 'You Canadians (he almost sneered) are always complaining that we never consult you about our policies. Ike, as you know, is a great golfer and, who knows, he may want us to play a few holes together on this visit. If we do and the score is all square on the 18th green, I'll wager that you will intervene just as I am about to make the deciding putt to demand that I consult you about it first.' My reply, I thought, was much to the point: 'If I did, Foster, it would be merely to tell you that you were using a No. 9 iron'."

Pearson makes no effort to hide his first love and reveals that he would have happily resigned from the Canadian cabinet had not the Russians vetoed his 1953 effort to become the UN's secretary-general. This, despite the fact that he had been chosen as the Liberal Party's heir apparent as far back as 1947.

The sheer joy that Pearson feels in his diplomatic craftsmanship comes through in the book's two appendices which are long excerpts from his personal diaries of how the Korean settlement was reached. The trick, it seems, is to walk through the delegates' lounges at the UN whispering the right thing to the right person at precisely the right moment.

Even when he became prime minister, Lester Pearson seemed always a man of Ottawa more than of the nation, but in the book's best chapter he writes lovingly about Algoma East, his home riding, and you wonder why he had so much trouble achieving personal resonance with the rest of the country. There is the story of the farmer who made what must stand as the shortest political introduction on record: "I have been asked to introduce Mr. Pearson who has been asked to speak to us. I have. He will." And a glimpse of the little boy with an "I LIKE MIKE" sign hung around his neck, a little uncertain about his instructions, who kept yelling, "I Like Mike." A fond remembrance of the old lady who greeted him with the benediction: "God bless you, John Diefenbaker."

But through it all, whether he is campaigning in Algoma East, tossing back vodkas in the Kremlin, or gripping the elbows of delegates at the UN, Lester Bowles Pearson remains always true to himself. A good and reasonable man incapable of adding even a faint hint of fanaticism to his cautious convictions.

Divine Rights Of Presidents?

THE PROGRESSIVE

The resignation of Vice President Agnew in the face of impending criminal prosecution placed in even sharper focus the peculiar contention of President Nixon that he is the one citizen of the United States who stands above the law. Mr. Nixon's Justice Department, while closing in on Agnew for the kill, seized the opportunity to reassert in a Baltimore courtroom the President's claim that he, unlike his hapless running-mate, is immune to the duly constituted processes of the judicial system.

Mr. Nixon clings to that claim even in the wake of an Appeals Court decision holding, in unusually harsh language, that the President "does not embody the nation's sovereignty. He is not above the law's commands." Cloaked in a dubious doctrine of Executive Privilege that has suddenly, magically been transformed into a constitutional cornerstone of the Republic, Mr. Nixon maintained that even a decision of the Supreme Court would be binding on him only if he chose to regard it as "definitive" — whatever that may mean.

How did we, as a nation, come to the point where an elected public servant asserts for himself a hastily refurbished version of the Divine Right of Kings? What is worse, how did we come to the point where the courts, the Congress, and a substantial segment of the citizenry seem to stand helpless in the face of this outrageous assertion — fearful that they may precipitate a "constitutional crisis" by exercising their constitutional prerogatives?

Two hundred years ago, Americans scorned those who wanted to endow the newly created Presidency with the surface trappings of monarchial pomp; how, then, have we moved so far toward accepting the substance of monarchial power?

These questions are answered, to a significant degree, in a drab, tightly packed, 607-page book issued a few weeks ago by the Government Printing Office. It is called Emergency Powers Statutes: Provisions of Federal Law Now in Effect Delegating to the Executive Extraordinary Authority in Time of National Emergency, and represents the result of many months of laborious research by the Special Senate Committee on the Termination of the National Emergency. The Committee's staff found no fewer than 470 statutes now on the books conferring extraordinary and extra constitutional powers on the President of the United States. In a joint statement accompanying the report, Co-chairmen Frank Church, Democrat of Idaho, and Charles McC. Mathias Jr., Republican of Maryland, summed up its devastating import:

". . . The President has the power in hand to seize property, organize and control the means of production, seize commodities, assign military forces abroad, call reserve forces amounting to 2.5 million men to duty, institute martial law, seize and control all means of transportation, regulate all private enterprise, restrict travel, and in a plethora of particular ways, control the lives of all Americans."

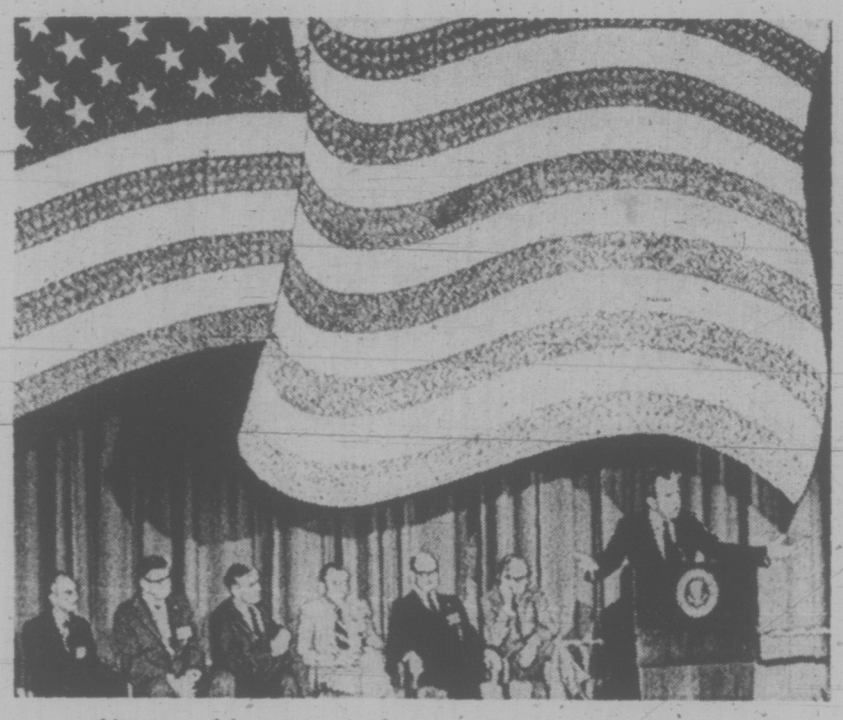
It was in the name of a "national emergency" that Japanese-Americans were rounded up and interned during World War II. It is in the name of a "national emergency" that the FBI's pervasive program of domestic surveillance has come to be an accepted part of the American Way of Life, though no specific authority exists for it in statute. It will be in the name of a "national emergency" that Mr. Nixon (or one of his successors) may decide one day to suspend all constitutional processes. "It is possible," Senators Church and Mathias carefully noted, "that some future President could exercise this vast authority in an attempt to place the United States under authoritarian rule." It is not only possible — it is likely; where power exists, it is eventually used, and abused.

It is small wonder that a man with such formidable power at his disposal comes to think of himself as above the law, accountable to no one.

The Senate Committee reached a number of conclusions about the emergency powers it identified and listed: Most of them were enacted "in times of extreme crisis" — and remained on the books after the crisis had passed; most were drafted by the Executive Branch and hastily approved by Congress "with only the most perfunctory committee review and virtually no consideration of their effect on civil liberties or the delicate structure of the U.S. Government of divided powers"; most carry no provision for Congressional oversight or termination, and most should be terminated forthwith.

This last, it seems to us, is the most important step that can be taken now to restore a government of laws and not of men in these United States.

But the crisis confronting us is greater than the crisis of an Administration whose leader stands under deep suspicion of corrupting the democratic process. The crisis is rooted in the fact that the institutions themselves have been corrupted, regardless of incumbency. It is time to regain our sovereignty from those who place themselves above the law, and restore it to the people — all of the people — from whom it has been filched.



Nixon addressing realtors in Washington this week

DEFEATHERING THEIR NESTS

THE SUN
An Editorial

The off-year elections held in the United States were only indirectly affected by the Watergate scandal. If as a result of President Nixon's entanglement in that fly trap the Republican candidates in mostly minor engagements suffered some humiliation, it was hardly a decisive guide to what the great U.S. public is thinking about these matters.

What, however, is of abiding interest even up here in Canada is what American voters in a few states and cities had to say about taxes and the way their politicians are feathering their nests, so to speak.

In Washington State the voters overwhelmingly voted to roll back pay increases voted for themselves and state elected officials earlier in the year by members of the Washington legislature.

In Texas a proposed constitutional amendment which would have permitted legislators to give themselves a 300 per cent pay increase was also rejected overwhelmingly.

In this province we no sooner elected a new government than it gave its ministers and MLAs a raise all round. True, only a 20 per cent raise, on paper, for the MLAs from $10,000 to $12,000; but 120 per cent, if you consider that Premier Barrett promises to make the members put in two sessions a year at double indemnity, or $24,000 a year.

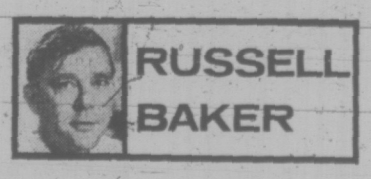
And Washington State's legislators got a thrashing at the polls for raising their miserable $3,600 stipends to $10,560.

This is done by means of the initiative and referendum law in use in Washington. It enabled a group of angry people to whip around a petition which collected hundreds of thousands of signatures and so got the question put on the ballot.

The provincial constitution of British Columbia, like that of Canada, assumes that the legislature represents the will of the people. Generally this works well. Sometimes, however, politicians are beside themselves with glory and self-importance. This is especially so when they find themselves with an overwhelming majority in the legislature.

There's an old saying that if wishes were horses, beggars might ride. In politics, wishes sometimes do come true.

It's in the Fine Print



RUSSELL BAKER

I have just phoned the insurance company. It as I thought. They will not pay any part of the $840 it will cost to stop the second-floor bathroom from leaking into the first-floor living room.

Our policy does not cover slow seepage. I was almost certain it wouldn't. And it doesn't. It was right there in the footnote to clause XXVII (A) (3). It was right there all the time.

The girl on the telephone at the insurance company told me it was there.

"Get a magnifying glass," she said, "and turn to page 15 of your policy, and look very closely right down there at the bottom, and you will see that it is there all right."

I saw it. It said the insurance company would not pay for slow seepage.

Fast seepage seemed to be covered, and cloudburst. So was a break in the shower pipe if caused by a regularly scheduled commercial airliner colliding with the chimney of the house.

I wept into the telephone. The girl offered consolation.

"Slow seepage was covered under the old policy," she said. "If this had happened before you renewed last spring, you would have been covered," she said. "We didn't get around to excluding slow seepage until this spring."

And now I am remembering last spring. There was a huge boost in the price of this very insurance, but it was all right.

"This time, we are really putting the blocks to you," said the insurance company, "but it's all right, because the purpose is to serve you better."

It is always ominous when a large corporation announces that something it has in mind is designed "to serve you better." The only thing more ominous is an announcement that something is being done "for your convenience."

People who lay 10-lane freeways across your front yard always say it is "for your convenience."

Insurance companies boosting their prices always say it is "to serve you better."

With insurance companies, the better service consists in giving the customer closer attention, so that the company can better predict what disaster is most likely to befall him under the new, more expensive policy he is buying, and exclude that disaster from coverage.

"Don't give in to self-pity," said the nice insurance-company girl on the phone.

Why not! Why not self-pity! Answer me that, insurance companies of America!

Remember that time all my bedclothes were stolen from the crates on the pier at Hoboken, and the insurance company wouldn't pay?

"But the policy you bought covered only theft," said the insurance girl, "and illegal removal from crates on the pier is not theft, but pilferage. Pilferage was specifically excluded in your policy. It was right there in the footnote, sir. Right there all the time."

Yes, I remember that. The entire insurance company had mobilized when I applied for a policy to protect the passage of those bedclothes through Hoboken. It had taken the company days to determine that pilferage was the crime most likely to be committed upon those bedclothes. Not theft, but pilferage. After that, it was child's play selling me a useless policy against theft, with that tiny illegible footnote excluding pilferage.

"Those were the days," sighed the insurance girl. "We really served you better in those days, sir."

There was the time the tree fell on the old house.

For my convenience, one of the local utilities had been blasting with dynamite nearby. It was an old tree. There was a wind in the night. Everything was covered in the insurance policy, and yet . . .

"As you well recall, sir," said the insurance girl, "that tree had snow resting on the upper branches, and tree falls were specifically excluded in cases where snow or ice had weighted said tree or portions thereof. It was all right there. Right there in the footnote."

I have hung up the telephone. I am thinking of the time when $149 worth of damage was done to the car and the policy's deductible amount had just been increased to $150. I think of the time, any day now, when $1,900 worth of damage will be done to the car on the highway, and a footnote to the policy will be found stating that damage incurred on highways is not covered.

It is right there in a footnote someplace. I am almost certain of it.

But I must not dwell on such things. Self-pity is unbecoming, and more cheques must be written quickly to insurance companies, or they will be unable to hire more footnote writers.

But what is this damp blotch on the life-insurance cheque? (What a footnote that policy must have!) Surely, not a tear? Ah no, not a tear. Just a drop of the second-floor bathroom committing excluded slow seepage.

Saanich Museum Aid Urged

Saanich council will be asked to support a move to establish a working agricultural and industrial museum on Saanich Peninsula.

Council's finance, legislative and health committee decided to recommend support Thursday after G. A. Gardiner of the Saanich Historical Artifacts Society said his group was seeking support from all municipalities in the area.

Gardiner said the society had appealed to the Capital Regional District and the provincial land commission to be permitted to establish the museum.

He said the museum "would be a complete working operation, and would also be a form of industry that would benefit the whole area as a tourist attraction."

Asked if the society had any location in mind, Gardiner said, "A piece of property we're looking at is between Mike Williams' kennels and the Saanich Indian reserve on the east side of the (Pat Bay) highway."

Gardiner said the society hoped to get financial assistance through the federal government's National Museums program.

In other business the committee recommended:

—Approval that Saanich pay its share of a $4,100 intermunicipal grant to Open Space.

—Approval that Saanich pay its share of a $500 grant for a dinner, celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Older Boys' Parliament.

—Approval to pay Saanich's share of $1,200 to cover November and December wages of John Woods, manager of the Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau, who died recently. The grant would be given to his estate.

Prospect Lake Deer Reprieved

Deer that plague Prospect Lake and Elk Lake residents with their penchant for garden-raised goodies received a reprieve Thursday.

Saanich's finance, legislative and health committee decided, at the worst, punitive measures should end with a good scare.

Letters have been received from some Saanich residents, asking council to have the deer removed, complaining that they destroy property.

It was the day for the deer's advocates Thursday when Mrs. Leslie Belfit presented a petition on behalf of 10 other Prospect Lake residents who want the visitors to stay

She also presented some hints on how to live in rapport with deer, even if gardens are your thing.

One way is to put a couple of tablespoons of bloodmeal into a bag. Mrs. Belfit suggested the bags could easily be made from old nylons. The bags should be placed on shrubs within a radius of 10 feet of each other and refilled after a rainfall.

Another method of protecting garden plots is to plan two rows of potatoes around them. The leaves repel deer because of the poisonous substance they contain.

Hemlock, which is fast growing, is another effective barrier.

The committee decided to take no action in ridding deer from residential areas but suggested that where commercial properties are affected — like nurseries and orchards — the owner be allowed to get a permit to use firearms but only to scare the deer.

Police Chief R. E. Peterson said this could be done with the co-operation of his department and the game warden.

A spokesman for Chiltern House Ltd. which operates the 24-acre Elk Lake Nursery on Brookleigh was informed that this measure of control would be open to him.

He told the committee his property is plagued by four deer "who just stand and look at us" during summer months, then carry on their foraging when the coast is clear.

He estimated the company would lose between $30,000 and $40,000 in 1974 if the deer aren't controlled.

He has tried to scare the deer with dogs and also thought of having dogs patrol the perimeter of the property.

"But we've been told we have to be very careful with dogs," he said, "because we're told they'll often make friends with deer."

Complaining residents have suggested the der be tranquilized and moved to another area. But Ald. Bill Noel said he had been cautioned by the game department that this would be useless, and perhaps impossible to achieve.

"I was told once a tranquilizer gun was used on a deer it would take seven minutes before it became effective. A deer can go a hell of a long way in seven minutes!"

Noel said he was told the removal of deer presented other problems:

"There's the corralling and then, where do you put them? I'm told there is enough deer population in the Highlands and the browsing would be insufficient for additional deer."

Ald. Fred Severson suggested that the Elk Lake Nursery could also ask the provincial government for financial assistance in erecting a fence.

Noel said the Greater Victoria Water District had found that eight-foot fences made of Japanese pigwire were comparatively inexpensive and effective.

Ozarks Today Film Slated

The film Ozark Country by Dwight Nichols will be presented Nov. 23 at 8 p.m. in Newcombe Auditorium of the Provincial Museum by the community services division of Camosun College.

The film, part of the World Around Us series, is a view of the Ozarks today.

$20,000 B.C. Grant For Vic West Centre

The provincial government has granted the Victoria West Community Development Association $20,000 to offset the cost of purchasing a house at 202 Raynor Street which is to be turned into a day-care centre, MLA Jim Gorst (NDP —Esquimalt) said Thursday.

But the organization now needs an additional $11,000 to bring the building up to health and fire standards. An additional provincial grant is being sought, Mrs. Tivie Adams, secretary of the association, said today.

The house was bought four months ago in anticipation of the provincial grant. In the meantime, it has sat unused, although some repairs have been made by workers hired through Local Initiative Program grants.

The association has continued to operate a day-care centre in its neighborhood centre, a house at 519 Craigflower which is rented from the city.

There are 20 children cared for at the centre which is staffed by three full-time workers and volunteers.

Local folksingers charmed a group of Oak Bay children Thursday with a repertoire of Canadian songs, one of the programs offered during Young Canada Book Week.

Singers Bill Laurie, left, and Tom Fyles, staged the mini-concert at the Oak Bay branch of the Greater Victoria Public Library. Older children were given song sheets and invited to sing along.

Other Canada Book Week programs include story-telling by Linda Kabush with Canadian stories and legends chosen to appeal to six-to-12-year-olds, and a display of Canadian books at the Hillside shopping mall. A film showing for secondary students will be held in the main library's youth department Nov. 22 at 7 p.m.

Kidnapper Caught Napping

MUNICH (UPI) — Police today arrested the last of the three men accused of kidnapping the daughter of West Germany's millionaire "fried chicken king."

They also recovered half of the $1.2 million ransom paid for her freedom.

Police said they caught plumber Rudolf Mairhofer asleep in his bed. Previously they had arrested Hans Mittermeier and Peter Knapp who gave himself up crying, "I can't take it any longer!"

A police spokesman said they would be charged with kidnapping of Evelyn Jahn, 22, daughter of millionaire Freidrich Jahn.

Knapp, called police Thursday night and cried, "I can't take it any longer! — Come and get me!"

He then led officers to the spot in a wood where he had hidden $430,000.

The kidnappers seized Miss Jahn Tuesday evening and held her for 12 hours before they received the ranson at a roadside spot in the country.

They failed to get away in Knapp's red roadster and police said they had no trouble in identifying the trio.

"It was not the smartest of operations," the spokesman said. "Now we are waiting to recover the rest of the money."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government has given Block Bros. Industries Ltd. permission to proceed with its recreational land development in the Cariboo, company president Henry Block said Thursday.

The company was notified by Highways Minister Graham Lea that the 26,000-acre development could proceed under the land-use contract signed by the company and the previous Social Credit government in 1972, he said, adding that work would start immediately.

The highways department earlier had refused to issue a certificate exempting the 600-lot second phase of development from the freeze on agricultural land.

The company appealed the refusal two weeks ago to the Environmental Land Use committee.

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A Swedish psychiatrist said today that false teeth may harm your sex life.

Dr. Arne Mellgren told a dentists conference here that, especially women feel they grow less attractive with a set of false teeth and even find kissing a problem.

"To many people, the loss of their natural teeth signifies that they have grown old. Many also fear they will be ridiculed, that they will suddenly drop their artificial dentures in public," Mellgren said.

Male patients with artificial teeth often lose interest in sex, feeling they have suddenly become old men, he said, recommending close co-operation between dentists and psychiatrists in these cases, to help patients overcome their fears and problems.

Ideal Temperature? Depends on You

The energy squeeze has led public figures from President Nixon to Public Works Minister Bill Hartley to urge fuel economies through lowering house and office temperatures.

What is the best temperature for man's indoor environment?

A sampling of doctors generally agrees turning the thermostat down to 68 degrees is a healthy idea, even though there isn't much scientific evidence to prove it.

A local specialist in chest diseases, who asked his name not be used, says it's a difficult question to give a blanket response to.

The warmer the house, the more difficult to keep an acceptable level of humidity in the air, he says. Sufficient moisture in the air is important for people with certain kinds of lung conditions because it enables them to cough effectively.

Canadian homes which maintain average temperatures of 70 or 72 have a humidity about equivalent to that found on the Arizona desert, he says.

For a healthy person it doesn't matter too much but for sick people a slightly lower temprature is easier to humidify.

"I think a temperature of 68 should be acceptable to most people."

Only people with muscular aches, arthritic or rheumatic conditions might benefit from temperatures a bit higher because it might ease their discomfort, he says.

In his recent speech on the energy crisis Nixon said:

"... my doctor tells me that in a temperature of 66 to 68 degrees you're really more healthy than when it's 75 to 78, if that's any comfort."

While several officials of the American Medical Association and the American College of Physicians agreed with Dr. Walter Tkach, Nixon's physician, they said their opinions were based more on common sense than scientific evidence.

The type of research needed to prove Nixon's point on health scientifically is a "badly neglected field," said Dr. William Bean of the University of Iowa Hospital. Bean did pioneering research in the Second World War on the degree of heat troops could tolerate in tanks.

Dr. William Barclay, the AMA's scientific affairs director, notes the respiratory system doesn't cope well with sudden changes in temperature. Moving from an overly warm room into outside cold affects the body adversely, causing coughs and respiratory problems.

Dr. George Burch, the chief physician at Tulane Medical School who has written extensively on the relationship between climate and heart disease, said:

"There's more tropical climate in New York than in the tropics. The first thing my wife and I said after watching the president was that now the buildings in Manhattan will be comfortable.

"Some offices have the thermostat set for 84, and 84 is considered hot in New Orleans."

Burch said he doubted an ideal ambient temperature existed because the proper temperature varies among individuals.

DROP-IN CENTRE MAY BE SHUT

DUNCAN — A drop-in centre used by teen-agers and senior citizens will have to close at the end of November unless it can find a new home.

The Cowichan Option Society must vacate the old municipal hall it has used since April as a drop-in centre because the hall, located on Canada Avenue, will be razed for a private developer to build on the site.

A committee was set up at a meeting of the Option Society Thursday to try to find a new base for the centre.

No firm decision regarding another location was made at the meeting, but the committee was asked to find out if the liquor store on Robertson Street, which will soon be vacated, or the partially unused CPR station could be used.

The drop-in centre will be unable to renew its grant from the human resources department unless a new location is found.

The department provided the centre in April with a six-month grant for $75,000.

The centre has nine employees, including craft instructors and social workers.

Thirty to 40 persons use the centre on a regular basis, and another 100 may drop in once a week.

They use the centre's facilities to make crafts, play games and watch television.

The centre holds a coffee house every other week.

A delegation from the society appeared before council Tuesday to find out if the drop-in centre could use the Arcadian School, but Mayor Jim Quaife told delegation leader Jack Hutton the school is being used as a warehouse.

The mayor said Thursday council would not dedicate itself to finding a place for the centre, but he would try to help them because he believed in the "basic goodness of the program."

DECISION!
In the past two years, a strong Council has made many decisions about Victoria's future

★ Haphazard spot development has been halted.
★ An overall plan for people-oriented development has been set up.
★ Maximum use has been made of federal and provincial grants to keep taxes down.
★ Traffic problems have been vigorously attacked.
★ Downtown has been kept as a strong commercial force—yet outlying areas have been well served.

Bill Tindall has been an integral part of these decisions and this progress

GARTH MAYHEW
Victoria City Aldermanic Candidate has the following suggestions:

● A mini-Bus service equipped for shoppers, as an alternative to downtown parking lots and traffic.
● A moratorium on the development of vacant lots until the needs of small neighbourhoods has been established.
● Designation of older intact districts as neighbourhood improvement areas for rehabilitation or small scale re-development.
● Temporary protection of heritage buildings until designation is possible.
● If possible, the establishment of a large fun-centre including sea-side recreation facilities.

Home Placement Plan Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government's home placement program begins next week with recruitment of residents willing to allow others to stay in their homes on a short-term basis.

The department of human resources program evolved from a successful home placement plan for transient youth last summer. The summer program was sponsored by the Metropolitan Council of the United Church of Canada, the Vancouver Crisis Centre and the Civic and provincial governments.

Jim McKenzie, co-ordinator of the home placement program, said Thursday homes and applicants would be screened by the placement centre's staff.

"The idea is to help people who are in urgent need of shelter but who are unable to afford a hotel or motel.

"Many families have to come to the city to visit a sick or dying relative," he said.

The provincial government has earmarked $26,000 for the plan, which will pay $4 for room and board for each adult and $2 for each child under 13.

Book Goes On, Groucho Told

NEW YORK — A Supreme Court justice ruled Thursday that a book with some eyebrow-raising quotations by Groucho Marx can go on sale — despite the comedian's objections.

The 83-year-old actor claimed The Marx Brothers Scrapbook contained overly frank remarks made by him about several well-known personalities including, Marilyn Monroe, President Nixon and Charlie Chaplin. Justice Nathaniel Helman said:

"The modern trend toward over-indulgence in free expression, combined with our loosely-worded obscenity laws, have brought to modern literature a vocabulary once regarded as shocking . . ."

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips sailed across the Caribbean aboard the royal yacht Britannia today, finally free of well-wishers and off on a hush-hush honeymoon cruise.

Anne, 23, and her 25-year-old cavalry officer husband sailed out of Bridgetown Harbor Thursday evening on a 19-day honeymoon cruise to secret Caribbean destinations.

Police in Bridgetown said the newlyweds left Barbados within 90 minutes of arriving as "ordinary" first class passengers on a 4,300-mile flight from London.

LONDON — The London Daily Mail said today the Duchess of Windsor, widow of the Britain's former King Edward VIII, told an interviewer she is a bored, lonely and sometimes ailing woman.

"It's a bombshell world full of violence and horror," she was quoted as saying. "I no longer understand or like it too much."

She has already chosen her tombstone, the article said, a marble one to bear the inscription, "Wallis, Duchess of Windsor." It will stand in Windsor Great Park, near the grave of The Duke and where Queen Victoria and Prince Albert lie.

CALGARY — Canadian playwright Tom Hendry said Thursday he will try to reverse the appointment of an Englishman as artistic director of Canada's prestigious Stratford festival.

He said it is "absurd and shocking" Stratford should hire "an outsider" like Robin Phillips.

"I'm going to conduct a nationwide campaign to overturn this man. It's indicative of the Stratford board of directors' utter lack of sensitivity that they should appoint a man without any Canadian theatrical background to the apex of Canadian theatre."

NEW ORLEANS — A spokesman for the district attorney's office said the facts contradicted claims by Raymond Wallender, a transient, that he set a fire in a French Quarter bar that killed 33 persons.

A police official said several errors in Wallender's story and a crucial time difference led authorities to discount the confession.

TOKYO — Travel is broadening, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is learning.

Kissinger, who always has had to fight the battle of the waistline, has lost some of the skirmishes on his tour of the Arab world and China.

And he is beginning to take note of it.

When Japanese cameramen were snapping pictures of him at the start of his meeting with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, Kissinger said: "Will somebody ask the photographers to make me look thinner."

'Anything Sensual'

CALGARY (CP) — The Stampede City soon will become the fourth city in Canada to boast a Love Shop and the owner says she is "determined to open people's eyes just by being here."

Brenda Hooge, the 29-year-old owner of a chain of shops selling sexual aids in Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal, said Thursday the local shop could open Monday. Admittance would be restricted to people over 18 years.

"Vancouver's sex shop opened a year ago and it's proving a roaring success," she said. "But we'll find out if Calgarians are sophisticated enough for such a store."

The former specialist in family therapy and mother of a nine-week-old boy said the shop will sell sexual aids "or anything sensual."

I'LL CHANGE—OBERON

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Veteran film actress Merle Oberon, 56, says in an interview she plans to marry a Dutch actor and put her valuable collection of antique furniture up for auction here next week for a "complete change in lifestyle."

She says she plans to marry Robert Wolders, 37, when her divorce from Mexican industrialist Bruno Paglai's becomes final early next year.

Miss Oberon and Wolders co-starred this year in the film Interval which she helped finance.

The furniture, collected throughout her career as a movie star, wife of the British film magnate Sir Alexander Kirda and one of the top hostesses of Mexico City society, is expected to bring at least $200,000.

The furniture includes a Queen Anne cabinet that once belonged to the late Duke of Windsor, a friend of Miss Oberon's.

"Selling the furniture is one way of getting freer," Miss Oberon said. She added:

"But I do feel rather bad about some of the things. They are old friends and I'm sad about losing them."

The Australian-born actress has sold her Beverly Hills home, put her Acapulco villa up for sale and bought a two-bedroom beachside house here.

"I'm making a complete change in lifestyle," said Miss Oberon, who frequently had members of Britain's Royal Family as house guests when she was in Mexico and Los Angeles.

Sports car, sedan, safety vehicle: the 450SE offers you a considerable reserve of performance and protection.

Each Mercedes-Benz 450SE costs over $19,000. Yet most are sold before they reach the showroom

You have probably seen a 450SE sliding imperturbably through city traffic.

Perhaps you have wondered what makes a car worth $19,000. Mercedes-Benz offers you some points to ponder.

Experts at Road & Track magazine dub the 450SE "best sedan in the world." Testers at Autoweek magazine call it "the most exciting sedan in the world . . . so far ahead of its time it leaves us stunned".

Look at the clean functional body: our engineers and aerodynamicists spent two years co-ordinating the air-flow around the 450SE.

Now, air currents whisk rain and mud away from side and rear windows, and scrub the tail lenses clean of muck. So that in foul weather, you can see and be seen.

The car's shape—a fore-and-aft wedge with a Kamm-type rear—was largely worked out in the wind-tunnel. It helps create rock-like stability at high speeds.

Scrunch down and peer at the underside. 6,000 neat smooth welds hold the body together, keep it strong, rigid, and rattle-free. Each seam has been filled with lead, and hand-buffed smooth.

30 lbs of undercoat are lavished on the bottom of the 450SE—sealed in place with a tough vinyl coating.

Check the front suspension: an engineer might discern the suspension arms are forged for lightness, and enormous strength.

Options and standard fitments: Mercedes-Benz 450SE

Popular Options: sliding steel sunroof, metallic finish, leather or velour upholstery.

Standard: Air-conditioning; power-steering; power-windows; central locking system; AM/FM stereo radio; automatic transmission; electronic fuel injection; transistorized ignition; electrically heated rear window; 70 lbs. of undercoat, paint and wax; radial tires; Mercedes-Benz engineering. The 450SEL has a slightly longer wheelbase, costs about $22,000 including above mentioned options—except sunroof.

Proved out at speeds topping 175 mph in our C-111 experimental car, this front suspension offers a remarkable benefit: should one front wheel hit a chuck-hole or road seam, should you need to brake heavily, the car will track straight and true without pulling or swerving.

Pop open the hood: the engine you see has been on a dynamometer under full load for a long 3 hours. Dabs of paint on the block show critical bolts have been torqued exactly to specification.

Smooth your hand over the paint: that's forty pounds of paint, polished between each of the six coats. The final coat was put on by hand.

Look inside: padding is lavish. Around the doors, where a shoulder can impact in a crash, padding is up to 3" thick.

Costly. But thoroughly necessary. As is the roll-bar welded into the roof; the front and rear pillars, shaped by computer to develop massive protective strength. The roof of the 450SE can support 10 tons.

This is "the safest car in the world available to the public" says Autoweek.

A final remark: the finish, design and precision of the 450SE approach the very limits achievable with standard technology. Everything about this car has been done thoroughly.

Whether dawdling through town or thrashing along muddy rutted back-roads, the 450SE handles its job with exactitude, keeping its occupants serene and comfortable. You may wish to discover this for yourself: there are a number of 450SE sedans arriving at your Mercedes-Benz showrooms now. Take one out on the road.

Elrix Claims 'Moral Victory' As VSE Reforms Short Selling

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Victoria promoter David Elrix is claiming victory as the Vancouver Stock Exchange begins a massive reform of trading rules governing short selling.

In September, 1971, Elrix cornered the market in Ardo B warrants. In fact he and a group of about 12 Vancouver Islanders bought more warrants than existed.

Professional traders in Vancouver sold the warrants, short-selling them without having them in the belief they could back them later at low prices and finally deliver the certificates. They did not know Elrix and his group were buying them all.

When the traders tried to buy the warrants some of the Elrix group refused to sell unless they got a high price and the issue was deadlocked when the warrants expired.

Some traders, contrary to rules, are still owing certificates in the warrants. But the warrants are worthless, having expired.

In Vancouver, Chris Caulton, vice-president of the exchange in charge of listing requirements, said that starting this month all short sales must be covered by buying or borrowing the shares and delivering them to the purchaser.

Some allowance will be made in cases of shares moving a long distance to take into consideration the possibility of delays in transit but this must not exceed 30 days. Under normal circumstances a stock certificate is delivered in four days.

The exchange also has established rules to prevent future cornering of a stock.

If a corner is detected, the president of the exchange may postpone delivery of certificates and order what he considers to be a fair price for the stock.

Elrix said he was delighted by the tougher attitude displayed by the stock exchange, particularly the rule which says all short sales now must be covered.

"This is a victory for what we were fighting for," he said in an interview.

"We may have lost a battle but we have won the war. We proved the rules of the exchange were wrong and we made them change."

Elrix took the exchange to court, charging conspiracy when the VSE suspended trading in the Ardo warrants, allowing them to expire.

The court ruled there was no evidence of conspiracy.

Elrix said the fact the exchange has altered its rules showed that he and his group were morally right in their claim that the short sales must be covered.

He said the matter is being pursued through lawyers to see if his group can get financial redress in view of the changed rules on the exchange.

In Vancouver, Caulton said that despite the new rules there could be no financial redress for the Elrix group because the warrants have expired and now are worthless.

He denied that the new rules were forced upon the exchange by the Elrix episode.

The key to the new procedure is the loan post on the Vancouver exchange.

The post has always existed but has not been active. At the loan post, a broker may borrow a stock which is on deposit for safekeeping from another broker with the understanding the stock must be replaced.

It works like a bank that accepts deposits from customers and credits the amount to their account but the actual dollars may be loaned out to someone else.

In the case of the loan post, the stock certificate loan must be agreed to by both the borrower and the lender before the transaction can be consummated.

In addition to arranging to borrow the stock, the short seller must deposit with the exchange funds equal to 150 per cent of the market value of the security. It is intended that members will make every effort to clear loan positions as early as possible," VSE administration vice president K. M. Fleming says in a memo to members.

"At a future date the loan post will be reviewed and consideration will then be given to imposing a time limit on loans."

Fleming announced that the exchange has rescinded rule 552 which said "a short sale shall not be covered by a loan ticket."

Fleming said: "The change means a member now will be allowed to fail a short sale. It is the intention of the exchange to keep outstanding fail positions at a minimum; consequently a member is requested to cover fail positions by borrowing the stocks from the exchange loan post. Outstanding loans at the loan post will be aged and reviewed periodically."

Elrix said the memo proves it was illegal for members of the exchange to fail to cover a short sale in the Ardo case.

He said the exchange now is altering the rules so that members do not get caught in a similar squeeze in the future.

"Obviously the establishment at the exchange knows we are right and it is changing the rules in the middle of the game so they don't lose again. This is a moral victory."

PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS BUREAU

ANNOUNCEMENT

Donald Gray

The appointment of Donald Gray as vice-president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau is announced by Donald A. S. Lanskail, president.

Mr. Gray has an extensive background in British Columbia's pulp and paper industry. Prior to joining the PPIRB in 1960, he was associated with MacMillan Bloedel Limited. In 1969 he became the PPIRB's manager of industrial relations. He is a past president of the Industrial Relations Management Association.

The PPIRB is the bargaining agency for B.C.'s 15 pulp and paper manufacturers.

Great West Steel

Great West Steel Industries, of Vancouver, has announced the formation of a new Alberta company to build mining equipment for Syncrude Canada Ltd. and future tar sands projects.

Two West German companies have joined GWS to form the new corporation, G.W.G.-Krupp Orenstein and Koppel Ltd., that will try to tap a possible $1.6 billion oil sands equipment business.

GWS president Kenneth Keffel said that assuming five projects were approved out of the numerous leases held on the oil sands, $1.6 billion worth of equipment would be required.

N-Western Utilities

Northwestern Utilities Ltd. reports net earnings of $3.4 million for the nine-months ended Sept. 30, compared with $2.8 million for the same period in 1972.

Net operating income for Northwestern, which supplies natural gas to much of Alberta, was $5.5 million for the first nine months of 1973, compared with $4.8 million during the same period the previous year.

Dome Mines

Dome Mines Ltd. reports consolidated net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $9,808,367, or $5.04 a share, up from $4,927,806 and $2.53 a year ago.

Bullion revenue rose to $31,341,831 from $18,340,807, due mainly to higher prices for gold, the company said.

Ranger Oil

Ranger Oil (Canada) Ltd. of Calgary has reported net earnings of $1,153,000 or 27 cents per share for the first nine months of 1973, up 22 per cent from net earnings of $948,000 or 23 cents for the same period last year.

Dow Chemical

Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. will proceed with a program to construct a major petrochemical facility involving an ethylene plant and several other chemical-producing plants in Alberta, company and government officials announced.

In a statement the company also said there would be an immediate multi-million-dollar expansion of its chlorine-caustic plant at Fort Saskatchewan, 15 miles northeast of Edmonton, to increase capacity by about 50 per cent.

The company also announced construction of a $2-million styrofoam plastic foam plant in Alberta.

Inland Natural Gas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. reported a loss of $204,086 or seven cents a share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with a profit of $68,031 or two cents a share, for the same period in 1972.

Revenue rose to $4.2 million, compared with $3.7 million in 1972.

The company said industrial gas consumption was considerably lower than forecast. The national railway strike and labor disputes were one of the reasons.

"Restrictions by the National Energy Board on oil exports reduced the natural gas required by oil pipeline companies at their pumping stations."

Millionaires Coached For $900 Per Hour

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Schultz is a father figure to the "big money" clients who come to him for advice on how to keep and stretch their capital.

Advising millionaires what to do with their cash has something to do with Schultz's own status as a millionaire. His consultation fee is $900 an hour.

Recently, about 400 followers from 15 countries attended the "biggest and most elaborate private money conference ever staged." It was put on by Schultz. Price of admission was $600 a person, which made it a $240,000 affair.

Of those who attended the Montreal seminar, Schultz says he believes the "vast majority were millionaires."

"Some of them were multi-millionaires and others just ordinary millionaires like myself."

The increasing difficulty of preserving the value of money has produced a small group of advisers of the Harry Schultz variety — Franz Pick and Eliot Janeway are familiar North American names.

These men have a sense of community. Schultz is president of the International Investment Letter Association.

The advisers are boosters of a bigger role for gold in the current international monetary system. Under the powerful influence of the United States, gold's monetary role in the last few years has been progressively reduced.

Gold has gone from a fixed price of $35 an ounce to an unfixed one of near $100 in the last five years. The investment letter-writers have been right in encouraging their clients to buy gold bullion, shares and futures.

Schultz says that unlike most of his fellow advisers he sometimes advocates the sale of gold to catch short-term swings in the market. His advice is given in the Harry Schultz letter, published in London.

"About a year ago I told my subscribers to sell gold. many of them were annoyed at me, but gold come down after a strong rise."

He describes his clients as people who have "made money producing shoes or bottle tops but don't know what to do with it."

Eighteen months ago he advised switching from dollars to Swiss francs. Those who did "made 40 per cent on their money without moving a muscle."

Schultz attended the recent International Monetary Fund conference in Nairobi, which, he tells subscribers in his latest letter, showed "the desperately chaotic state of the monetary scene."

When monetary agreement does come, he feels that gold will be put right in the centre of the system.

"More countries are ignoring the U.S. position."

As far as Canada is concerned, Schultz hopes that the "next finance minister" will "speak out for stable prices through stabilized money tied to gold."

Until then, Harry Schultz will keep plugging for the kind of situation that may one day put him out of business.

FOREIGN FIRM ACCORD REACHED

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian securities industry announced Thursday it has reached general aggreement on the role foreign-controlled securities firms should play in Canada.

The agreement, an apparent compromise of conflicting views of the Ontario and Quebec segments of the business, says only Canadian-owned firms should have the right to carry on a full range of securities activities. Foreign firms would be limited in their activity.

A joint statement from the Investment Dealers Association of Canada and the Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver stock exchanges said the Canadian securities industry "must be substantially Canadian so that there will be in Canada a strong securities community which is responsive to the needs of each part of Canada . . ."

But it said there is room for participation of non-resident controlled firms "within the primary principle that the Canadian securities industry be controlled by Canadians."

NEW GAS PRICES SAID BENEFICIAL

VANCOUVER (CP) — The new agreement between Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. and the government-owned British Columbia Petroleum Corporation will be beneficial to both Westcoast and the government, Kelly H. Gibson, chairman and chief executive officer of Westcoast, said Thursday.

He said the agreement assures Westcoast of earning a reasonable and agreed rate of return on its invested capital, and provides that any "windfall" of profits from the new higher prices for natural gas will go to the government.

He said in an interview that Westcoast, in its agreement, has the right to earn a 9.5 per cent rate of return on invested capital. Westcoast earned 8.2 per cent on invested capital in 1972.

Gibson said that under the agreement, the B.C. Petroleum Corp. takes over the purchasing of all natural gas in the field, after which Westcoast buys the gas from the corporation, sells to the utilities and the export customer, and then hands over all the money to the petroleum corporation after deducting the cost of its services and the agreed return.

B.C. CONSIDERS TRY FOR TRITON

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Industry Minister Gary Lauk said Thursday he has not given up the possibility of keeping a financially-troubled electronics firm in suburban Richmond wholly Canadian.

He said he has assigned two non-government consultants to look into the case of Triton Industries Ltd., which said last week it had accepted an offer to sell to U.S. interests.

Triton said it was selling out because the B.C. government would not buy a half interest in the firm for $500,000.

Lauk said the B.C. Development Corp. could still become involved with Triton, even though the government did not act prior to a deadline set by Triton.

He said he had since learned the deal with the U.S. interests was not yet a solid one.

Levi Wants L.I.P. Warnings

The federal government should give more warning of dropping Local Initiative Projects funding instead of leaving people hanging right up to the last deadlines, Human Resources Minister Norm Levi said Thursday.

Levi was commenting on a meeting he had earlier in the day with federal Manpower Minister Robert Andras, whose department is responsible for the L.I.P. funding.

Levi said Andras indicated Ottawa will notify B.C. within 10 days as to which L.I.P. groups will continue to get federal funds. He said there is about $8 million worth of L.I.P. funding in the province.

Levi also said he is "not sure" of the logic behind the discontinuation of L.I.P. funds in the middle of winter, when most of the people employed on the projects will have to go on to unemployment insurance to survive.

Since UIC payments are $70 a week, as opposed to $100 per week on L.I.P., the $30 saving by the federal government hardly seems worth the trouble people are put to, the B.C. minister said.

He said he is "very happy" with most of the L.I.P. groups operating in the province, and that most of the community projects are worthwhile and service-oriented. It is better to have people working to receive government money than to have them unemployed, he said.

In a related comment, Levi said he disagrees with the argument that increases in welfare and other payments to Canadians are a major cause of inflation, as reported Thursday by the Economic Council of Canada.

He said the federal government should adopt a more progressive taxation policy which will take more money away from richer people and get it in the hands of the poorer people of the country.

To keep the poor people from getting the amounts of money they need to survive is not right, he said, and constitutes going back to the old dole system. Poor people are already forced to spend all the money they get on necessities, he said.

Levi also said there has been a disappointing response to date to a provincial government program which can boost the incomes of poorer families to at least the level of welfare payments.

He said there has been less than 1,000 applications for the program and said the feeling of most families appears to be that they would prefer to make money on their own, not get it from the government.

Barrett in East: Utopian Envoy

TORONTO (CP) — There was some light-hearted bantering when B.C. Premier David Barrett visited Premier William Davis and the Ontario legislature Thursday.

Premier Davis told the legislature with a smile the New Democrat premier has "a surplus of gas that he wants to give Ontario, a surplus of coal, a surplus of oil.

"They have everything in B.C. we need and he is prepared to give it to us almost without charge."

Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democrats, referred to Barrett as "a visitor from the Holy Land."

He said if that description of British Columbia wouldn't do, "let Uptopia suffice."

The NDP leader added he was sure Premier Barrett took great pleasure "in having achieved somewhat more in 18 months than has taken others 30 years."

He was referring to the fact that in Ontario, the Progressive Conservatives have been in power for 30 years.

James Breithaupt, Liberal house leader, welcomed Barrett but said he found it difficult to pick him out "because he seemed to fit in so very well with all of the premier's advisers that continuously haunt those seats under the speaker's gallery."

Barrett was in Toronto to deliver a speech at the University of Toronto Thursday night, in which he urged social workers to take political action if they want to reform current government policies.

"There are some governments in this country that should have been thrown out years ago," he said.

It is "not the stacked boards of agencies" and "not a structured civil service that allows calmer and more reasonable men to rise to the top . . . " Barrett said.

When asked if his remarks referred to the Progressive Conservative government of Ontario, Barrett said: "That's for you to figure out."

The premier told the audience of social work students and teachers his government was proof that social workers can achieve the political power necessary to reform the welfare system.

He said his government's achievements include a minimum wage which will rise to $2.25-an-hour by January and a $209 monthly pension for persons over 60.

SOUND-OUT SOUGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has formed a trade and tariffs committee to collect the views of interested persons prior to the next round of negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie announced the committee at a news conference today and said he hopes interested groups will make submissions.

Ministers from GATT countries met in Tokyo in September and decided to initiate a new round — the seventh — of comprehensive multilateral trade negotiations. The object is a liberalization of world trade and the gradual removal of trade obstacles.

NIXON STUFF A BIT STRONG

OTTAWA (CP)—Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday President Nixon was "putting it a little strongly" in critizing Canadian energy policies.

"It's a pretty strong statement on the president's part," the minister said after reading a report of comments the president made in a Washington speech earlier in the day.

Nixon was quoted as saying Canadian officials "can be pretty tough on us when they're looking down our throats . . . But I understand that. I don't complain about it."

Macdonald said it was only about three years ago when the U.S. was giving the cold shoulder to Canadian efforts to sell more oil on the U.S. market.

He said the Canadian position doesn't appar to be well understood in Washington and he would like to talk further with John Love, top energy adviser to the president.

The two men held a full day of talks last month.

If the Americans had their way, they would put their interests first and Canada's second in using Canadian oil, he said.

Canada takes the opposite view and, as it has always done, will see that Canadian needs are met first, he added.

Beyond that, "we'll do all we can to help them . . ."

More than one million barrels of crude oil are being exported to the U.S. daily. But there have been export controls on both crude oil and refined petroleum products since earlier this year.

McTaggart Seeks Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — David McTaggart, owner-skipper of the nuclear protest yacht Greenpeace III, called today for a clear statement from the Canadian government on its position regarding the boarding of the Greenpeace by armed French sailors, the "criminal assault" of the crew and the impounding of the vessel by France.

McTaggart, who received a serious eye injury during the boarding incident, said the government had advised him by letter it is satisfied that the French boarding party was armed and used force to subdue the Greenpeace crew and impound the vessel.

"But the same letter tells me that the problem now is 'how to proceed effectively,' that the government 'will not act . . . unless there is some reason to believe that something positive can be achieved'," McTaggart said in an interview.

The Greenpeace, a 38-foot ketch manned by McTaggart, two New Zealand women and a Briton, was boarded in August in international waters off the French nuclear testing island of Mururoa, in the South Pacific.

McTaggart was held under guard in a military hospital in Tahiti for two weeks. Other crew members were deported by the French.

France has refused to concede liability for any part of the incident, or for a similar incident in 1972 involving what McTaggart claims was a ramming of the Greenpeace by a French naval vessel.

But France announced last week that the Greenpeace had been released and could be picked up by McTaggart either at Tahiti or Mururoa.

McTaggart said today he could not understand Canada's reluctance to take any action.

He said his most recent letter from the external affairs department, which indicates French liability, talks only of "possible espousal" of his claims, and yet an earlier letter to an inquiring citizen said Canada "will be prepared formally to espouse his claim if . . . the evidence . . . should justify such action."

"I state emphatically, they have the evidence, and they admit now that they have it," McTaggart said

Canadian Peacekeepers Living in Filth: MD

CAIRO (CP) — The senior medical officer with the Canadian peacekeeping forces in the Middle East says hygiene and living conditions in their base camp here are the worst he has seen on any overseas assignments.

Maj. J. P. Vezina of Quebec City, a medical doctor, said in an interview that since the camp was set up less than a week ago he has treated at least half a dozen cases of skin infection and similar ailments.

"I've served in Cyprus, Vietnam and the Middle East in the past but I've never seen anything like this."

The doctor said he shuns publicity but his dismay at the lack of camp facilities convinced him that in this case he had to speak out.

"One night this week I went out to the camp to look around and I found that for more than 200 men there were only eight toilets, of which seven had stopped working.

"The men are upset and they're grumbling when they come to talk to me, and that's serious.

The Canadian commander, Brig.-Gen. Douglas Nicholson, says he is concerned about conditions at the camp, located at a large racetrack on the northern edge of the city, but the situation is being improved.

The Canadians are quick to point out that Egypt has done its best to help them set up the camp. The money needed to move to a better site or get out of tents into a building of some kind would have to come from the United Nations.

"Oh, so we can have it up to an acceptable standard in a month," Vezina said of the operation to improve the tent camp. "But the fact is we shouldn't have to wait that long.

"An advance party was sent over here to evaluate the site and do a lot of other things. All of these matters should have been taken care of before we moved in.

"For example, the Poles are going to set up their tent headquarters beside us. But they're not rushing in. They send in small planning groups who decide what is needed and then they go to the UN and demand the things they need and get them.

"When the Polish troops move in they'll have all the things they need."

About 170 additional Canadian peacekeeping troops are waiting in West Germany to travel to Cairo and while nobody openly admits it, their delay appears to be a result of the overcrowding and hygiene here.

One of the first things needed in the camp is mosquito netting to protect the men from flies which fill the air, attracted by horses, old stalls, filthy washrooms and outdoor cooking.

Soldiers filling their plates with fish and other pack rations Thursday arrived at their tables with the food covered by flies.

VOTE
HENRY X
CITY OF VICTORIA

LADIES and GENTLEMEN (Voters of Victoria) Please Read This Very Carefully.

JUST WHO IS HENRY BITTERMAN?

1. Born in Melville, Saskatchewan, 53 years ago.
2. Has lived in Victoria for over 27½ years.
3. Has been in the Real Estate Business for 15½ years, (all of them in Victoria).
4. Is a veteran of the 2nd World War, having served in the front lines as an infantryman.
5. Had the honour to be asked by his Colonel to be one of his officers.
6. Was a qualified mountain climbing instructor, a physical training instructor; took other courses as combined operations, combined commando, etc.
7. Is a graduate of a Theological College.
8. Plays several musical instruments (has played also in several brass bands).
9. Has worked in Sunday Schools work, with young people, and skid road work.
10. Had privilege to be nominated president of the Victoria Constituency of a certain political party in 1954. (Declining nomination in favour of an older, more knowledgeable person). For past 10 years belonged to no political party. Is definitely an independent.

As You people know, and have seen, in the past and at present, the various methods of attack and barbs by various groups, against me; I'm going to have to ask many of you to make a special effort to come out on election day and vote for me. I have no group, club, or organizations behind me. Not even a particular individual or sponsor, etc. I am strictly on my own, financing myself also, and am anxious to be your representative, work for you, and fight for you when necessary.

Some of the many things I would like to work towards and see that they are done, as your Alderman are:

1. Co-operate with the provincial Government in eliminating the large tracts of parking area utilized by the Provincial Government employees in James Bay, build a large, several-storey parking structure behind the Red Lion Hotel, Cloverdale area, or any suitable area, where these employees would park their cars and be Bussed to and from their work. This would eliminate hundreds of cars coming into town and congesting traffic every working day. The land in James Bay should be sold to be used for private homes and a beautiful large smart shopping centre built on the widest street in James Bay, Superior Street.
2. An underground tunnel built on Douglas St., under Hillside Ave., thus giving smooth flow of traffic out of Town and eliminating the Terrible long lineups and congestion at Vancouver Island's most heavily travelled intersection.
3. A bridge built, footing at the Bapco paint site and over on Victoria West side, taking all heavy Truck traffic away from downtown.

   See that such foolish spending as the $1,029,000 paid for the Ocean Cement property (by the Black Ball Ferry), which is less than one acre of land, never happens again; and as you know now Council doesn't really know what to do with it; except use it as a park (or a Hippie Scratch Pad).
5. People fixing or improving their homes to be given a reduction in taxes (an incentive for them to do so) thus improving the appearance even more of our beautiful little City, instead of the Increase in taxes which they now receive, thus discouraging them from improving their properties.
6. BAD MONEY LOSERS owned and run by the City, such as The McPherson Playhouse, to be sold to Private Enterprises (and thus be run more successfully for the community). The money obtained thereby to be used to build the Douglas St. Tunnel and the Inner Harbour Bridge mentioned before.
7. In 1962 the City had $9,000,000 in which to run the City's business; in 1972 the City had $26,000,000. And Still Our Taxes Went Up. INCREDIBLE, BUT TRUE. Terrible and foolish expenditures caused this. If city aldermen and mayors over the past years operated their own business as they do the city's, they would all be broke definitely. Many More things could be mentioned; but please, VOTERS, force yourself to get out and vote, I know it takes effort. Please, Do me one big favour and vote for Me.

HENRY BITTERMAN X
ALDERMAN
CITY OF VICTORIA

(A Resident and Taxpayer of Victoria—Living in James Bay)

I'll appreciate it very much; and of course if I wouldn't be a good alderman you could always vote me out. I need YOUR INDIVIDUAL SUPPORT, as you see I'm certainly getting group opposition.

Thank You very much in advance. Remember, Bless Your Hearts, Push Yourself out to Vote, for Me. PLEASE

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 26-year-old man asked to be sent to jail when he appeared before Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court Thursday, but the judge turned him down.

"I feel you should lock me up from society," said Darryl Butler, address not known, who was before the court for sentencing in connection with a charge of false pretenses.

"It is unusual for a person in this situation to make such a suggestion," replied Ostler. "I don't want to lock you up. I don't think that would do any good."

Police said Butler had used another person's charge plate to purchase $74 worth of goods from The Bay on Sept. 19. He pleaded guilty Oct. 24.

The judge noted the accused had no record and said by asking for a jail term he had indicated he had "a very deep-seated problem."

Instead, said Ostler, he would suspend sentence and place him on one year's probation.

Carol May Marshall, 27, of 120-229 Gorge Road was ordered to stand trial before a judge and jury following a lengthy preliminary hearing before Ostler.

Marshall faces three charges — possession of marijuana for purposes of trafficking, possession of hashish and possession of LSD, laid Oct. 20, 1972.

A co-accused, David Bapty, 28, was discharged because of insufficient evidence.

Two women who pleaded guilty to separate shoplifting offences at Woolco were each fined $250.

Nellie Julia Gray, 65, of 3415 Veteran, was charged Wednesday after a store official saw her put some soap and skin cleanser worth about $6 in her purse and leave.

Rosemary Sieh, 32, of 1938 Trans Canada Highway, was charged Nov. 2 when she was seen placing $23 worth of items in her purse. Police said she had $60 on her when arrested.

Fines of $350 were handed down by Judge Harold Alder to Walter Charles Frederick Newcombe, 66, of 110-1701 Cedar Hill Crossroads, Karl Laughton Rice, 23, of 2813 Scott, and John Archibald Gibbs, 49, of 2051 Granite, who pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Rice's charge stemmed from an accident Sept. 3 on Goldstream Avenue, Newcombe's from being stopped by police Oct. 3 on Richmond and Gibb's from being checked on Quadra Aug. 3.

Alder imposed three-month driving bans for Newcombe and Rice but left the term of prohibition for Gibbs in the hands of the superintendent of motor vehicles.

Alder set a $350 fine for George Andrewd Tyson, 33, of 3809 Rowland, who pleaded guilty to having care or control while impaired Tuesday evening. Police found the accused sitting in his car, engine running and keys in the ignition, outside 3216 Cook.

An additional $100 fine was imposed when Tyson appeared late for his court appearance and was charged with being unlawfully at large.

Judge Alder prohibited the accused from driving for six months and placed him in nine months probation with the condition he receive therapeutic treatment for an alcohol problem.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

An Appeal to Voters of Greater Victoria

If my street is an extension of my home — and my neighborhood, an extension of my street — my city, an extension of my neighborhood — my suburb, a breathing space for my city, it would follow that Municipal elections are more important than the Federal ones.

If my house burns down and my city is saved, I have incurred a temporary loss; if my city is destroyed and my house is saved — my loss is total.

If I live in Canada, I do not live ALL over Canada. No-one does. Therefore, Canada, to me, must be my village, my town, my countryside. If I claim to love Canada then I must love my town, which is Canada to me.

Therefore to piously proclaim love of country without preserving and adding to my city's unique character and beauty is sheer blatant hypocrisy.

For years now we have endured myopic, self-seeking "progress" minded aldermen and mayors and for years now our city and countryside, our culture and traditions have grown closer to typical American homogenization and flatness.

To reverse this commercialization of our true home, I urge the voters of Greater Victoria to vote and work for the election of the following candidates.

TEAMSTER 'NAVY' WASHED UP

DETROIT (UPI) — The Teamsters' Union has a "navy," and it is cruising a picket line in the middle of the River Rouge off Detroit.

The single ship in the union fleet is a 28-foot cabin cruiser owned by Fred Schumacher, 49, one of 360 members of Teamsters' Local 283 who have been on strike against Marathon Oil Co. since Nov. 2.

The boat and its three-man crew have patrolled the river for a week to stop anyone from crossing the watery picket line to load a Marathon barge with oil. So far, no one has crossed the line.

But the $3,000 cruiser stalled Thursday and died in mid-river. It was out of gas.

"It must be that cheap Marathon gas we're using," said crew member Joe Rusis.

Then, to the embarrassment of Schumacher and his crew, the boat drifted across its own picketline and went ashore at the Marathon refinery.

A TV Set for $8,000...

WASHINGTON (WP) — Consumer products would cost up to 20 times as much if they were made by major U.S. defence contractors who are spared the cost-cutting pressures of competition, the congressional subcommittee on economy in government was told Thursday.

Industrial engineer Ernest Fitzgerald, fired by the U.S. Air Force in 1970 after disclosing a $2 billion cost overrun for C-5A transport aircraft, supported the assertion with defence department data.

He used a $400 color television set as an example. If manufactured by some electronic firms retained by the Pentagon, the price of the same set would be around $8,000, providing anyone would pay it, Fitzgerald said.

The current defence department budget is $81.1 billion or about 30 per cent of the government total of $268.7 billion. On Tuesday the General Accounting Office warned Congress that the estimated cost of 45 major weapons systems went up $2.7 billion in the six-month period ending June 30.

The basic reason for waste in defence procurement is that the system rewards waste and punishes aggressive cost-cutters, Fitzgerald told Sen. William Proxmire (Dem.—Wis.), chairman of the joint economic unit.

No Blame Cited In 3 Deaths

QUESNEL (CP) — A coroner's jury Wednesday attached no blame for a June traffic accident which killed Joseph Meier, 18, of Chilliwack, Brenda Morris, 21, Donna Goodwin, 26, both of Prince George, and Kenneth Graham, 47, of Ukiah, Calif.

Meier and Graham were driving separate vehicles which met head-on.

Trans-Pacific Rafts Blown Awry

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (Reuter) — Three rafts trying to reach Australia from Ecuador are being swept southwards by strong winds and may have to be taken in tow, said radio reports reaching here Thursday.

The rafts are participating in an expedition that is trying to prove pre-Colombian Huancavilca inhabitants of Ecuador navigated the Pacific and reached Polynesia in similar craft. Canadians are among the crew.

Vital Alsar, the 38-year-old Spanish leader of the 12-man expedition, was quoted as saying the rafts were being driven directly south instead of southwest and would miss their target, Mooloolaba Beach in Australia, unable to correct their course.

Alsar, a former French Foreign Legion member, spoke to an Australian ham radio operator and the conversation was picked up here by Joe Magen, an Ecuadorian engineer and amateur radio enthusiast.

Magen reported the rafts were only 200 nautical miles from the Australian coast, after completing most of their 10,000-mile voyage.

He said the Australian asked whether Alsar wanted to be taken in tow. The Spaniard said he would make further effort to correct the rafts' course before giving a final answer.

Canadian sources said four Canadians are among the 12 men: Greg Holden, of Clear Lake, Man.; Mark Modena, of Montreal, and Ferdinand Robichaud and Gaston Collins, of Quebec City.

The rafts are 35 feet long and made entirely of logs and cane, with no metal attachments, similar to the ancient Huancavilca craft.

The expedition is Alsar's third attempt. In 1967 his raft sank but he reached Australia in another raft in 1970 after 161 days.

The expedition is intended to provide conclusive proof the Huancavilca could have reached Polynesia in fleets of rafts as well as singly.

50-CENT GAS 'MILESTONE'

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time, the price of premium-grade gasoline has topped the 50-cent-a-gallon mark at some Detroit-area service stations.

"The 50-cents-a-gallon price may be a milestone, but it is a milestone you'll look back on very rapidly," said Charles Shipley, executive director of the Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan.

The United States measure is four-fifths of an imperial

BIG CROP TO BLAME

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bumper crop of apples is to blame for the plight of the Okanagan fruit grower not the railways' inability to move the crop to eastern Canada, says CP Rail.

In a telegram to Transport Minister Jean Marchand, the B.C. Fruit Growers Association and B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. said the industry was in a crisis condition because the railways could not supply enough boxcars.

But Bob Ferguson said CPR's current car supply to the fruit industry was adequate to meet the regular amount of traffic the growers commit to the railway.

"Compared to a few years ago the fruit industry has committed decreasing amounts of traffic to railways with an increasing proportion going by truck," said Ferguson.

"We have commitments to other shippers in the beef and frozen food industries who have agreements to give railways a major share of their traffic.

"With that sort of commitment we have to give those customers first priority."

Ferguson said because of the bumper crop in the Okanagan "they (the growers) have had a peak situation which is difficult for us to meet. "We are now mainly a standby carrier in the fruit business."

CN spokesman Al Menard said there was a shortage of boxcars for all industries.

JOINT EFFORT

DALLAS (UPI) — Two Russian spacecraft have been targeted for landings on Mars this winter with the aid of American maps and in return the Soviets have agreed to share their scientific findings.

Dr. Harold Masursky, chief geologist for the highly successful Mariner 9 Mars satellite, said the Russian mission could affect U.S. plans to land two large Viking spacecraft on the planet in 1976.

"If they successfully land and find conditions are very different (from what is expected), it will give us a chance to change our spacecraft," Masursky said Wednesday.

"We have made maps for them and in turn, they are supposed to tell us what their results are," he said. "It's a small investment for a very large return."

Labrador Oil Find

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland government says a promising oil find has been reported off the coast of Labrador.

In its weekly newsletter released today, the government said the find was made recently by Eastern Consortium, an affiliate of Total Petroleum North American Ltd. which is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Compagnie Francaise des Petroles.

The government said first reports of the discovery were "excellent."

Introducing ColQuel*

ColQuel: An Old Fashioned Cold Medicine.

Why hot lemon?

When you have a cold, a hot, lemon-flavoured drink makes you feel comforted and soothed. That's why ColQuel is in a "hot-lemon" form. A hot drink cold remedy also warms you up when you feel chilly and miserable. And that's another reason for ColQuel's medicated hot-drink form.

ColQuel has the soothing taste of honey.

Did your mother give you lemon and honey when you were a child? To bring back that nice experience, we've given our hot-lemon ColQuel, a taste of honey! But even though ColQuel is as comforting as an old-fashioned cold medicine, ColQuel is a thoroughly modern remedy.

ColQuel: A Modern Cold Medicine.

3 Fast-acting ingredients — and what they do.

ColQuel contains the same types of modern ingredients you expect in today's cold medicines...only you take them in a hot drink.

Here are the ingredients in ColQuel. And here's what they do to relieve your cold symptoms.

Acetanilide: This ingredient goes to work to help ease your chilly, feverish feeling . . . and relieve the aches and pains that often go with a cold.

Phenylephrine HCl. This ingredient works in your bloodstream to help "dry-up" those annoying nasal secretions that have you sneezing, sniffling and blowing your poor red nose.

Pheniramine Maleate: This ingredient helps to unclog your swollen, stuffed-up nasal passages, so you breathe freely again.

These are scientifically modern ingredients...and they help bring you the fast relief you want when you're shivering, aching, sniffling and blowing!

One thing more ColQuel brings to you: vitamin C.

ColQuel. Feels like an old-fashioned remedy — acts like a modern one!

All the old-fashioned comfort of a hot drink cold remedy. With a soothing flavour of honey! You'll agree ColQuel is not only a good old-fashioned remedy; it's an up-to-date, fast acting one, too. With 3 ingredients to combat your cold symptoms...and the addition of Vitamin C!

ColQuel

An old-fashioned cold medicine...that's new.

McKINNON

OTTAWA (CP) — Government willingness to have Polish troops join the United Nations peacekeeping force in the Middle East jeopardizes continued Arab oil shipments to Canada, the Commons was told Thursday.

Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria) said External Affairs Minister Sharp's acquiescence to Russian charges that Canadian troops have to be balanced by Polish troops confirms suspicions the Arabs might have about Canadian neutrality.

To accept that Canadian troops have a pro-Israeli bias comparable to the explicit pro-Arabs bias of the Poles is demeaning to Canadian troops who profess to be objective peacekeepers, said McKinnon.

He was speaking in a special Commons debate on Canada's contribution to the United Nations Middle East Emergency Force in the Middle East.

The Commons approved by voice vote a government resolution seeking approval of its decision to participate in the special force, six days after the first troops started moving out.

Canada has already sent 500 men, plus equipment, to the Middle East to provide communications. They are expected to be operational by Monfay.

In the meantime, the government is to decided this week whether to supply another 150 men and six aircraft following a subsequent UN request.

Canada has blundered onto the force, presenting the "spectacle of a member of the cabinet implicitly confirming that Canada is so pro-Israeli" that a balance with communist pro-Arab troops is necessary, McKinnon charged.

Hees Urges NATO Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative defence critic George Hees called again Thursday for an increase in the size of the Canadian contingent to NATO.

He used the special debate on Canada's contribution to the United Nations Emergency Force in the Midlle East to make his NATO plea.

The 5,000 Canadians in West Germany are equipped with worn-out and obsolete equipment while facing a Warsaw Pact force whose conventional weapons are being considerably improved at a faster pace than those of the NATO forces, he said.

Canada should honor its 25-year-old pledge to keep 10,000 men in Europe, he added.

Several years ago Canada reduced its European force by half, but has men and aircrift in Canada designated for European duty in the event of an emergency.

Baby Bonus Increase Nearer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons welfare committee completed study Thursday of proposed legislation to increase family allowances to an average of $20 a month per child and returned the bill to Parliament for approval.

Under the new act, expected to take effect Jan. 1, 1974, benefits would be taxable.

Ottawa will pay the average $20 a child to each province. The provinces will determine the amount of the allowance, but they must give a minimum $12 a child to mothers. This enables lower payments to the wealthy and higher payments to the poor.

The bill is expected to get speedy Parliament approval.

Out 10 Games

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The North American Hockey League has suspended Bill Goldthorpe of Syracuse Blazers for 10 games for an altercation with a linesman.

Hanging 'Only Deterrent'

OTTAWA (CP) — The words "you shall hang by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul" are the only real deterrent to killers, the Senate was told Thursday.

Sen. Guy Williams (Lib.—British Columbia) said he has had two young friends murdered and can't find sympathy for killers.

The senate is debating the government's controversial partial ban on hanging. The bill, which passed the Commons Oct. 24, would ban hanging for five years, except for killers of on-duty police officers and prison guards.

Sen. Williams, said people deserve to be protected and "although I may be a bit prejudiced, I will not support the bill."

Munro Eyes the Navy

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility of using Canadian naval vessels for surveillance and control of foreign fishing fleets was raised Thursday by Environment Minister Jack Davis.

Davis appeared before the Commons external affairs committee, which is discussing proposals for the 1974 Law of the Sea conference, including a minimum 200-mile offshore fishing limit.

Donald Munro (PC — Esquimalt-Saanich) said Canada had enough trouble keeping track of foreign vessels with only a 12-mile limit and asked if the coast guard and the navy would be brought into action if a 200-mile limit goes into effect.

Davis said it would have to be a combination of defence department and fisheries protection service patrols, combined with aircraft surveillance.

Canada, with the support of other coastal states, has proposed a 200-mile limit or, where the continental margin extends past this, to the outer limits of the margin.

Canada would not be very credible if it proposed such a wide margin without a fleet to enforce it, Munro suggested.

When deputy environment minister R. F. Shaw said increased use of aircraft and if new satellites will facilitate control of foreign vessels, Munro retorted, "They don't shoot:"

Leonard Legault, director-general of the international division of the fisheries and marine branch, said offending vessels would be banned from Canadian waters.

Munro remained unconvinced, saying "We'll just shake our finger at it."

Tories Block $6M Demand From CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — A brief aura of co-operation quickly went up in smoke in the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee Thursday as committee members were on the verge of passing CBC supplementary estimates of $6 million.

The estimates, tabled in the Commons last week by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, called for an additional $6 million spending for 1973-74 for the Crown corporation.

Conservative members blocked the vote saying that a detailed breakdown of the spending would be needed before the estimates were passed.

CBC President Laurent Picard told the committee the money will be used, along with an additional $50 million, to help finance the corporation's coverage of the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

Jean Roy (L—Timmins) accused the Conservatives of trying to delay the financing of the Olympic Games.

Earlier, Liberal members had allowed Tory Otto Jelinek who demanded the breakdown, to continue questioning Mr. Picard beyond the committee member's allotted time.

This was considered a rare display of co-operation by some members.

Jelinek had asked Picard why the CBC's Olympic coverage plans are veiled in secrecy.

Picard said it is difficult to release all coverage intentions because of numerous contract discussions going on with other broadcasting agencies.

He said that if the public, especially industry, knew all CBC's plans, some organizations might take advantage of the situation.

But he did say that the CBC is discussing with the CTV network and private television stations the possibility of coverage co-operation for a fee and future broadcasting considerations.

Jelinek asked whether any of the $50 million or $6 million would be recoverable. Picard said only about $6 million.

Bumper Harvest Announced For China

ROME (Reuter) — China announced today a bumper harvest for this year despite drought and flooding.

Hao Chung-shih, China's deputy minister of agriculture and forestry, told the governing conference of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization the country's total food grain yield was expected to exceed the 250 million tons produced in 1971.

There were corresponding increases in industrial crops, livestock and fishery, he said.

He gave no further details of this year's crop.

Last year's grain yield totalled 240 million tons, he reported.

Mayor's Gesture Misses Target

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Mayor Harry Veiner has donated $150 to Billings, Mont., to help the city buy heating fuel for the poor, but the money was received Thursday with confusion by the U.S. mayor.

Veiner, a millionaire, said he wanted to show that "all Canadians are not anti-American" in view of the Canadian government's recent increase in the export tax on crude oil to $1.90 a barrel from 40 cents.

But the mayor of Billings, Joe Leone, said in an interview the city uses little or no oil to heat its homes.

"We're mostly on electricity or gas."

"I was confused as to what to use the funds for, but Mayor Veiner said it would be all right to donate the money to charity, which we will probably do."

Lloyd Gilmour, publisher of a Calgary-based energy magazine, arranged the transaction. Gilmour said the Medicine Hat mayor originally wanted to truck 1,000 gallons of oil directly from Alberta to Billings.

But reports from three oil companies dampened the idea, said Gilmour.

"The export taxes, licences and permits would mess things up."

Mayor Leone said he appreciated Mayor Veiner's gesture and was glad to hear that "all Canadians weren't against Americans."

'No Discrimination'

EDMONTON (CP) — The administrator of the St. Theresa General Hospital in the predominantly native area of Fort Vermilion, Alta., was cleared Thursday of allegations of discrimination against hospital patients and visitors.

A report commissioned by the provincial government, written by a committee headed by Edmonton lawyer John Hill and released by the health and social development department, said there was no evidence that discrimination was practised by administrator Ephriam Carrier or his staff.

Blakeney Accused

REGINA (CP) — Premier Allan Blakeney was accused Thursday of playing games with Saskatchewan residents and confusing the issue of how many more people are on the government payroll.

Liberal Leader Dave Steuart said a recent statement by Blakeney "attempting to explain about 1,500 new employees," didn't face the issue.

He said, "Mr. Blakeney has hired from 1,000 to 1,500 new civil servants, adding an extra $10 million to the government payroll."

Coroners Act Hit

CALGARY (CP) — The provincial Coroners Act is unsatisfactory, the Kirby Commission inquiring into the Alberta lower court system was told.

Brian Scott, solicitor for the city of Calgary, said many coroners in Alberta are medical doctors who have no training in law and therefore lack the qualifications to do a good job.

Scott also suggested that a chief provincial judge should be appointed to oversee the conduct of provincial judges. At the present, there are "inconsistencies in sentencing" by the judges.

Sour Note Explained

EDMONTON (CP) — The president of Local 390 of the Edmonton Musicians Association says the decision that the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra wouldn't play for 1,800 school children Wednesday was made by the manager of the symphony society, not by the musicians.

Harry Farmer was commenting in an interview Thursday on a dispute which sent 1,800 children from the Edmonton separate school system back to their classes from the Jubilee Auditorium without hearing the music.

Rural Dip Seen

REGINA (CP) — With current population trends in Saskatchewan, rural enrolments will decline 30 to 50 per cent in the next five years, says Dr. M. P. Scharf, an education professor at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon.

He told the Saskatchewan School Trustees Association convention, however, that urban student numbers will increase at the same time.

Isolated Site Urged For Mini-Bike Trails

Ald. William Noel suggested today Saanich council establish a mini-bike park isolated from residential areas to cut down on vandalism at Saanich schools.

Noel said he will put his suggestion before Saanich council at the next meeting and recommended that a small tract of land be bought to accommodate the mini-bike owners.

The suggestion came after a weekend of vandalism at Royal Oak Junior Secondary School, 4564 W. Saanich Road, caused by mini-bikes being driven over the playing field.

Noel said mini-bike operators have no place to go and will urge that an area be set aside for their exclusive use. He said he had a piece of land in mind and that council would only have to buy a small part of it.

Saanich school trustee Jack Armstrong, chairman of the joint school board-council liaison committee, said today mini-bikes should be banned if their use cannot be controlled.

"This permissive society is great, but at some stage we have to call a few rules and make them stick," Armstrong said.

Armstrong urged public co-operation to cut down on instances of mini-bike vandalism on school property and said anyone who sees a mini-bike riding on a playground should phone the police or the school board office.

The first instance of damage done by mini-bike owners was at the Lochside school in September.

"Then the police told us they could not do anything until we posted restrictions on the playing fields.

"We did this in October and the signs keep getting torn down, but we put them back up."

The school board wants the public to use the school facilities, "but this type of abuse has got to stop."

Armstrong said parents of children who have mini-bikes "should be under an obligation to keep them under supervision.

B.C. History, Art Courses Popular

More than 1,000 people have enrolled in three free correspondence courses offered this year by the department of education.

The courses are in British Columbia history, basic English for those with limited knowledge of English, and painting for pleasure.

Anyone interested can write the correspondence education branch at the Legislative Buildings.

TV Ruling Brings Ostler His Own Day in Court

A federal prosecutor is taking Victoria provincial court's senior judge, William Ostler, to court over a ruling in a Combines Act case Sept. 12.

Victoria lawyer Harold Turnham, prosecutor in the case, said Thursday a hearing will be held in B.C. Supreme Court chambers Dec. 3 to decide if Ostler had proper cause to dismiss the case when he noted a discrepancy in the typed charge.

The charge, laid against Langford TV repairman Zoltan Peremiczky of 2302 Bellamy, alleged Peremiczky had made a false statement in a yellow page ad in the Victoria telephone book regarding his firm, Chroma TV.

However, the charge as it appeared on the information read it had been sworn before a justice of the peace "on 16th May AD 1773."

Turnham called it a "defect of form"; but Ostler has termed it one "of substance."

The judge argued on Sept. 12 there was nothing to indicate when the charge was sworn — whether before or after the alleged offence. He therefore dismissed the charge when the crown closed its case without correcting the date.

Turnham appealed to the minister of justice for permission to seek a writ of mandamus from a higher court, which, if granted, would rescind Ostler's ruling and order the trial continued.

The request was granted and a hearing set for Nov. 1 before Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton in B.C. Supreme Court, but it did not proceed because Ostler was not represented by counsel.

The provincial attorney-general's department then appointed Victoria lawyer Brian Smith to act for the judge and the matter was reset for Nov. 5. However, Smith asked for a further adjournment to the December date.

Peremiczky has been invited to attend the hearing as an "interested party."

Four Nations Sign Polar Bear Pact

OSLO (Reuter) — Five countries with polar bear populations agreed here Thursday on an almost total ban on hunting the animal, one of the biggest in the world, to save it from extinction.

At the end of a three-day conference, delegation leaders from Canada, the United States, Norway and Denmark signed the pact.

The leader of the Soviet delegation could not sign the agreement for formal reasons, but he said his government would do so by the end of next March.

The ban will be total except for limited hunting rights for Eskimos in Canada, Greenland and Alaska.

These rights are considered essential for the Eskimos, whose resources are limited. One condition is that the hunting must be by conventional methods and subject to control.

Under the agreement, which covers international waters and also provides for steps to protect the polar bears' environment, the five countries will see that their own citizens observe the ban.

Our Men in the South —They're a Sorry Lot

The attempt by an NDP member of Parliament to have our ambassador to Chile recalled, because of some messages that might be interpreted as an apology for the military goons who have taken over the country, is really quite funny if you happen to have a sardonic sense of humor.

I know it's not a subject that's going to grab you by the lapels, but it's surely time somebody put down the simple truth—that the official face of Canada everywhere throughout Latin-America is as reactionary and as resistant to desperately-needed change as any practising fascist you ever met.

I happen to know Andrew Ross, our man in Chile, and it's no surprise at all that, in his confidential cables to Ottawa, he should have seen the Chilean military thugs as a viable alternative to an elected, democratic government or that he should have urged quick Canadian recognition of the junta even while they were assassinating Chileans whose only crime was their belief in freedom of speech.

But "Andy" Ross is only typical of the career diplomats hand-picked by our people in external affairs and if the Trudeau government were to decide to recall him, which it won't, it would be just as reasonable to recall the whole bunch.

In two years of covering the nations of South America, as the first resident Canadian correspondent in that hemisphere, I was never anything less than appalled by the kind of man who is selected to represent us. They are not, in fact, representatives of a genuine Canadian attitude or opinion but representatives only of Canadian business. Like their American counterparts they are concerned with "stability." If that means rule by the gun that's just too bad.

In nations where, without exception, malnutrition means a cruelly shortened life expectancy for three out of every four children, our people live like millionaires. I never found one who was even remotely in touch with the realities of explosive societies in which a handful of the very rich keep in serfdom entire populations, always with the armed might of the privileged military in reserve when there's a threat to the oligarchy.

It can't be an easy task, finding men who are completely pragmatic, whose interest lies only in the status quo of trade and commerce, but somehow External Affairs has managed it.

One of the first, unforgettable sights when I began my two-year stint in Rio de Janeiro, only weeks after the military overthrow of the democratically elected government of President Goulart, was an oil portrait being painted by the wife of the then Canadian ambassador to Brazil, Paul Beaulieu. The subject was the economics minister appointed by the generals, a gent who, I gathered, was hugely enjoying his sittings in the baronial residence of our appointed envoy.

When I was threatened with expulsion from Brazil by the military—a move I circumvented by taking my family voluntarily to Argentina—our embassy took a strictly "hands off" view. If I was going to go on committing the "crimes" I was charged with—writing the story of grinding poverty in South America's largest and richest nation—then that was my affair, wasn't it?

It was only later that I came to realize there was a hard and fast line established by our people in Ottawa. When I wrote a story about the proposed Canadian embassy in the new capital of Brasilia I informed my editors that a sketch of the building, designed by Ned Pratt, of Vancouver, could be provided by External Affairs. The head of the Latin-American division there refused to release the sketch when he was told that it would illustrate my report. "We wouldn't want the Brazilian government to think that we're collaborating in any way with Scott," was the explanation. That "government" was—and is—a fascist dictatorship.

I was to find the same attitude by our appointed officials, at every level, wherever the news took me and, later, this was also the experience of Paul Kidd, of the Southams, who had a similar roving assignment.

Paul once told me, "Whenever I go into a Canadian embassy to find out some facts I'm pumped for the 'real story' of what's going on. All these people know is what they hear at their cocktail parties."

That was a common experience. If you found the occasional lower-echelon Canadian official who was troubled by the cynicism and the ignorance of his superiors you talked in whispers. Canadian and American business interests were what counted.

Andy Ross' estimate of the Chilean situation—that the military murderers had simply assumed "the probably thankless task" of sobering Chile up from a surfeit of politics (in other words that the blood bath could somehow be justified)—is right in character.

I do not believe our embassies throughout Latin-America can or should strive to influence events in that hemisphere, as the United States does through the CIA and through the supplying of arms. If we give our tacit approval to such machinations, as all the evidence suggests, it wins us neither friends nor enemies since we are totally without an expressed policy.

But I do believe that we should be represented by men and women who have a genuine concern in the future of millions of oppressed people, whose sole object should be a watching brief on a struggle that eventually will make Southeast Asia seem a picnic. Our people should know intimately what's going on and should be reporting the facts to Ottawa in the hope, however forlorn it may be, that we will some day take a stand for decency.

'Marks' Point To Capital Commission

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

There is "persistent evidence" to indicate the provincial government may soon establish a Provincial Capital Commission in Victoria, a city alderman said today.

Asked to comment on rumors to that effect, Ald. Mike Young said: "There are marks all over the globe that show this is going to happen."

But Young admitted he was "dealing strictly in hunches," and that the city had received no official intimation of any such move to establish a planning and development body similar to Ottawa's National Capital Commission.

Mayor Peter Pollen said he tended to think the rumors were strictly that, lacking any real substance. And Esquimalt MLA Jim Gorst, who has been the most outspoken advocate of a provincial capital commission, told the Times this morning he had heard nothing to indicate his proposals were receiving cabinet support.

Formed in 1959, the National Capital Commission is charged with the responsibility "to prepare plans for and assist in the development, conservation and improvement of the National Capital Region in order that the nature and character of the seat of government of Canada may be in accordance with its national significance."

It does not have jurisdictional authority over any of the municipal or regional authorities or the two provincial governments concerned.

Meanwhile, Pollen confirmed the provincial governmen had taken over from the city in negotiations with Marathon Realty Ltd. for purchase of the company's key property on the Inner Harbor near the Legislative Buildings.

'Gee, Be Our Guest'

Pollen said the city had been negotiating with Marathon Realty over the past six months on the basis of an understanding the provincial government would foot the bill of around $1 million.

But in the course of negotiations the acquisition area had grown to include a lot in the vicinity of Centennial Park, and as a result the price had risen by some $200,000, he said. "The provincial government seems to think this is excessive."

Pollen said the provincial authorities had asked if the city had any objections to the province taking over the negotiations, "and I said 'Gee, be our guest'."

But Pollen said he regrets the revised situation the Marathon deal leaked out in a radio news report, as this might prejudice the bargaining.

The provincial government is believed to be strongly in favor of acquiring the Marathon property for a number of reasons, but mainly because it eyes the pillared CP ticket office building — which now houses the Wax Museum on a long-term lease — as a possible provincial conference centre.

Young said the latest Marathon developments are an example of the "evidence" to which he was referring, but added: "That's coupled with about 12 other things."

"A number of things have happened that have convinced me we are only a few months away from a move of a fairly dramatic sort relating to provincial participation in development in the city," he said.

'It's Pretty Obvious'

"It's pretty obvious the provincial government foresees the opportunity to use money to try to establish political influence in the city of Victoria, where it has none at the present time.

"There is an excuse for moving in a fairly substantial way," Young added.

Young said he views the formation of a provincial capital commission with "considerable apprehension," as it would involve abdicating much responsibility for planning and development to a body which has no representation in the city.

He was concerned "particularly in the light of the motives that may be behind" such a move, he said.

Pollen said he has already told Premier Barrett he opposes the proposal as the Capital Improvement District Commission is already in existence and functioning well.

"By its very nature a provincial commission of this sort would have a tendency to exclude municipal participation. We have enough bureaucracy as it is," Pollen said.

Sell Car, Keep Those Plates

After next week, B.C. car owners will be required to hold on to their car licence plates even if their car is sold or traded, motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield said today.

The move is another step in the permanent licence plate system being adopted by the province. It will also be co-ordinated with the new car insurance scheme being initiated by the provincial government next year.

Hadfield said that after Nov. 24, people will be required to keep their licence plates when they sell, trade or dispose of their cars. The plates will then be used on any subsequent cars they buy, he said.

The same procedure will apply to other types of motor vehicles as well Hadfield said.

"By starting this new licensing control system now, a smooth move into the auto insurance plan can be made. We're confident that motor vehicle owners will adjust easily to the system and will be pleased with it," he said.

New transfer and registration forms will be available at motor vehicle branch offices to cover sales transactions after Nov. 24.

People who dispose of a vehicle and do not buy another one will be able to turn in their plates to a MVB office where they will be able to get a refund for the remaining portion of the licence year, Hadfield said.

Complete information for those persons buying vehicles will be available from dealers after Nov. 24, he said.

Emergency Plan Asked On Airport Crowding

An emergency plan to cope with increasing congestion at Victoria International Airport was called for by airport officials meeting with Ministry of Transport representatives today at the Empress Hotel.

Stan Mooney, an Air Canada official, stressed the need for some kind of plan to deal especially with congestion this summer.

He indicated thousands of additional passengers on chartered flights are expected to go through the Victoria terminal and asked for some assurance that measures would be taken in the near future.

"We're choking to death in the summer," Mooney told tre meeting organized by ministry officials to lay groundwork for the future needs of the airport.

All segments of the community — service clubs, airline officials and representatives of three level of government — were invited to the day-long meeting to discuss and plan the airport's needs for the next 20 years.

Transport official Des Allard said the ministry wanted advice from the community on a co-operative basis as part of an over-all master plan.

Advice for the future, however, became concern for the present, as delegates voiced their ideas.

Mooney said the congestion was "so bad last summer you couldn't get people in the terminal with a shoe horn.

"We want some emergency measures even if we have to push down walls."

Eric Anderson, MoT regional supervisor of planning, gave positive assurance that emergency requirements would be studied and "if need be we will knock down walls to handle the increase."

Officials said the congestion was not only limited to the reservation area, but customs clearance space and baggage procedure and inflight checks were also hampered by a lack of room.

A city representative was more concerned with over-all planning.

Graham Stallard, an assistant planner, said he would like to see thorough investigation into the whole transportation situation from both regional and national points of view.

He mentioned shuttle service plans and rapid transit systems linking Victoria and Vancouver with central Canada and stressed the need for an over-all master transit plan.

VOTE MONDAY ON GORGE PACT

About 350 employees at Gorge Road Hospital will meet Monday night to vote on a tentative contract.

Negotiators for the Hospital Employees Union and the B.C. Hospitals Association reached agreement in Vancouver Thursday after a final round of bargaining which began Monday.

The employees, all but registered nurses and paramedical personnel, had earlier voted 98.5 per cent to strike if necessary.

Details of the proposed contract are not being released before the ratification meeting. A location for the meeting is still being sought, a union spokesman said today.

Fire Hazard Brings Plea for Suite Curbs

Esquimalt council will be asked Monday to pass a 60-day moratorium on all apartment building construction permits, Ald. George McCreadie said today.

McCreadie will recommend the move as chairman of council's fire committee "to give council time to adjust a conflict of interpretation over height regulations for apartments."

The move follows the release of a report from retiring fire chief Earl Sarsiat that Esquimalt had "the most vulnerable frame structures" in Greater Victoria.

McCreadie said he requested the report about a month ago following his own brief inspection of a few apartment buildings.

"What we're concerned with here," he said, "are those buildings between three and six storeys high, which the National Building Code stipulates must be a mixture of combustible and non-combustible material."

Esquimalt's zoning bylaw now says that an apartment building must not exceed a maximum of 45 feet above the average finished grade of the site, he said.

"Average is the key word here," he added.

Depending on whether underground parking has been provided and whether the maximum height has been measured at the lowest point of the lot — "some apartment buildings seem to be five storeys high."

He said an amendment to the bylaw being considered would specify that "that type of building be limited to 35 feet above the average grade."

The fire chief has also pointed out that many of the taller buildings do not have a 30-foot wide area designed for fire trucks, as required by the building code.

Ald. McCreadie said the planning and zoning committee, chaired by Ald. Ken Hill, is studying a recommendation that the setback areas required for apartments be adjusted "to stop a tunnelling effect seen in the municipality after a tremendous burst of apartments."

Sarsait, who retires at the end of this year, said Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich all have more stringent bylaws regarding access of fire-fighting equipment to apartment buildings.

"Their bylaws also provide that plans of all buildings, other than private residences, must be . . . approved by the fire chief as well as the building inspectors."

Mayor Art Young, asked to comment on the report, said he'd rather wait until it was brought before council.

Super-Orr Pours It On Rangers

By Canadian Press

The superstar shone brilliantly again in the National Hockey League firmament Thursday night.

Bobby Orr, manoeuvring on mended knees, mauled New York Rangers almost single-handedly as Boston Bruins defeated New York Rangers 10-2.

Orr scored three goals on power-plays and spiced his performance with four assists to create a single-game record for an NHL defenceman with seven points. Pat Stapleton and Babe Pratt shared the previous record of six with Orr.

The victory allowed Bruins to move six points ahead of the second-place Buffalo Sabres in the East Division.

In the West, St. Louis Blues trampled Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3 to claim third place, one point ahead of the idle Chicago Black Hawks and a single point behind Atlanta Flames. Philadelphia Flyers, also having a night off, lead the division with 22 points.

The Bruins beat goalie Ed Giacomin three times in the first period and the Rangers were never able to recover.

"They rubbed the heck out of us in New York (Boston lost 7-3) and we wanted to beat them badly," Orr said in the dressing room.

"We wanted to get at them — but the big thing is the two points."

It was the fourth time in his career that Orr has produced three goals in a game.

"It was a nice feeling," he said modestly.

"On the first goal I just flipped the puck and it hit Giacomin on the chest. The other two goals went in off defencemen's legs.

Orr is now only seven points off the league-leading scoring pace set by team-mate Phil Esposito, who has 38 points. Esposito, also operating on dilapidated knees, protected his margin with four assists.

Meanwhile, back in St. Louis, the Blues slammed in three goals in the span of two minutes and 15 seconds in the first period to intimidate Pittsburgh Penguins.

Wayne Merrick was the first to beat Penguins' goalie Jim Rutherford and before he settled down, Gary Sabourin and Garry Unger followed through with singles.

"Those three quick goals just killed us," said Pittsburgh coach Ken Schinkel. "That was the game right there."

"We didn't play badly after those goals, but I didn't think we went into the corners well and we didn't react fast enough to the puck."

The Penguins rebounded for two goals against Blues' rookie John Davidson, but it was too late.

St. Louis coach Jean Guy Talbot said his team suffered a lapse after the first period spurt.

"We kind of fell asleep and started playing the way they did."

How About One Game Without One Fight!

An interesting week, beginning as it did with the B.C. Lions being laid to rest in Regina on Sunday. And the quote of the occasion came from Lions' quarterback Don Moorhead: "I'm not blaming our defence; I'm blaming (Ron) Lancaster. He's so great when he has to be." And there was no doubt the Roughriders were clearly superior, especially as the Lions had no excuses; they got the points (10) on the board early, which they figured they had to do to succeed. But after that it was game over. No contest.

I'll go along with coach Marv Levy of Montreal Alouettes, too, in his assault on the CFL rule which prohibits blocking on punt returns. "If the men in charge of the rules don't change the rule they're nothing but barbarians," said Levy, as two of his Als, Tony Proudfoot and Ron Perowne, were both injured while returning punts against Toronto. And it's rarely indeed that any punt return man can get through a full CFL season unscathed. There is no logical reason the punt return man shouldn't have protection. Besides, it would open up the game, and make for one of the most exciting plays in football — the runback.

Tuesday: A real surprise. The Cougars, oft maligned, came up hitting against Flin Flon, and were full value for their victory. And another thought: when the Cougars are skating they look capable of being a force in the Western Division of the Western Canada League. It's when they stand around waiting for someone else to get the job done, they're horrid. And it's not that hitting has to be the vindictive type; every time two players come together on the boards, it shouldn't be an excuse for a fight, either. This appears to be Flin Flon's method when early intimidation doesn't work. And quick now, when was it when there last was a junior game here without a fight? You know, at times the other night, the hockey was very good, end to end, and really, the youngsters don't have to keep on proving themselves, otherwise, do they? It gets tiresome after a while.

It's not that hockey players should be panty-waists either. But the game is robust enough without having a nightly punch-out, and that's the feeling of league president Ed Chynoweth as well. He said when he was here last week that he had no time for brawlers and stick swingers and that fines and suspensions will continue to be the order for the miscreants. And more power to him. A firm hand is needed, and welcome indeed.

Some selected shorties: Regarding exercisers, one slogan is: "staying well is a lot cheaper than getting well." Still, no exerciser is worth the output if a regular work pattern isn't followed. That's the only way physical benefits will follow. And one reason Victoria didn't get the Babe Ruth baseball world series in 1974 was that Abbeville, La., displayed more enthusiasm for the event. Still, Victoria has been advised not to be discouraged and another bid would be most welcome. It has been suggested too that perhaps Wilf Sadler could head up the local delegation simply because Sadler has had the past tournament experience considered necessary to make the event a success. Another criticism of Victoria was that the committee here didn't have all the answers the investigating board wanted, especially in regard to financing; and also there was little awareness in the city that a World Series could possibly come here. Sure, that's flag-waving a bit, but then how were the investigators to know that Victorians don't ever jump up and down over any event, do they? On the credit side were accommodations, and the report on Athletic Park will make Jack Morgan smile: "Victoria has an excellent stadium and not only was it the finest among the three cities but it would be one of the finest complexes ever for hosting a Babe Ruth World Series."

And, oh, yes, Keith Dagg who skipped Moe Hill, Dave Wilson and Neil Dickson to third place in the recent cashspiel IS eligible to play with that trio in the Consols. Dagg took the precaution of joining Playland earlier this year and the capsule report of a dinner meeting the foursome held Monday is that if they played that well (in the cashspiel) without having played together before, perhaps they could do well, hopefully very well, in the playdowns. Or as Dagg said: "If I play in the Consols (business commitments permitting) it will be with them." And it's not true that Victoria's senior women's basketball team, formerly First United Saints, but now with a sponsor, are about to be called Peter Pollen's Saints. G'nite all.

BOUNCING WAY toward weekend contests are smiling Saints Ronni Hind (left), Mairi-Anne Longmore and Marg Mainwaring (right). All three are expected to play major roles as Victoria Saints make bid for lead in Inter-City Senior "A" Women's Basketball League as they go against Simon Fraser University club. (See story below.) (Photograph by John McKay).

Saints Are Hoping to Keep Moe's Optimism Glowing

Don't be surprised if Moe Turner is letting an increase in optimism show these days.

Moe is the man who coached Victoria's First United Saints to Canadian juvenile and juvenile basketball titles in successive years and then decided to go after bigger game this season although the club was considered a shoo-in to retain the national junior crown.

Campaigning as Victoria Saints under the sponsorship of Peter Pollen Ford, the girls are bidding for honors in the Inter-City Senior "A" Women's Basketball League and thus are no longer eligible for playoff competition in junior ranks.

Before the Saints opened the season two weeks ago, Turner was considerably apprehensive. He heared his squad might have big defensive troubles against the heavier and rougher seniors and admitted he would be surprised if his girls made it the national final.

Two league games have gone by and now Moe is convinced the Saints are capable of competing at the senior level and daring to hope they will have a shot at winning the Inter-City League crown.

They broke even in their two outings on the mainland, defeating UBC Jayvees 43-36 after dropping a 51-37 decision to Vancouver Buzzbombs when the Victorians connected on only nine of 42 shots from the floor in the opening half.

Further fuel for Turner's chore of assessing future prospects will be available this weekend when the Saints open the home portion of their schedule with an opportunity to step into first place.

Tied for second place with Simon Fraser University, they go against the SFU lassies in a pair of games while pacesetting Vancouver (2-1) has an idle weekend.

Saints and SFU clash at Victoria High School Saturday night at 8:30 after Cedar Hill and Colquitz junior high school boys' teams tangle at 7.

On Sunday, the senior women's squads wrap up their series in a 1 p.m. game at Oak Bay High School prior to another junior high school contest, this one between Highrock and Oak Bay squads.

Biggest worries for the Victorians would be provided by a pair of national team members who are playing with the Simon Fraser crew that has seven returnees from last season.

One of them is Bev Bland, a five-foot, 10-inch forward who rates as a strong scoring threat. The other is Sheila Stripe, the tallest player in the league, who is a doubtful starter because of an ankle injury.

Even if Sheila, a six-three centre who can dominate the backboards, doesn't get into action, the coeds will have still several experienced campaigners and the Saints might have a rugged time in their attempt to fan even brighter the spark of Turner's optimism.

Blazer Hero Gets Ovation At Vancouver

Times News Services

Rookie Claude St. Sauveur's third goal of the game with less than two minutes left gave Vancouver Blazers a 7-5 victory over Minnesota Fighting Saints in a World Hockey Association game Thursday night at Vancouver.

A crowd of 7,786 gave St. Sauveur a standing ovation when he broke a 5-5 tie at 18:20 of the final period. St. Sauveur's unassisted goal came when Minnesota defenceman Rick Smith fell at the Blazer blueline, creating a three-on-one Vancouver break. St. Sauveur used his linemates as decoys as he blasted a 35-footer past Minnesota goaltender Mike Curran.

The Blazers, who twice trailed by two goals, added the final marker with 20 seconds left in the game as Don Burgess, with his second goal of the game, scored into an empty Minnesota net.

Other Vancouver scorers were rookies Denis Meloche and Jim Adair.

Mike Walton, the former Boston Bruins player, led the Fighting Saints with one goal and three assists. Terry Ball, Murray Heatley, Smith and George Morrison also scored for Minnesota.

St. Sauveur then gave the Blazers their second straight victory following 11 consecutive losses, a WHA record.

In other games, defending-champion New England Whalers defeated Quebec Nordiques 5-3 while Chicago Cougars dropped Houston Aeros, 3-2.

Better Never Than Late . . .

The way things turned out for Kamloops Chiefs Thursday night, they would have been better off if the fog had never lifted at Calgary International Airport.

The Chiefs were 90 minutes late for their Western Canada Hockey League game at Medicine Hat against the Tigers because of poor weather at Calgary, and when they finally arrived, they were thrashed by Medicine Hat 7-2.

In the other game, Swift Current Broncos increased their unbeaten streak to five games with a 6-1 victory over the Wheat Kings at Brandon.

When their plane couldn't land at Calgary because of fog, the Chiefs landed at Edmonton. But the fog soon lifted at Calgary and the team flew back and then took a bus to Medicine Hat.

The Gassoff brothers, Ken and Brad, each scored two goals for the Tigers, who moved to within two points of Western Division leader Calgary Centennials. Greg Vaydik, Ed Johnstone and Barry Dean rounded out the scoring, with Greg Millyard and Randy Andreachuk replying for Kamloops.

Swift Current was led by Brian Back's two-goal performance. Dave Williams, Ian McPhee, Willie Friesen and David George had the other goals for the Broncos, who are in fourth place in the east, only four points out of sight.

Rick Blight scored the only Brandon goal.

'Embarrassed' Riders Ready for Eskimos

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders still feel the bruises and embarrassment of their 28-16 loss to Edmonton Eskimos on the final weekend of the Western Football Conference season, head coach John Payne said Thursday night as they arrived to prepare for the sudden-death final here Sunday afternoon.

The coach said he has detected a difference in the attitude of his players as the countdown continues, "but it's always hard to read a veteran team and I haven't been able to read this one."

He refused to predict the outcome, saying:

"Our players remember that Edmonton embarrassed us a little bit the last time we were here."

Saskatchewan demolished British Columbia Lions 33-13 last weekend in a sudden-death semi-final.

Payne said in an interview that slotback Tom Campana will play and there will be no changes in the 32-member lineup. Campana wrenched a knee in the win over B.C.

"We've still got a lot of bumps and bruises," Payne said, "and if the field is as hard as we expect it to be, the injuries will be compounded."

He considered Edmonton's two-week layoff since winning the regular-season championship "a big advantage for them."

He noted the return of all-star Charlie Turner to his offensive tackle spot for Edmonton, and said that should make the club a little more solid.

"I wouldn't be surprised if Edmonton made another change, too," he said. "They could put Gene Foster in at fullback."

By all indications, Edmonton head coach Ray Jauch expects to leave Foster on the sidelines and use Calvin Harrell, a standout in his only game this season.

The Sunday game will feature 15 members of the WFC all-star team, eight Eskimos and seven Roughriders.

One of the all-stars, Turner, is one of three Eskimos to play on Grey Cup winners.

Turner was a member of Hamilton Tiger-Cats' in 1967. Garry Lefebvre won while with Montreal in 1970 and Bill Cooper won with Ottawa Rough Riders in 1968 and 1969.

Edmonton has a chance to reach the Grey Cup for the first time since 1960, when Ottawa posted a 16-6 victory.

Saskatchewan's Grey Cup experience is almost legendary. Most of the veterans have made it at least once.

Young Runners To Race Sunday

Victoria Mercuries Track Club, forced to postpone the Greater Victoria age-class cross-country championships because of snow on Nov. 4, will stage the event Sunday at Beaver Lake Park.

Competitors may enter from 12:15 p.m. on at the park and the first race is scheduled to get under way at 1.

TORONTO VETERAN Abbie Hoffman (above) will be in strong open women's field Saturday in Canadian national cross-country championships at Beaver Lake Park. Defending-champion Grant McLaren will head Ontario's team in open men's event. Meet, which also includes four age-class races and has attracted 343 athletes on 37 teams representing all provinces from B.C. to Quebec, combined Atlantic provinces team and squad from Oregon, gets under way at noon.

RAIDERS ESCAPE 'TRICKERY' RAP

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League has cleared Oakland Raiders of all charges of "dirty tricks" levelled at them by Pittsburgh Steelers following last Sunday's game in Oakland.

The Steelers won the game, 17-9, then complained that the Raiders had smeared their uniforms with a greasy substance, had under-inflated the footballs and had written obscenities on one of them. There were also complaints that the Oakland Coliseum clock was not operated properly.

Don Weiss, the National Football League's director of public relations, said the league had investigated the charges and was unable to substantiate any of them.

"We've completed our look into the situation," he said. "Pittsburgh talked about clock problems, apparently involving an Oakland field goal on the last play of the first half. All six officials said there were no problems with the clock.

"As for the deflated ball," Weiss said, "all were checked, as prescribed by rule, by the officials prior to the game." He said the rule calls for 12½-13½ pounds of pressure and that there were no problems. And, he added, "balls were changed frequently because of the rainy, wet weather."

"When Ray Mansfield the Pittsburgh centre told the umpire, Tom Hensley, he felt one ball was under-inflated, Hensley honored his request automatically, just as he would honor any other request, and replaced the ball.

"No official saw any ball with anything written on it, nor was it brought to their attention."

"Regarding the charges about 'sticky stuff,' " Weiss said, "at the request of the Steelers, one of the Oakland offensive linemen, guard George Buehler, was checked by Hensley. He reported no Vaseline or greasy substance of any kind."

DEATH OR REPRIEVE?

LONDON (AP) — The Grand National, the world's greatest steeplechase race, which has had an uncertain future for years, is due to receive its final death sentence — or a permanent reprieve.

Against a background of at least three bids to purchase the historic Aintree Course near Liverpool, the horse world has been waiting for months to hear whether the race, first run in 1837, would take place in 1974.

Mrs. Mirable Topham, 82-year-old matriarch of the family that controls Aintree, says she will break her long silence Monday on the issue at a news conference in London.

The main problem for the family has been that apart from the Grand National, the Aintree Course is an expensive white elephant that is used only a few hours each year.

Mrs. Topham has announced several times that each Grand National was the last. But somehow the spectacular race, which covereс over four miles and 30 mammoth fences, has survived.

Hardy Salmon Fishermen Still Manage to Connect

Adverse weather conditions this past week again kept all but the most ardent salmon fishermen off the water.

The hardy individuals who did venture out, however, managed to catch more than a cold in a number of spots around Vancouver Island.

Buzz-bombers are landing winter chinooks up to 12 pounds around the log booms in Becher Bay. Trollers using between 12 ounces and one pound of weight with about 70 feet of line and a minnow are catching winter chinooks up to 18 pounds from the Pedder Bay kelp bed to Fossil Point.

Trial Island waters remain the best choice for fishermen going out from Oak Bay and a few coho are still showing up among a fair return of chinooks.

Limits of jack chinooks were recently taken off Moses Point and in scattered locations along Satellite Channel.

Jacks and limits of bluebacks have been boated around Senanus Island, Indian Bay and near Bamberton. Flashtails, hootchies and small spoons fished near the surface right at dawn work best.

Misery Bay and Chesterfield Rock waters are yielding jacks and the odd coho to buzz-bombers and trollers using a Krippled-K spoon.

Chums and coho form the main catch at Cowichan Bay and chinooks ranging from eight to 10 pounds are being caught in Dodd's Narrows, near Harmac and around the Fingers. Fishermen either strip-casting or trolling at the 120-foot level have been most successful in the last three spots.

Buzz-bombers are still picking up "dog" salmon off Qualicum and a very limited number of fishermen are still hitting chinooks near Campbell River.

On the freshwater scene . . .

Steelheaders are connecting near Skutz Falls and the Riverbottom area of the Cowichan River as well as at various spots along the Ash and Gold systems. Anglers should note the Cowichan is now closed to all fishing from the weir downstream to the CNR bridge.

Trout fishing is good in Shawnigan Lake for anglers trolling a fly.

Quamichan and Somenos lakes are also producing on paste or lake troll and worm.

Nanaimo anglers using dry flies are picking up some succulent trout in Brannan Lake.

NIBBLES: Some hunters on Vancouver Island apparently didn't read the rules (or a reminder in this space last week) that the bag limit on antlerless deer is one (1) this season . . . One conservation officer confiscated 12 extra animals and another collected six on the opening weekend . . . The antlerless season ends Sunday but bucks remain fair game until Dec. 2 for rifle shooters and Dec. 9 for archers.

Sportsmen on Vancouver Island should note that the regional office of the fish and wildlife branch in Nanaimo has been moved from the court house to 321 Terminal Avenue.

Chinook Club members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will hold their monthly Frostbite Derby from dawn to 2 p.m. Sunday.

Winter has certainly arrived with a vengeance this year . . . After nearly having to float the four-by-four over a low-elevation stream, I found fishing plans scuttled by about four inches of ice on Ranger Lake in the Sooke hills . . . Doesn't it seem a little early for outdoor skating?

BOWLER OF WEEK

Powerful finish with 339 third game gave Jack Scott men's fivepin honors in sixth week of 11th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Jack earned weekly award that qualifies him for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs by topping fivepinners with 305-253-339—899 series in Wednesday Classic League at Cush's Bowl-A-Golf Spa.

Wenman Named To Cricket Side

Jim Wenman of Victoria has been named to Canada's national cricket team which will tour England next July.

Wenman, a right-hand bat and slick fielder with the Incogs Club, was 12th man when Canada played the United States in a three-day test match here last summer.

One Island Squad Will Make Final

RICHMOND Vancouver Island is assured of a finalist in the B.C. high school soccer championship.

Reynolds Roadrunners, who won both league and playoff titles in the Victoria Senior High School Leage, were to meet Nanaimo today in one championship semi-final.

Burnaby North, winners of the B.C. crown for three of the last four years, were to play Vancouver Gladstone in the other semi-final. The final is set for Saturday night.

Playing for the first time in a provincial championship, Reynolds crushed Kitimat 6-0 and then downed Carson Graham of North Vancouver 6-1 in round-robin competition Thursday.

Victoria's league scoring champion Howie Kirk hammered in four goals—two in each game — for Reynolds. Drew Finnerty scored twice against Kitimat while Greg Booth and Tom Jones got the other goals. Richard Gurney joined Kirk as a two-goal scorer against Carson Graham and Booth and Ken Garraway were the other scorers.

Nanaimo downed Chilliwack 3-1 and then shocked favored Killarney of Vancouver 3-0.

Burnaby North made it to thesemi-finals at the expense of two Vancouver Island squads. Burnaby downed Alberni 4-0 and then edged Mt. Douglas, runner-up in the Victoria League, 1-0.

Gladstone reached the semis with a 6-1 win over Nelson and a 1-0 decision over Centennial of Coquitlam.

Joe Achadinha scored to give Mt. Doug a 1-0 win over Abbotsford.

Trailers Topple League Leaders

Last-place Victoria Nixon's Trucking toppled front-running Juan de Fuca Metro Toyota Gulls 8-5 Thursday night in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

In the only other game, Esquimalt A and W and Saanich Block Brothers Braves fought to a 5-5 deadlock at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Nixons picked up their second win in 11 starts while handing Gulls their second loss in the same number of games.

Steve Leatham (2), Tony Valdiva (2), Rob Wilson (2), Mike Wolski and Kerry Blain scored for Nixons while Dave Archibald (2), Barry McLachlan (2) and Tim Clarkson replied for Gulls.

Darryl Borden (2), Yvon Clavette, Tom Davies and Brent Patterson scored for Saanich while John Entzminger, Terry Brewster, Paul Carson, John Bechtold and Rick Fisher counted for Esquimalt.

Gorge Molsons At Full Strength

"When we have a full team, I don't think anyone can beat us," coach Dave Keith said earlier this week of his young Gorge Molsons.

Well, the Victoria players get their chance to show Keith is right Saturday when they take on Vancouver Olympic Columbians at 2 p.m. in a B.C. Soccer League game at Royal Athletic Park.

Molsons, with strikers Dan Henry and Ken Paton back in the lineup, are at full strength. Henry and Paton didn't make the ferry last Sunday when Molsons lost 2-0 to Italia in Vancouver.

John Iruretagoyena will be in goal and the back four will be Dennis Somner, Doug Marshall, Joe Poulton and Wainig Lee. John McGuire and Mark Robb will be at midfield and the forwards will be Henry, George Hyne, Paton and Steve Forslund.

Doug Bisson, Bob Mackie and Bob Duncan will be on the bench.

Columbians are a talented squad of players from Britain, led by ex-pro Bobby Cram. Victoria London Boxing Club needed three second-half goals to edge Columbians 3-2 on their last visit here.

Brian Robinson, in Haiti last weekend with the Canadian national team, returns to the lineup when the Boxers take on Vancouver Sporting Club at Vancouver's Empire Stadium Sunday.

Ski Report

Snow continues to drift down at higher elevations in the Pacific Northwest and three ski areas will be operating this weekend.

Snow conditions this morning:

WHISTLER MOUNTAIN: Snowing lightly, 26 degrees, three inches new snow, 30-inch mid-station total and 48-inch alpine total, opening Saturday.

MT. BAKER: Snowing, 28 degrees, 10 inches new snow, 48-inch total, open Saturday and Sunday.

CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN: Snowing, 29 degrees, four inches new snow 32-inch total, operating chairs 1, 2, 3 and 4 as well as two rope tows.

Cost of Fuel

CV100 Universal Combustion Catalyst

For Gas, Diesel, Home and Bunker Fuel

Regular Use of CV100 will:

- Give fuel savings of 10-20 per cent
- Improve starting characteristics
- Reduce or eliminate combustion chamber build-up and attendant problems
- Reduce air pollution dramatically

NOTE:

There is a conditioning period of 300-600 miles before mileage improvement will be noticed; dependent upon the mileage and mechanical condition of the vehicle involved.

CV-100 BEATS HIGH COST OF FUEL . . . HELPS STOP POLLUTION

Ever since the advent of internal combustion engines for gas and diesel vehicles, there has been continuous research into methods of producing fuels that will provide more power and better performance, to keep up with the constant demands of the automotive industry.

The increased awareness by the public of Air Pollution, caused by the exhaust fumes from cars, buses, trucks, ships, trains, as well as stack emissions from residential and industrial furnace operations, has added even greater impetus to the search. Now, the demand is not only for fuels that will be more efficient as far as power and performance is concerned; but, will reduce or eliminate the pollution content of the exhaust stack emissions.

All types of fuel (gasoline, diesel, home oil, etc.) because of their chemical composition and the varying conditions under which they are used, plus the difficulty in operating mechanical equipment at peak levels of efficiency indefinitely, equates out to varying degrees of "Incomplete Combustion" of fuel.

Incomplete or Poor Combustion Lost Fuel (Energy, Heat) Potential Wasted Fuel Dollars and Pollution.

This Lost Potential Fuel can be utilized with the use of CV-100, Universal Combustion Catalyst.

The Carvern Petrochemical Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, B.C. and Fort Erie, Ontario, has developed CV-100, a product that very definitely contributes to improved combustion of fuels with noticeable reductions in air pollution, improved efficiencies of engine and furnace operations and elimination of hard carbon deposits.

Realizing that many fuel users would be skeptical, and/or would not have the time or economic resources to conduct thorough evaluation programs; extensive laboratory and field testing was undertaken, before CV-100 was introduced to the retail market.

Tests and evaluations of CV-100 in varying areas of fuel use were conducted by such recognized institutions as the Engineering Department of the University of California; Department of Technology, Western Washington State College; Oil Institute of Washington, and Sealake Laboratories of Toronto, Ontario.

A sampling of field tests by companies and responsible individuals was also organized to substantiate that the laboratory reports, conducted under ideal conditions, appealed to the varying conditions in the field.

To date, these private and industrial users have compiled impressive documentation of their own, illustrating the many benefits of CV-100.

Tests, properly conducted, will show results. But, consideration has to be given to the variables affecting a test of CV-100 treated fuel, in day-to-day situations of automobile, truck or furnace operations.

If these variables are not taken into account, there will be limitations as to the value of the test and improvements noticed.

For example, in vehicles, the weather, load, terrain and individual driver characteristics have to be taken into account, before an accurate conclusion can be reached.

Any individual or company requiring assistance or further information on the use or application of CV-100, can contact the Carvern Petrochemical Co. in Vancouver.

Ben Bags Nine Birds As Rivals Struggle

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Rookie Ben Crenshaw has put himself in position to win an unprecedented second consecutive professional golf title—and this one for the biggest prize the game has ever offered.

The 21-year-old from the University of Texas stampeded past 25 players and into a share of second place with a seven-under-par 64 in gusty, swirling winds and now is six strokes back of struggling leader Tom Watson in the $500,000 World open golf tournament.

"I'm still pretty far back, but at least I'm in contention," Crenshaw said after Thursday's sixth round in this two-week, 144-hole event that offers a record $100,000 to the winner. The tournament ends Saturday.

"I don't believe I'll shoot two more 64s, but I'd like to have two more rounds in the 60s, 68 or 69. I'd like to have two more good rounds like that and see what happens," said Crenshaw.

He had a 429 total, three over par for six rounds on the 7,007-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Watson struggled to a 76, five over par, but managed to maintain his six-stroke lead when only Crenshaw could take advantage of his lapses. He had a 423 total and, at three under, was the only man in the field at subpar figures.

Crenshaw was tied at 429 with Miller Barber, who had a 73, and Jerry Heard, who carded 72.

Allen Miller was alone at 430 after a 70, with Bobby Mitchell and Leonard Thompson at 431. Thompson had 72 and Mitchell 75.

Gibby Gilbert, who led through the first four rounds and was alone in second going into Thursday's play, took an 82, 11 over par, and fell out of title contention at 435.

Watson had tied the course record with a 62 on Wednesday.

"Of course I'm disappointed," said Watson, a second-year touring pro who has yet to win, "but there's some consolation that I'm still leading by six strokes.

"But the pack got closer. I'll have to play a lot better than that to win."

"I played some exceptional golf," admitted Crenshaw. "I believe it's the best I've ever played in competition."

He had two bogeys—both after windblown shots missed the sloping greens—and nine birdies. Four times he hit irons inside of three feet, once hitting the flagstick with his second shot and needing only a four inch tap-in. He made three birdies from about 15 feet. Another came on a 25 foot putt. Another came from 35 or 40 feet.

Arnold Palmer had the day's next-best round, a 68. He has still 13 strokes off the pace at 436.

Vikings Triumph As Leaders Clash

Stocker North Americans will attempt to gain a little revenge while taking on University of Victoria Vikings in an interlocking intermediate "A" hockey game tonight at 9:15 in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Vikings, current leaders of the Vancouver Island League, dropped Stockers, first-place club in the Victoria League, 3-1 in a game Thursday night at Pearkes Arena.

Dave Burdge, Greg Bush and Rick Piechotta scored for Vikings while Dave Williams replied for Stockers.

Greg Larson turned aside 24 shots in the UVic net and Steve Kishkan blocked 21 shots for Stockers.

Top Teams Chalk Up Hoop Wins

London Boxing Club Seniors and Hotel Douglas maintained their one-two pace atop the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League with a pair of victories Thursday night.

Seniors picked up a sixth straight win with a 78-55 decision over Merchants at S. J. Willis Junior High School and Hotel Douglas tumbled Arctic Installation 65-59 at Victoria Hgih School.

Dave Wirtanen led Seniors with 19 points, one more than the total contributed by clubmate Bob Wiley. Dave Crawley and Steve Duck each fired 12 points for Merchants.

Corky Jossul (19 points) and John Lauvaas (15) paced Hotelmen while Jim Nemec topped Arctic with 13 points.

Champs Fall In Cup Play

MELBOURNE (AP) — Australia and Czechoslovakia were tied 1-1 after the first two singles of the Davis Cup tennis semi-finals Friday in a day in which champions tumbled.

John Newcombe, the United States titleholder and Australian No. 1 player, was defeated in four sets by 23-year-old Jiri Hrebec.

Wimbledon champion and Czech top performer Jan Kodes went down in three straight sets to veteran Rod Laver.

The unheralded Hrebec injected new life into the Czech team with his 6-4, 8-10, 9-4, 7-5 victory over Newcombe. Not even Czech team manager Antonin Bolardt had given Hrebec any chance against Newcombe.

It Pays to Study the Rules

It pays to keep boned up on the racing rules.

Royal Victoria Yacht Club's John Graeme learned this Saturday when he competed in frostbite sailing at Cadboro Bay.

Immediate past commodore of the club, John hadn't realised that there'd been a few changes in the rule book during the time he's been snarled up in officialdom.

Racing his Davidson, Saturday, he was well in front until he fouled a boat racing in another section.

"Like the gallant guy he is," reports Ted Bowers, "He prepared to withdraw, just as the rules demanded in the old days."

Ten, who was lying second in Davidsons at the time, waited until he'd passed John to let him know that now it's possible to keep on racing if the boat does two complete turns as a penalty.

This is one rule that John, who had to settle for second place, will never forget!

John Eadon pulled off a good over-all win in Enterprise racing, especially since he sailed the two-man boat as a loner.

Hans Fryholm won in Lasers. Nancy Lovett edged out Milke Williams for top spot in El Toro competition.

Racing begins at 1:30 p.m. Saturday with the two-man Enterprises and Fireballs on patrol duty. There will be series racing for Davidsons and Lasers and fun racing for the El Toro fleet.

Forty-six boats turned out for two races of the Turkey Head Sailing Association, sailed in light fickle winds off Oak Bay on Sunday.

The first race was won by Miles Dighton's Obsession.

Division winners were: Cruising A, Obsession; Cruising B, Sweet Jane; Thunderbirds, Umpka; Haidas, James Malone's 'Crusader'; Crown 23s, Bon Homie, and Cal 20s, J. B. Ayers.

Thunderbirds captured the first five positions in the second race, Pahquee beating out Glen Higgins' Freeway, Rod McBride's Limolo, John Thomson's Sea-Jay and Umpka. Then came Sea Spell, Obsession, Kim, Departure and Ariel II.

Division winners this time were: Cruising A, Sea Spell; Cruising B, Jack Foster's Illusive; Thunderbirds, Pahquee, Crown 23s, Bon Homie, and Cal 20s, J. B. Ayers.

Many of the boats that competed will be out again Sunday to take part in a long-distance pacer, staged by RVYC. Start time is 10 a.m. in the vicinity of Flower Island at Cadboro Bay.

At the same time boats of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club will be starting a six-miler in waters off Sidney.

CBSC's last Sunday race was "scrubbed" by Gordie Inglis, who with Peter White steered the club through its birth pangs. That was the day that snow and gale-force winds made sailing a misery.

Even so, 12 boats turned out. But, as Gordie explains, there was at least one small boat out there without lifelines. So, rather than put anyone in danger, Gordie, who we all know will take on any kind of weather, decided to call it a day. Let's hope this Sunday will be kinder.

The last race of the Saturday series was won by Alan Dickinson's Viking.

John Davis was elected chairman of the five-year-old Elk Lake Sailing Association at the club's annual meeting. Backing him up as table officers are vice-chairman Gordon Buffett, fleet captain Tony Sayle and secretary-treasurer Lillian Buffett.

Awards were given to Ian Maxwell, John Thomas and Randy Maxwell, who placed in top three spots during the small boats A series. In the larger dinghies it was Rev. Hilliard and Pete Hemphill. Top placers in small boat racing in B series were Dan Maxwell, Randy Maxwell and Daryl Calder. Rev. also on the B series for big boats.

Put a GOODMAN on council who is a competent manager with proven leadership ability.

He will insist upon proper development planning by—

1. Formulating a long-range plan for zoning in conjunction with the other municipalities.
2. Imposing stricter controls on—
   Gas station and shopping centre locations;
   Sizes and types of signs;
   Spot zoning.
3. Instituting a design panel so that commercial property construction will blend into the neighborhood.

China In, Taiwan Out

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — China was ruled a full member of the Asian Games by the Games Federation council today. The decision simultaneously ousted Taiwan, which has participated since the Games began in 1951.

It was agreed on a majority vote after proposals supporting "one-China" and "two-China" policies were debated by 19 countries taking part in the Games.

Selecting Backfield Stars Easiest Task in the West

TORONTO (CP) — Selectors didn't have any problem picking an all-star backfield in the Western Football Conference—only one player wasn't a unanimous choice.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders, Roy Bell of Edmonton and Johnny Musso of British Columbia Lions were unanimous selections.

Roughrider George Reed missed by one vote. It went to John Bledsoe of Winnipeg Blue Bombers—and the vote was not cast by a Winnipeg selector.

The only other unanimous choice on the team was wide-receiver George McGowan of Edmonton.

On defence Bill Baker of Saskatchewan amassed more votes than any other player and he was one short of a perfect score.

The team was picked by members of the Football Reporters of Canada in the five WFC cities. Voting figures were not made available.

Edmonton placed eight players on the team, Saskatchewan seven, Calgary five anl B.C. and Winnipeg three each.

There was a three-way tie for offence centre—Bob Swift of the Blue Bombers, Basil Bark of Calgary Stampeders and Bob Howes of the Eskimos.

Joining Reed and Lancaster on the offence squad from Saskatchewan were the Roughriders' guards Ralph Galloway and Jack Abendschan.

Rookie wide-receiver Tom Forzani of Calgary was the second Stamp on the squad—Bark being the other.

Lefty Hendrickson of the Lions was picked at tight end with tackles Bill Frank of Winnipeg and Charlie Turner of the Eskimos rounding out the offence.

Four rookies made the defence squad, two from Saskatchewan. They were Lorne Richardson, a Canadian, and Ted Provost, both defence backs from the Riders, and Roger Goree of the Stamps and Sam Britts of the Eskimos, both outside linebackers.

Other members of the defence backfield were Frank Andruski of Calgary, Gene Lakusiak of Winnipeg and Larry Highbaugh of Edmonton.

Ray Nettles, the WFC's nominee for best lineman in the CFL, was chosen as the middle linebacker.

The front four were John Helton of Calgary at one tackle with John LaGrone of Edmonton at the other. Ron Estay of Edmonton was Baker's partner at end.

Ironically, Estay and Highbaugh were picked up by Edmonton after being released by the Lions.

Richardson, a native of Moose Jaw, received most votes among the defence backfielders.

The three running backs all gained more than 1000 yards. Bell led the CFL with 1455 yards, Reed had 1103—it was the eighth time in nine years the super back has been over the 1000-yard mark—and Musso had 1029.

Only four offence players were on last year's team, Reed, Swift, Frank and Turner while on defence, Baker, Helton, LaGrone, Nettles, Lakusiak and Andruski were members of the 1972 squad.

MIKE YOUNG

Dear Elector,

Our City must remain a place where my family and yours will continue to live happily. It must not be desecrated like other North American cities by haphazard development. Council must provide the initiative in planning, and set the standards for development by private enterprise.

Many people have chosen Victoria as a place to live at reduced or fixed incomes, and we must limit the level of taxation. The conservation of our existing parks costs little and means much. Raw sewage must be removed from our beaches to make them fit for our children and ourselves.

My commitment is to the future, not the past, and I ask for your support.

Nixon Tried to Discourage Trial of Aides

WASHINGTON (WP) — The White House has attempted to discourage the possible indictment of three former top presidential aides in Watergate related cases in the last several months on the grounds that prosecution would jeopardize national security, according to informed sources.

Certain federal indictments of former presidential aides John Ehrlichman, Charles Colson and Egil (Bud) Krogh Jr. would threten national security, the sources said, because the three men might disclose other covert national security operations as part of their defence.

White House special counsel J. Fred Buzhardt lobbied heavily over the summer and early fall with former attorney-general Elliot Richardson and former special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, arguing that indictments of Ehrlichman, Colson and Korogh could not be brought.

The president's position is that certain cases could not be brought and if they were, the prosecutions would have to be dropped, one knowledgeable source said.

All sources agreed the disclosures would be embarrassing, and that the activities in question include other physical surveillance.

There was strong disagreement among the sources whether the public disclosure of these activities, of which Ehrlichman, Colson and Krogh have some knowledge, would actually jeopardize national, security, or whether disclosure would simply constitute another embarrassment to the Nixon administration.

The discouragement, according to the sources, had to do with related matters such as — though not necessarily including — the wire-taps on the telephones of syndicated columnist Joseph Kraft and the president's brother F. Donald Nixon.

In April of this year, the the

In April of this year, the president attempted to prevent the justice department from providing information on the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist to the Los Angeles court where Ellsberg was on trial. This was done on the grounds the information might adversly affect national security.

Richard Kleindienst, who was then attorney-general, balked at the president's decision and insisted that the information be supplied. It was forwarded to the judge in the case after a delay of about 10 days. The Ellsberg case was subsequently dismissed.

Sources in the last two weeks have said that still undisclosed national security operations "overlap" and are "intertwined" with matters under investigation by the Watergate special prosecutor's office.

"It's unavoidably under one subject heading," one White House source said. "Ehrlichman and Colson and Krogh, to a lesser extent, realize they have a lever . . . If they're to defend themselves and be given every opportunity, they they might blow the lid on the rest."

The sources said that in the scale of national priorities, the White House still feels it is more important to protect national security than to proceed with prosecution in several cases.

"Here we go again," the source said. "It's going to be taken as another cover-up . . . when this comes out, as it will inevitably, we're going to be back at square one."

Nixon Pressured On Hike

WASHINGTON (WP) — House and Senate records confirm President Nixon's contention he was under massive Democratic pressure for a dairy price increase in 1971, when he ordered a controversial boost in government price supports.

Nixon has been accused of reversing himself and raising dairy price supports from $4.66 a hundredweight to $4.93 on March 26, 1971, in return for pledges of political contributions from dairy industry organizations which subsequently gave $427,500 to his campaign.

According to Rep. Robin Beard (R-Tenn.), Nixon, questioned about this charge in meetings with Congressmen earlier this week, said Democrats on Capitol Hill, led by Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.), House speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), were the ones who exerted the most pressure for the dairy price boost.

As well, former treasury secretary John Connally told the Senate Watergate committee he knows nothing of allegations the dairy industry recieved the favorable price rulings in return for the huge campaign contribution.

After appearing before the committee in executive session for nearly three hours Thursday, Connally told reporters he also denied he received $15,000 personally for setting up the dairy industry contributions.

Connally and Treasury Secretary George Shultz have both been questioned by the committee concerning their knowledge of the favorable decisions granted the dairy men that were related closely in time to payment of campaign contributions.

At the end of December, 1971, Nixon reduced import quotas on cheese and related products. The ruling was two weeks after he received a letter from a political ally and dairy industry spokesman pledging $2 million in contributions.

The following March the administration increased price supports for milk. The move came three days after the dairy industry contributions began.

Sugar Tied To Ills

EDMONTON (CP) — Hypochondriacs may be suffering from a dietary deficiency rather than imaginary illness, says Dr. J. B. Bennett of Sherwood Park, an Edmonton suburb.

Nearly 100 per cent of all hypochondriacs, and 60 per cent of the general population, have hypoglycemia or a low blood-sugar level, he told a meeting of the Canadian Schizophrenia Foundation.

Hypoglycemia, characterized by dizzy spells and head, stomach and back aches, may be caused by eating too much "vitamin-enriched" bread and refined sugar.

Bennett, a graduate of Oxford University, said the vitamin-enriched bread may have been supplemented with two or three vitamins but it lost 16 other important substances in the milling process.

Western man began eating sugar only about 1600 and his body is inadequately equipped to use it. Sugar burns up quickly in the body and too much sugar can also burn up vitamins.

Hypoglycemia, which can cause hallucinations, is often diagnosed as schizophrenia.

ONE TO ONE IDEA GROWS

Math and science teachers are in greatest demand by the One to One tutoring program which started here this fall, says program founder Ron Spence.

The program, which supplies volunteer tutors for children or adults needing help with their studies, is free to anyone who needs it.

Spence, a teacher at Richmond elementary, says volunteer teachers now include housewives who once were teachers, a university PhD student, a carpenter, student teachers and Greater Victoria school trustee Daphne Temple.

Students include high school and university students wanting help in chemistry and math, an Italian woman getting help with English, a tradesman getting help in technical math, and several Indian children being coached in arithmetic and reading.

Spence's wife Gail takes calls from interested students or volunteer teachers at 385-3166, and they are looking for a volunteer to help take phone calls.

CHILDHOOD SWEETHEARTS Bill Pratt of Waltham, Mass., and Kathleen Champaigne of Dracut—both 24 and confined to wheelchairs will be wed Saturday after four years of talk and planning. Couple met in hospital school in eighth grade. He was crippled when struck by a car and she was born with a spinal defect.

Grandma Won't Join the Dodo

elizabeth forbes

A few columns ago I suggested that a new grandmother image was surfacing in today's fast-moving world. A young grandmother who is herself at work while her own children are having their babies and facing their crises.

In that column I wondered if perhaps the traditional grandmother image would soon be as extinct as the Dodo. And I asked for comments on the thought.

Well, I did get phone calls. People did stop me in public to express opinions for and against. Letters did come in — unpleasantly worded and without signatures. These, of course, I will ignore.

Of the very few who answered thoughtfully and who were courteous enough to sign their name, I find one outstanding. Dorothy Kynaston of Sidney.

She wrote a big "no" to the question of whether "grandma will join the Dodo."

And while she conceded that "the past several decades have tried to eliminate them, hide them in highrises, old folks homes, etc.," she strongly believes "children of today want and need Grandma."

Enlarging on that thought Mrs. Kynaston explains that many of today's parents are so involved in the economic and social world they have little time for their children's extras."

Then she lists among those extras "little walks of exploration and adventure, a listening post for their wondrous thoughts and imaginings, an answering service for their questions."

Grandmas "and that means Grandfathers also" are most important links in the family, she insists. And she should know, for the Kynastons have been grandparents for 26 years and now are great-grandparents.

"We have enjoyed them all," she says, "and they all love to come to Grandma's."

Here the letter suggests "there are, of course, unwritten rules and regulations, that make for happiness . . . just what they are in each family you find as you go along."

With Bill and Dorothy Kynaston they include "never live with your children. Visit when invited or warn ahead. Respect their ways of life and they will respect and love you."

Going back to the need of children for grandparents, the letter says "we find it everywhere we go."

The Kynastons do a lot of travelling and along the way they gather around them, not only their own grandchildren but their grandchildrens' young friends.

Not too long ago, the letter says "we had 30 youngsters around us for two months."

That was in a company compound, 30 miles north of Chetwynd, where Bill and Dorothy were "baby-sitting" grandchildren while the parents were in Europe.

MRS. KYNASTON
. . . unwritten rules

"Every youngster in the place made our home a rendezvous . . . we always asked the parents first if they minded and always told the children their parents' word was law."

"We took long walks, sang, paddled, made up stories and created various things. We built a stone castle with four towers from Pine River pebbles . . . it's still standing up there."

The Kynastons have scrapbooks full of writings, drawings, pressed bouquets and other things given them by their own grandchildren and the many others who have adopted them as grandma and grandpa.

"Little children's eyes shine when they see grey-haired people because they believe those people have time for them," Dorothy writes.

To prove the need for grandparents, she includes the story of an English family that moved to Australia, away from all their relatives.

The children missed their grandparents so much, the mother put an add in the local paper asking for proxies.

She received 60 replies, chose five from the lot and "in no time at all" neighbors with children had "snatched up" the remainder. "That made for lots of happy people, didn't it?" Dorothy writes.

In her letter she explains that the Kynaston daughters do not work now and "that more and more of their friends are quitting too.

"They'll be needed gradmas soon and will share in delights of little children that they missed in their own."

The letter ends on this strong note—"Grandmas are important and mustn't fade out like the Dodo. Perhaps it (the Dodo) once was important . . . but I'm sure not needed as much as Grandma and the safety pin (all the young mothers I know still use them)."

NOTE — Reference to the safety pin comes from a point made in my column that a grandmother didn't exist as the family safety pin any more.

Complainers No Guide To Setting Standards

OTTAWA (CP) — The Standards Council of Canada has learned that if it wants to find out what's bothering consumers, just asking the ones who complain isn't enough.

A study done for the council and the consumer affairs department by two university professors depicts the typical consumer complainer, who puts his gripes in writing or picks up the telephone and beefs to someone in charge, as educated, affluent and usually English-speaking.

A council spokesman said the study shows greater effort is needed to get complaints from those who feel the pinch most: the poor, the old and the young.

The study, called Who Complains, was done by Dr. Fred Edgecombe and John Liefeld of the University of Guelph consumer studies department. Edgecomb is the head of the council's advisory committee on standards for consumers.

Names of 15,000 of the 17,000 people sent questionaires were drawn from the files of Box 99, the federal government's consumer complaint bureau. Others had complained to the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan Toronto, Chatelaine magazine's consumer column and the provincial treasury department of Prince Edward Island.

The complaints received indicate appliances and home furnishings are the prime target of consumer beefs.

Second on the list was food, followed by motor vehicles and accessories, real estate or housing and wearing apparel.

In the French-speaking part of the sample, government was among the top five objects of complaints. Complaints about the government services did not even rate a spot among the top 12 listed by English-speaking consumers.

Widows, widowers and single people did not complain as much as divorced, separated or married people.

The complainers were fairly evenly split between men and women. People in managerial and professional jobs were heavily represented.

The number of French-speaking complainers was relatively small. Box 99 reported last year that only about eight per cent of all its complaints come from French-speaking consumers.

Gladys Dunn, head of consumer services in the federal consumer affairs department, says steps have already been taken to attract a broader cross-section to complaint offices.

The department had set up its first local office in an Italian district of Toronto, and is providing more staff to its regional headquarters.

Edgecombe says: "For an old-age pensioner, the cost of an eight-cent stamp may be important enough to put off writing a letter of complaint.

"A lot of the answers to this kind of problem are self-evident, a need for more storefront and neighborhood operations where people can drop in and complain about poor goods or services."

BEAUJOLAIS '73 'SWALLOWABLE'

PARIS (UPI) — The new Beaujolais wine made its annual Nov. 15 debut Thursday and was pronounced by experts to be a little fruity but very smooth, lacking a little in force but "very swallowable."

The experts said they were relieved because last year's new beaujolais, one of the most popular wines of France, had an acid taste.

Church Marks 12 Years

The Gordon Head United Church will celebrate its 12th anniversary Sunday by having the Presbytery officer for Vancouver Island, Rev. George Affleck, preach at the morning service.

The congregation will be addressed by Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland at a dinner Sunday evening.

The church building, constructed in 1961 at Torquay Drive, was moved in 1972 to its present site at Tyndall and San Juan when the congregation joined with St. Dunstan's Anglican Church to form the Gordon Head Parish Church.

TORONTO, November 15th — I happen to have off-white rugs... which look attractive... but only if they're kept clean and bright. And BISSELL WALL TO WALL RUG SHAMPOO does just that! When it's applied, the shampoo produces a thick, rich foam that loosens dirt and removes the most stubborn stains. And it's safe, of course, for all colour fast fibres... natural or man-made. Bissell Wall to Wall Rug Shampoo is a concentrated liquid you dilute according to instructions and, because it is concentrated, it's economical... about 1¢ per square foot of rug. You'll find Bissell Wall to Wall Rug Shampoo at grocery, hardware and department stores.

DID YOU KNOW that it wasn't until the early twentieth century that marmalade, like so many things English, became popular in Europe? Toasted bread became the favourite accompaniment. And although the immense English breakfasts of the Edwardian era never became as popular in Europe as in England, no civilized European table was complete without marmalade. Now marmalades and jams are not only served at breakfast and tea, but as condiments and snacks any time. And one of the most popular brands everywhere is CHIVERS Pure Jams and Marmalades. Chivers comes in 8 delicious flavours... I know, you'll enjoy them all!

AN INCREASING NUMBER OF WOMEN have discovered a product specifically formulated for soothing relief of external itching in the intimate areas of the body. It's called BiCOZENE CREME... and they've found it brings prompt, temporary relief from embarrassing vaginal or rectal itch. In addition to relieving itching and stinging, BiCozene Creme helps destroy bacteria ...gently soothing tender, inflamed tissue. If you are one of the many troubled by annoying itching, you should try BiCozene Creme. You'll find BiCozene easy to apply (just follow the simple instructions on the box). BiCozene Creme... available at drug stores everywhere.

IF YOU, ONE OF YOUR FAMILY, OR FRIENDS suffer from neuritic, arthritic or rheumatic pain, here's wonderful news. Thousands of men and women do get long-lasting relief from such suffering by taking TEMPLETON'S T-R-C... especially made for these pains. And more good news... Send only 25¢ to Templetons, Ltd., 86 Richmond St. East, Toronto M5C 1P1, Ont. and you'll receive a 65¢ box of T-R-C. And for DOUBLE-ACTION relief send another 25¢ and you'll receive a 50¢ bottle of EVAPORATING LINIMENT, which you apply externally, at the same time you take T-R-C internally.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By WILLIAM WELCH

I wonder how many patients in hospitals, or outside them for that matter, realize what their doctors do there besides take care of them.

I was looking at the list of working committees in the doctors' coat room of a hospital the other afternoon and it occurred to me that most people outside of the medical profession never hear of the Medical Records committee, the Infections committee, the Tissue committee, the Utilization committee, the Nursing Practices committee, the Emergency Room committee, the Pharmacy committee, the executive committee. The list goes on and on, and they are all working committees.

For example, the records committee, made up of doctors, nurses and administrative personnel, meets each month to review a big sample of that month's charts.

These are checked on their accuracy, their continuity, their completeness and their consistency. Charts that do not measure up are returned to be completed or corrected by the doctors who are responsible for them.

And how many of you know that every piece of tissue removed at surgery is reviewed by the department of Pathology for diagnosis? Furthermore, any questionable tissue — for example, an appendix that does not look as though it really had to come out, or an organ whose removal is not obviously indicated, is carefully reviewed by the Tissue committee.

The surgeon involved is required to justify the surgery he performed, and make a satisfactory clinical case for whatever it is he has done.

He may make it clear that he removed a normal appendix simply because the abdomen was open and he could thus avoid a possible future surgical procedure by eliminating a common cause of trouble before it became threatening or dangerous.

Week in, week out, the infections committee is searching out the origins of infection in the hospital.

It takes cultures of bedside water bottles, the bed linen, the air in the operating rooms, walls and fixtures in the nursery, and anesthesia equipment, looking for possible sources of trouble and eradicating them before they can spread throughout the hospital.

The committee also keeps track of every infected patient entering the hospital, and every infection that arises after the patient has been in the hospital and sets up measures to control it and prevent its spread.

And then there is the utilization committee, whose members police all the admissions to the hospital to verify the need for admission, to make sure that unnecessary delay does not occur in the scheduling of diagnostic tests and that there is no lag in getting patients out of the hospital when they no longer need its specialized facilities.

It is a rare doctor who does not work on several committees and, when you add the conferences he participates in (like any other school work, he has to prepare for them), and throw in a clinic or two each week, he is busy with a host of chores in addition to taking care of you when you are there as a patient.

Consumers Group Expresses Dismay At CRTC Ad Action

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of the Consumers Association of Canada has expressed dismay that the Canadian Radio and Television Commission has endorsed the Canadian Association of Broadcasters' voluntary code rather than seeking a complete ban on all advertising directed at children.

"Children do not have money to buy products," said Maryon Brechin Wednesday in a letter to the CRTC. "Since advertisements are designed to sell, the child is used as a lever to persuade parents to buy."

In June, the CAC passed a resolution asking for the elimination of all advertising directed to children, and in an appearance before the Standing Committee of the House of Commons on Broadcasting, Films and Assistance to the Arts on June 21, urged that all advertisements be banned on programs for preschool children and that television advertising directed to children be abolished.

The association is concerned that the Christmas build-up of unreasonable expectations is already under way, as children become unwitting sales agents for the toy manufacturers.

Brechin added: "The most recent in a continuing series of television monitoring programs revealed as many as 20 commercials per hour. In the consumer's mind, advertising saturation and overkill appears to be the objective sought by the manufacturer. The commercial element is not necessary to a public broadcasting system," said Brechin, "particularly when children are the target."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Sat., Nov. 17
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21—April 19): Avoid extremes. Maintain steady pace. Avoid scattering efforts. Keep medical, dental appointment. Remember diet resolutions. Have fun without being extravagant. Gemini, Sagittarius persons could be in picture.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with change, creative endeavors and romance. You feel revitalized. Member of opposite sex plays role. Give logic equal time with emotions. Be aware of fine points, details.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): You are stronger. You make contact with fascinating people. You make change which heightens potential for success. You deal with Virgo. You find where to get what you need. You put together missing pieces. Keep mind open for creative suggestions.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Highlight willingness to "trade" ideas. Means talk to neighbors, associates, relatives. Find out what others desire and what you can do for them. In return, you will make significant gains. Know it and act accordingly.

LEO (July 23—Aug. 22): Money, personal possessions are highlighted. You find what is valuable, what should be discarded. You may have to give up some romantic notions. Pisces, Virgo individuals could figure in important ways. Don't tell all. Discretion now is your ally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): Highlight initiative, independence. Take lead. Trust your own intuition, judgment. Make new starts, contacts. Personality rating soars. You get compliments—and chance to handle added responsibility. Go to it—money will accompany fine words.

LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): For answers, look behind the scenes. For results, get ear of one who has connections with special club, organization. Accept some restrictions. They will be temporary and they are for your own protection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Promises are fulfilled by one who, in past, was pleasant but not always reliable. Member of opposite sex is likely to play paramount role. Be pleasant, not gullible. Be receptive, but also ask for facts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Keynote now is responsibility with legitimate chance to elevate prestige. Means there is room for you at top. Know it and act like you are aware of it. Deal with Aquarius, Cancer, Capricorn persons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Co-operate with Sagittarian. Take long-range view. Being shortsighted could be costly and embarrassing. Pay attention to calls, messages and correspondence. Definite gain is possible through written word.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20—Feb. 18): Money of partner or mate may be in picture. Also, you gain insight into what was obscured, hidden. Key is to trust yourself. Be willing to discard the superfluous in order to get constructive rebuilding under way.

PISCES (Feb. 19—March 20): Don't push or force issues. You gain most now by being receptive. If you wait, you win. If you rush, you pay a dear price. Choice is your own. One who talks about legalities may be whistling in the dark. Do some personal checking.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an organizer, a fighter, a spunky, stubborn, attractive individual. You draw Capricorn and Cancer persons to you. You have suffered a loss but are on the way to recovery and greater happiness. In December, you will make emotional comeback and people will say, "Where have you been? It's so nice to have you back!" You are a passionate person in that you believe in what you do and you don't do things in lukewarm manner.

There is a 16-page illustrated booklet which can be very helpful to new and experienced homemakers alike, "New Room in Your Kitchen" shows you how to use the available storage space to best advantage.

One piece of advice is that you eliminate all clutter. Throw out all your chipped glassware and china as well as your bent, broken and rusty utensils. Give away all those gadgets you never use, which someone else may be glad to have.

The booklet suggests you divide your kitchen into three distinct areas: A food mixing centre, a sink centre and a cooking and serving centre. Store every item in the area where it is used. Store it so that you can easily see and reach it.

You can increase your storage space by equipping your kitchen with such practical accessories as plate racks, vegetable bins, cutlery trays, turntables, additional drawers, etc.

The booklet also tells you how to arrange your "fridge" and your freezer. Always leave some breathing space around the food on the refrigerator shelves so that cold air can circulate around it. Also, make it a habit to examine the contents of your "fridge" once a week and dispose of anything that is no longer fresh.

Love for Everyone

DEAR ABBY: I want to express my gratitude to you for having the courage to repeat your statement that homesexuality is NOT a "sickness."

I am the director of Adult Ministries for the United Methodist Church in the Hawaii district, and am long past the age when I might appeal sexually to either a female or another male.

Abby, you put to shame some of my so-called "fellow Christians," who have so completely forgotten the teachings of Jesus, that they would deny God's love and compassion for the millions of people who live a lifestyle different from their own.

Thank you, Abby. Whether you believe in Jesus or not, his love shines on you when you write such columns. Fred Methered.

MY DEAR REV. Methered: Thanks. I needed that!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I don't go steady with any one guy, but there is one I see more of than the others. I like him a lot, but this dude's hands are quicker than the eye and if I let him kiss me, before I know it, his hands are all over me. How do I handle such an aggressive guy? — Careful.

DEAR CAREFUL: When he gets busy with his hands, tell him to cut it out. And if he doesn't, get busy with your foot, and kick him out.

DEAR ABBY: About the girl who wanted to have her nose pierced over her parents' objections: I say, let her! It isn't painful, and if it is properly done, no infection should result.

I spent two years in India on an assignment, and while I was there I had my nose pierced in order to wear a small gold ring in it. It is the custom for women and girls in India.

After I returned, wearing the ring in my nose, I was the object of curious stares and many rude remarks, so I removed it. However, I still have the tiny hole in my nose, and will wear the ring in it if it ever becomes the fad or fashion here. — Hole In My Nose.

DEAR HOLE: Of course, one never knows, but I doubt if nose rings will ever catch on.

DEAR ABBY: We are studying about reproduction in school. The book says that a female can become pregnant only during a two to four day period every month, but it doesn't say anything about a man. Does the man have a certain time when he is fertile, too?

I am embarrassed to ask the teacher because I don't want to sound dumb.—Wants To Know

DEAR WANTS: First: There is nothing "dumb" about your question—in fact, no question is "dumb" if it's sincere, so never hesitate to ask. The male is fertile on a nonstop basis throughout his reproductive life.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that old lady who bumrapped the folks in Tennessee she doesn't know what she's talking about. The state of Tennessee has got to be the greatest because Elvis Presley was born here! — Loves Elvis.

DEAR LOVES: Sorry, but Elvis was born in Tupelo, Miss.

Texts Don't Help Liberation Drive

OTTAWA (CP) — Whatever strides women's liberationists are making towards breaking down rigid sex roles, they aren't getting any help from school textbooks, according to a study of books used in Alberta schools.

Linda Cullen, an education student at the University of Alberta, made the study a summer research project. Results of the study, published by the Alberta human rights branch, indicate that textbooks still picture the chief role of women as the care and feeding of husband and children. Men hold their traditional positions as breadwinners and heads of households.

Female children in textbook tales stick close to home, skipping rope, playing with dolls and helping mother around the house, Miss Cullen reports. Meanwhile, their brothers engage in more rough-and-tumble "male" activities such as sports and exploring the neighborhood.

When schoolbook women did venture outside the home, they were generally portrayed in supportive roles.

This reinforcement of traditional roles shows up most often in illustrations, she says.

For example, a McGraw-Hill series called Dimensions in Health showed 30 illustrations of men as doctors or dentists. Women in the same series were always shown as nurses and were referred to as the "doctor's helper."

In other books the idea that women do not, or should not, participate in certain fields is perpetuated by failing to give women equal space, she reports.

In a Grade 4 science series published by Holt-Rinehart, women showed up in only 46 of 201 illustrations. In two of these, girls were watching boys work. In another, a girl was baking a cake.

Some of the most explicit sex stereotyping was found in the Alberta department of education's social studies resource units for teachers, according to the study.

Defining the roles of mother and father, the Grade 1 unit said, "Mother cooks for us, Mother washes our clothes, . . . she does many things for Father. Father goes to work. He earns money. He helps the family."

The study seems to show that any concessions made to changing lifestyles are made in the belief that traditional ways still are best, says the report.

One health book told children: "The father is the person who earns the money to support the family and he is the family's leader. The mother takes care of the family and the home.

"But these positions are not always followed. Sometimes mother helps earn money and the father helps around the house."

However, the book observed: "The changing situation within some families may lead to confusion. But still a boy is clearly a boy and a girl is clearly a girl. "Starting at an early age, boys are raised in different ways than girls."

CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION SOCIETY'S AIM

HALIFAX (CP) — The Halifax Children's Aid Society has decided on a new approach to the old problem of child abuse.

No longer do the agency's representatives simply swoop down on troubled families whisking child from mother's arms, says recently appointed administrator Karl Marshall. Nowadays the watch-words are prevention, therapy and conciliation.

Marshall, who assumed the post after serving as director of the Warrendale branch of Thistletown Regional Centre for Children near Toronto said the agency's main thrust is to solve problems before the damage is irrevocable.

"Because we are looking more closely at the preventive aspects of child abuse and the divided home, we are less anxious to take a child out of what might be a rectifiable situation," he said.

Traditionally, children's agencies broke up the family and then set about trying to solve the problems, something that was, and still is, justifiable in many cases, he said.

"But in the last 30 years or so it has become obvious that some children should be kept with their families . . . that estrangement has bad effects on emotionally-disturbed children."

Children can and are being helped by social workers in their own homes and often family breakdown can be prevented through individual and group therapy if the symptoms are recognized soon enough, he said.

Foster Tots Fill Seniors' Life

BOSTON (AP) — A white-haired Boston couple has powdered, diapered and cuddled 120 newly born illegitimate children while an adoption agency finds them permanent homes.

"We usually get them when they're five days old," Mrs. Walter Desmond said. "They stay an average of three months — just long enough for us to fall in love with them."

For 26 years, Walter and Florence Desmond have worked with a foster-child program of the Catholic Charitable Bureau.

After they have an infant for a short time, there is the inevitable phone call from the bureau? "They say they'll be by to pick up the baby he next day," Mrs. Desmond said. "We know it's coming, but it still hits us pretty hard."

"We've had black babies and Chinese babies and every other kind," said Desmond, a retired hospital janitor who has made the infants his life's work. "To us, a baby's color is not important — only his life."

"The happiness of the baby is the important thing," Mrs. Desmond said. "You can't be heartbroken when you know someone you love is getting a chance at happiness."

When he was working, Desmond never made as much as $6,000 a year. And now the couple finds the weekly stipend from the bureau is not enough to pay for the toys and other extras they like to shower on the babies.

Their five-room apartment in the city's Dorchester section is filled with photographs of the babies they've cared for.

Strike Looms at North Mills

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — More than 1,000 pulp workers employed by two Prince George pulp mills will take a strike vote next week following a walk-out by between 50 and 60 maintenance employees Wednesday.

Members of Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada (PPWC) Local 9 will vote Nov. 20-22 on strike action. If the workers do not approve a strike, the union will accept a contract offer from the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau.

Executives of the local notified Prince George Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. and Intercontinental Pulp Ltd. officers that provisions of the proposed contract would be explained to members at two meetings Thursday.

PPWC members have been without a contract since June 30. Rival members of the United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU) accepted the same contract offer this summer.

Since ratifying the contract offer, UPIU members have received wage increases under a job evaluation program and are under a dental plan sponsored by the employer.

The strike-vote decision came after union leaders asked members to return to work at Intercontinental Pulp where 90 per cent of the maintenance staff walked out Wednesday.

A mill spokesman said the maintenance employees had dismantled equipment and walked out without reassembling it.

About 1,000 PPWC members work at the two mills. Another 70 UPIU members work in the papermill at Prince George Pulp and Paper.

FORESTRY GRADS CAN'T FIND JOBS

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than a quarter of the 1972 forestry graduates from the University of British Columbia are unemployed, and only one-tenth of second-year forestry students want to work in the industry, the Pacific Logging Congress was told Thursday.

Vernon Wellburn, a special lecturer in the UBC forestry faculty, said the problem is not how to train foresters but how to make the industry appealing to them once they have their degrees.

14 Into 12—No Way!

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 14-foot-high truck was damaged Thursday when it attempted to go under a 12-foot overpass at Rupert and Vaness. Driver Joe Fabbo, 21, suffered face, neck and arm injuries.

Peaceful Talks Forecast by CLRA

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) British Columbia contractors expressed optimism Thursday that 50 contracts covering virtually the entire industry can be renewed early next year without a work stoppage.

Charles Connaghan, president of Construction Labor Relations Association, (CLRA), said the CLRA and building unions with 60,000 members "have worked closely over the past year to create a better environment for next year's negotiations."

Connaghan said he was optimistic despite rejection by the unions of the CLRA offer several months ago of an across-the-board 10 per cent increase in return for a one-year extension of existing contracts.

The groundwork had been laid to make the same offer two years from now when the renewed contracts are about to expire, he said.

That Basement Bomb Was Just a Dud

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bomb discoverel by two workmen demolishing a house has been identified as a dud by Canadian Forces bomb experts.

PENTICTON (CP) — At least one assistant welfare worker of Indian ancestry should be hired by the provincial department of Human Resources for each of its 10 regions, delegates attending the fifth annual convention of the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians were told Thursday.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Federation of Independent School Associations has described as "incredible" the New Democratic Party's policy decision at its convention last weekend, against giving financial aid to independent schools in British Columbia. "This decision s drectly aimed against our children on whose education the future of our society depends," the association claimed.

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Five bids ranging between $828,432 and $999,400 were opened by North Vancouver Regional District for construction of the Lynn Valley arena, part of a $4 million parks bylaw approved by district voters. Bids will be submitted to council Monday.

CHANGE SOUGHT

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — West Vancouver policemen want to change their uniforms from khaki to blue and do away with their Sam Browne belts.

Constable Hugh Carlton, president of the 50-member West Vancouver Policemen's Association, said Thursday the policemen favored dark blue uniforms because they were constantly being mistaken for park wardens, military officers and bridge patrolmen.

The proposed new uniform would have the gun worn at the hip. The Sam Browne belt, a throw-back to the First World War, consists of a leather strap over one shoulder and across the body and requires the police sidearm to be carried at the waist.

"The Sam Browne belt is uncomfortable, restrictive in arm movement and it is unsafe for policemen to wear," association vice-president Constable Grant Churchill said.

"It allows an assailant to grab hold of something and propel a policeman."

Clare Anderson presents

"John and Jeannine"
Jeannine, a pretty young French girl with a voice and personality to match, also plays fine guitar. John, considered one of Canada's leading guitarists, blends both his music and voice to make this an excellent entertaining unit. John and Jeannine, though only a duo, through amplification can provide excellent dance music where demanded. All this plus their charm provides a pleasant evening of entertainment.

Wyman Dancers Step To a Different Drum

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Contemporary dance, like any other contemporary art, is not for those who enjoy life in a well-worn rut.

If anything other than the familiar artifices of a Swan Lake or a Sylphides turns you off then such as the Anna Wyman Dance Theatre is not for you.

For one thing it is dance in the sense of being creative movement, not in the sense of moving gracefully to distinctive musical rhythms.

Anna Wyman's troupe danced at the McPherson Playhouse Thursday, and offered a convincing demonstration as to why this Vancouver company is haking headway in the Canadian dance world.

The eight dancers—six girls and two men— have excellently trained bodies, they are disciplined as a corps and their work is inventive and interestingly patterned.

The program consisted of four works, all of which being choreographed by Wyman, not surprisingly bore her signature. This leads to a certain repetitiveness.

One tends to become overly conscious of rolling and writhing about on the stage and scissor-like movements of arms and legs.

But having said that it is necessary to add that at its considerable best, the company and its artistic director-choreographer are arresting, stir one's imagination out of mass-media-induced lethargy and excite admiration for the definition and focussed vitality on their performance.

Here at the Eye of the Hurricane—the work which was delcared one of three most outstanding entries in a Cologne international choreographers' competition — and Dance Is ... were the two choice items on the program.

The former work suggests a kind of austere, chill core of silence ringed about with an almost incoherent and fragmented violence.

The concept and its execution by the dancers has a luminosity, a controlled richness of design that makes the savagely cacophonous score by Karlheinz Stockhausen seem at least logical.

Humor enters the scene with Dance Is ... Here all sorts of athletic movement—various ball games, relay races, boxing, hockey, gymnastics—are studied as essentially dance rhythms and coordinations.

One sequence involves every varity and style of antique bicycle presented in a delightful circular pattern of silhouetted movement and the work ends with a whimsical tongue-in-cheek spoof of various kinds of curtain call.

Basic Suggestions for Growing Chrysanthemums

Hundreds of casual gardeners acquire chrysanthemum plants and try to grow them without having the basic clues for success.

As a result of questions from these gardeners a few basic cultural suggestions are made, hoping that better results will foster further study of the plants.

Just now most chrysanthemum plants outdoors are lying flat on the ground. They shouldn't be, but they are. The only thing to do it to cut off the flowers and the stems of half open buds to use indoors. They will last several weeks.

Strip off the leaves; they go yellow indoors in a day or two. Use other foliage, something evergreen like dark green ivy or holly.

Then cut the outdoor plants down to about four inches above soil level. Attach a label with variety name if you know it, or at least the color if you don't. You'll never remember which is which when March comes.

A coldframe, a foot deep at the back with the glass cover sloping down to about six inches, is the ideal winter storage place. Many of the better chrysanthemums do not survive the wetness and the following cold spells of our winters in the open garden. Lifting the roots (called stools by the professionals) to store them in frames is a safeguard.

They are kept with plenty of air circulating around them, and excess rain draining harmlessly down the glass covers. In our ordinary winter temperatures the covers are raised on wood blocks, or bricks, to allow air entrance but to deflect rain.

In periods of frost below 25 degs. F. dry sacking or similar cotton material is thrown over the closed covers.

Remove the extra covering when day temperatures rise, asd replace at night. When the cold spell is over, open the glass covers as before, check the roots for needing a little water, and leave them.

About March, begin to look for new shoots from the roots. Take them when about two inches high as cuttings to make new plants on their own roots, which will bear the lovely blooms you want in fall.

When the cuttings are rooted (indoors) and hardened off in May in the frame, you can throw out the woody parts of the old stool.

Each chrysanthemum plant except dwarf and cushion types must have a stake put in at time of planting. Begin tying when the plants are 10 inches high. Then you don't have broken stems and messy flowers in fall.

Plant in full sun; a soil rich in humus material to hold moisutre is needed, and good watering occasionally from May to September is essential.

Pinching back the tips when about 15 inches tall is good for most kinds, resulting in branching.

Summer care includes at least one feeding of a balanced fertilizer washed in around the roots. Subsequent waterings make it gradually available.

This briefest of outlines may lead you to the complete books written on the culture of chrysanthemums.

SOLUTION MONDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

"If one were able to delineate the precise point at which one effects the transition from a mere "card pusher" to a good card player, I believe it would be where one's play as declarer is based not simply on an immersion in his own and dummy's cards, but also on the bidding of the opponents. An example of this point can be observed in today's deal, in which our South declarer was not a "complete" bridge player.

Neither side vulnerable.

North deals.

♣ 10 8 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Dbl.	Redbl.	1 ♡
Pass	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

East played the heart nine on West's opening lead of the jack, and South's queen captured the trick. A low diamond was then led to dummy's king. East's ace winning. East came back a low heart, driving out South's ace, and simultaneously establishing West's heart suit.

When declarer next led a diamond to the board's jack, West discarded a spade, revealing the bad break in the diamond suit. Declarer now returned to his own hand via the spade ace, and took the club finesse. When it lost to East's king, declarer was doomed. At the conclusion of play, the defenders had taken three heart tricks, one diamond, and one club.

Had declarer given thought to the bidding, he would have recognized that East just had to have the diamond ace for his original take-out double. At trick two declarer should have entered dummy via the club ace (spurning the finesse), and then led the diamond three. If East took his ace, declarer would now have four cashable diamond winners, and a total of nine in all: two spades, two hearts, one club, and four diamonds.

If East declined to take the ace, South would put up his queen, which would win. Having "stolen" a diamond trick, declarer would then revert to the club suit, leading his ten and losing it to East's king. And, once again, declarer would have a fulfilled contract: two spades, two hearts, one diamond, and four clubs.

Admittedly, as South actually played the hand, he was unlucky in finding the five adversely-held diamonds divided 4-1, rather than 3-2. If the latter distribution had existed, South would have made four diamond tricks. But then, there was no necessity for him to have depended on a normal distribution of the diamonds.

U.S. INDIANS OPEN OWN BANK

WASHINGTON (UPI) The first national bank to be owned and operated by American Indians opened here Thursday a block from the White House.

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton attended opening ceremonies of the American Indian National Bank, which will try to underwrite business enterprises in Indian communities and open branches on reservations.

Barney Old Coyote, a Crow Indian and professor of economics at Montana State University, was named president.

W. W. Keeler, a Cherokee and former chairman of Phillips Petroleum Co., is chairman of the bank.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAY — In loving memory of Leonard R. Day who passed away November 16, 1953.
We often think of days gone by,
When we were all together,
The family chain is broken now,
But memories live forever.
—Ever remembered, Harvey and Mari.

FENTON—In loving memory of my dear wife Charmaine Fenton, who passed away November 16th, 1972.
I have lost my souls companion,
A life linked with my own
And day by day I miss her more,
As I walk through life alone.
Her loving husband Ed Fenton.

FORD — Joseph Edwin, in loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away October 1st, 1971.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind,
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by wife Eulalie and daughter Fay.

GORDON — In loving memory of my dear friend Barbie, who was called away November 16th, 1972.
Someone remembers, someone cares,
Your name is whispered in all my prayers.
A smile, a tear, a thought sincere
How often Barbie I wish you were here.
Always together in memory's lane
Today, tomorrow, always the same.
Wherever I go, whatever I do,
My thought's dear Barbie are always with you.
—ALWAYS remembered and sadly missed from your best friend Kimberley LeQuesne and her family.

GORDON — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister Barbie Gordon, who passed away on November 16, 1972.
Greatly loved and sadly missed.
Heart of our heart; we miss you so,
Often my darling our tears will flow
Cherishing your picture before our eyes,
But never the one in our heart that lies.
The stars seem dim as we whisper low,
Our darling Barbie, we miss you so.
—Loving memory, Mummy, Daddy, Gena, Don, Brad, Belle, Alec, Stew and brother-in-law Denis.

PARKER — In loving memory of William H. D. Parker, who left us on November 16, 1972.
Time cannot dim the face of love,
The memory of your smile,
The countless things you did for us,
To make our life worthwhile.
It broke our hearts to lose you
But you did not go alone,
For part of us went with you,
The day God called you home.
—Still missed by his loving wife Mary, daughter and son-in-law Claire and Doug.

PARKER — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, William, who passed away November 16, 1972.
Dearly loved in life,
Never forgotten in death.
—Muriel, Manny and Tammy and Jody.

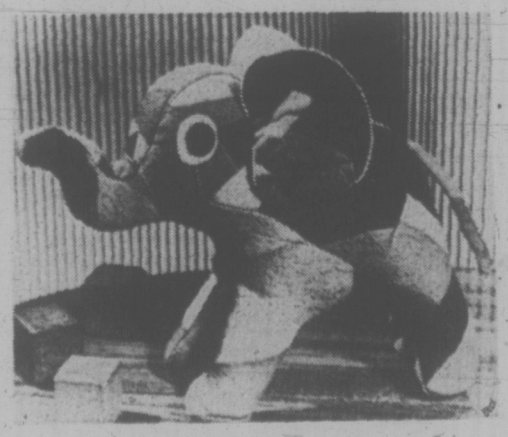
KNIT & CHAT



By MAY E. MacLEAN

Hand-made dolls were included by volunteer workers of the Unitarian Service Committee in St. John's, Newfoundland, in their regular shipment of new dresses for children at Regina Pacis House in Vietnam.

The children, who had no toys, were greatly excited by the unexpected gifts. USC Headquarters is at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa, Ontario, KIP 5B1.

Perhaps church groups or clubs could spare some time to make toys for these unfortunate children.

Today's pattern is a cuddly toy elephant, made with felt that has been patched together. He is equally adorable made in only one color of felt or material. His big floppy ears are most realistic and will endear him to any small child.

To order Leaflet No. 7360, Patchy the elephant, send fifty cents in coin, plus a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Send to May E. MacLean, care of Victoria Times, 486 Montford Drive, Dollard des Ormeaux, Que.

Please state pattern numbers when ordering and enclose stamped return envelope. Allow three weeks for delivery. My illustrated catalogue can be obtained from the same address, for sixty cents.

FRENCH SHOPS REOPEN

PARIS (UPI) — Frenchmen could buy food from their local stores and spend time at their favorite sidewalk cafes again today after an estimated 1 million stores reopened following a 24-hour closure to protest a government price freeze.

The strike was 95 to 100 per cent effective, according to news reports, but it was not clear whether shopowners gained anything.

Produce merchants voted to end the strike to await results of a meeting today between Agriculture Minister Jacques Chirac and representatives of farmers, wholesalers and retailers.

Small food merchants, who have been most affected by the government restriction on retail profit margins, demonstrated near the Paris Opera but they were blocked from marching to the finance ministry by helmeted police.

The government has said it will not rescind a special profits tax which it argued became necessary when retail food prices failed to reflect a drop in wholesale prices.

Bloc Poses 40,000-Troop Cut

VIENNA (UPI) — The Soviet Bloc has proposed a troop cutback plan for central Europe with east and west pulling out 20,000 men each in 1975, sources at the Vienna arms reduction conference said Thursday.

The sources said the initial cutbacks by the Communist Warsaw Pact and the allied North Atlantic Treaty organization would be followed by troop withdrawals of 5 per cent in 1976 and 10 per cent in 1977, according to the Soviet plan.

NATO allies were expected to oppose the plan in initial conference bargaining, arguing the Warsaw Pact, which has more troops stationed in central Europe, should cut back a greater percentage of its forces than NATO.

A spokesman for the western nations denied any concrete proposal had been made at the conference. But a Soviet official confirmed the Warsaw Pact had made a proposal, although he refused to give details.

Not even Santa can hold back the hands of time...

. . . time marches inexorably on towards Christmas. But take heart, Eaton's can help you spend those precious minutes wisely. Now open, throughout the store, are twelve distinctive little specialty shops catering to particular tastes in gift ideas and Christmas needs. These gift and decorating boutiques will offer you Christmas-oriented items you might otherwise overlook amid the stocks of regular merchandise in each department. Eaton's invites you to see these shops now and through the Christmas season . . .

Toyland

on the Lower Main Floor. A child's delight, filled with games, trains, wind-up toys, plush animals, building sets, model kits, car racing sets, coloring books, paints, crayons and all the things good little boys and girls dream of.

The doll shop on the Lower Main Floor, adjacent to Toyland. A special world populated by the most gentle of people. Dolls of every size and shape: dress up, put to bed, take for walks and love a lot. A fantasy world of its own.

Red basket shop on the Main Floor of the Home Furnishings Building. It's your one-stop shop for everything to make your parcels works of art; Christmas cards in singles and boxed assortments as well.

Trim-a-home shop on the Main Floor of the Home Furnishings Building, next to Red Basket shop. Decorations for your home, inside and outside; your Christmas table; and of course, your tree. And if you want to save our woods, we have life-like imitation trees, too.

Flower and flame shop on the Third Floor. What's Christmas without the soft glow of candles? . . . or your mantel without a beautiful centrepiece? Here you'll find candles in shapes, sizes and colors to suit your home. Decorative ideas for your table and mantel.

Fragrance bar

in the Cosmetics, Main Floor. Here we have gathered some of the most renowned names in perfumes . . . Lanvin, Guerlain, Evyan, Faberge, Dior, Chanel, Vivre, Nina Ricci, M. Rochas, Worth and Jean Patou . . . in elegant packaging for discriminating Santas.

Men's gift boutique in the Men's Wear, Main Floor. Gift ideas for the man who has everything or who would like to think he does. Handsome cuff link sets, leather accessories such as billfolds, valets, belts and more.

Home gift shop on the Main Floor of the Home Furnishings Building. A gathering of fireplace accessories, brass pieces from India, pictures, hassocks, bric-a-brac of all kinds for the homebodies on your gift list.

Women's slipper bar in the Shoe Department, Floor of Fashion. Foamtreads by Kaufman, Cuddlepups . . . mules and moccasin styles . . . fabrics that range from glamorous brocades and lames to comfy shearlings and Orlon plush. Styles for at-home entertaining, or evenings-by-the-fire.

Men's slipper bar in the Men's Shoe Department, Main Floor. Make him feel pampered and loved with a pair of his favorite romeos or slip-ons, choose from soft leathers or fabrics; some warmly lined; some with leather soles . . . all great for after-hours relaxation with his pipe and newspaper.

Night lights shop on the Floor of Fashion. Such elegant fashions for the festive social season. Whether you're shopping for something "special" for a Christmas Ball or a relaxed evening at home, Night Lights shop is agleam with glamorous things to wear.

Lingerie shop

on the Floor of Fashion. Some intimate ideas on how to please the lady in your life. Everything from diaphanous negligees to sophisticated lounge pyjamas to dainty bikinis is gathered in this most feminine of shops.

The Personal Shopper — a special service for anyone planning a big children's party. Our Personal Shopper will select gifts, wrap and label them ready for children's Christmas Tree parties. Call or write the Personal Shopper today. On the Third Floor, Gift Wrap.

Specials

Santa Claus Parade, on 2 and 6 at 9 and 8 at 10 a.m. Eaton's 69th annual parade bringing Santa Claus to Toronto. Festive floats and costumed marchers turn the six-mile parade into an entertaining array of sights and sounds that children of all ages will enjoy. (45 mins. on Channel 2 and 6 and 60 mins. on Channel 8.)

Standard Bred Champions, on 2 and 6 at 1. The top three-year-old pacers and trotters on the harness-racing circuit, and the men who rode them to victory are spotlighted in this documentary special. Featured are film clips of the past season's most prestigious races, including the Little Brown Jug, the Hambeltonian and the Canadian Racing Derby. (60 mins.)

Vacation Canada, on 2 and 6 at 2. A look at Canadian winter activities including carnivals, dog sledding, skiing, ice sailing, hockey and snowmobiling. And, a look at outdoor enthusiasts of all ages examines the changing attitudes toward the cold season. (Postponed from an earlier date — 60 mins.)

Championships Curling, on 2 and 6 at 3. Highlights from the 1973 Canadian Brier National Curling Championships (held in Edmonton) and the Silver Broom World Curling Championships (held in Regina). (60 mins.)

Class of 1984, on 5 at 4. A two-part look at U.S. educational systems in the present and future. Part 1: the parents of a second-grader with learning problems go shopping for the right school. (2 hrs.)

The Royal Family, on 9 at 7. This British documentary filmed several years ago, offers an inside view of the public and private lives of the British royal family. (90 mins.)

Movies

Tammy Tell Me True (xx), on 2 at 9:45. Sandra Dee and John Gavin star in this 1961 romantic comedy about a backwoods girl at college who falls for one of her professors.

Knute Rockne — All American (xxx), on 13 at 10. A 1940 story of Notre Dame's great football coach and the famous young men who played under him, starring Pat O'Brien, Geraldine Page and Ronald Reagan.

Frontier Hellcat (xx), on 7 at 2:30. A 1964 A 1964 European-made western starring Stewart Granger and Elke Sommer.

They Died With Their Boots On (xxx), on 13 at 3. Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland star in this 1941 Hollywood version of Custer and the famous battle of Little Big Horn — not too accurate, but a good western.

The Pit and the Pendulum (xx), on 7 at 6:30. A 1961 Gothic horror movie set in a Spanish castle, loosely derived from the Poe classic and starring Vincent Price and John Kerr.

The Howards of Virginia (xxx), on 13 at 8. Cary Grant, Martha Scott and Sir Cedric Hardwicke star in this well-made 1940 drama about the domestic conflict that comes to a Virginia family during the days of the American Revolution.

The Family Way (xx), on 6 at 8:30. A 1966 English-made drama that tells a warm and earthy story about the marital problems of newlyweds living with their in-laws, starring Haley Mills, Hywell Bennett and John Mills.

How I Spent My Summer Vacation (xx); on 2 at 9. Robert Wagner, Peter Lawford, Walter Pidgeon and Jill St. John star in this 1966 comedy-drama about a young reporter who thinks he knows the secret of a millionaire's hidden wealth. (If you think the description is confusing, wait until you see the movie.)

The Andromeda Strain (xxx), on 5 and 8 at 9. A 1971 film adaptation of Michael Crichton's fascinating sci-fi thriller about an alien micro-organism that decimates a town overnight — and threatens the world. Well-designed and imaginative sets highlight this movie, that features a fine cast including two Canadians — Arthur Hill and Kate Reid.

The Silence (xxxx), on 9 at 9. Ingmar Bergman wrote and directed this 1963 drama about a woman who rebels against her dominating sister starring Ingrid Thulin and Gunnel Lindblom. Winner of the Academy Award for best film of that year, The Silence is a powerfully shocking experience.

The Honey Pot (xxx), on 12 at 9. A superb cast (Rex Harrison, Maggie Smith, Susan Hayward, Cliff Robertson and Edie Adams) highlights this 1967 comedy-drama about a wealthy scoundrel who invites three ex-mistresses to his Venetian mansion to gather for his death-watch — and his will.

The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit (xx), on 7 at 11. A glossy and melodramatic 1956 film rendering of Sloan Wilson's best-seller about a Madison Avenue executive whose past war experiences bring turbulence into his family life. Cast includes Gregory Peck, Jennifer Jones and Fredric March.

The Andromeda Strain (xxx), on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier for details of this movie.)

The Return of Dr. X (xx), on 13 at 11:30. The only interest in this 1939 melodrama is a supporting role played by Humphrey Bogart. It's all about a doctor executed for murder but who is brought back to life by a mad scientist.

The Vikings (xx), on 4 at 11:45. A colorful 1958 costume adventure about the Viking invasion of England, starring Kirk Duglas, Tony Curtis, Janet Leigh and Ernest Borgnine.

A Hole in the Head (xxx), on 12 at 11:45. Frank Sinatra, Edward G. Robinson and Eleanor Parker star in this entertaining 1959 comedy about a good-time-Charlie who comes to the end of his financial rope and has to re-evaluate his place in life.

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (xxxx), on 5 at 11:55. One of Tennessee Williams' most powerful studies of a decadent Southern family has been successfully brought to the screen in this 1959 drama. Elizabeth Taylor is excellent as the wife of a former football hero (Paul Newman) who is dominated by his father and has taken to drink. Newman is very good but Burl Ives is a standout as he masterfully re-creates his stage portrayal of massive "Big Daddy."

A Big Hand for a Little Lady (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Henry Fonda, Joanne Woodward and Jason Robards star in this intriguing 1966 western comedy-drama about a homesteader and his wife involved in an annual big stakes poker game in 1896 Laredo. A surprise ending highlights this movie.

Cast a Giant Shadow (xxx), on 2 at 12:15. A highly romanticized but interesting 1966 tale about the Israeli-Arab conflict in the days when Israel first became a state. Kirk Douglas is excellent as Col. Marcus, the legendary American soldier who helps shape Israel's fighting force in 1949.

The Mad Magician (xx), on 13 at 1:15. Vincent Price plays a madman who kills his employer and assumes his identity, in this 1954 melodrama.

Today's Highlights

Children's Cinema, on 2 and 6 at noon. The excitement of European hockey comes into play in The Goalkeeper Also Lives on Our Street, a 1962 Czechoslovakian drama for children. (60 mins.)

Wide World of Sports, on 4 at 5. Events include drag racing, International Pro Skiing Championships whose entrants include Jean-Claude Killy and Spider Sabich and highlights of the European Ladies Gymnastic Championships with Soviet stars Olga Korbut and Ludmilla Turischeva leading the field. (90 mins.)

The Six Million Dollar Man, on 4 at 8:30. Steve (Lee Majors) finds himself involved with a corporation that kidnaps diplomats in tonight's episode of this new sci-fi series. The hostage is the president's chief advisor — the ransom is a billion dollars in gold. An excellent supporting cast includes Elizabeth Ashley, John Vernon and Maurice Evans. (90 mins.)

Today's Highlights

NORMAN ROCKWELL . . . on 7 at 7 p.m.

Kopykats, on 12 at 6. Robert Young joins the Kopykat regulars for comedy sketches on TV show including Batman, Lone Ranger, Highway Patrol and spoofs of Laurel and Hardy and Burns and Allen. (60 mins.)

Norman Rockwell's World, on 7 at 7. Artist Norman Rockwell narrates the story of his life using 300 of his paintings as a background, in this 1973 Oscar winner for best achievement in a live-action short subject. (30 mins.)

Men Who Made the Movies, on 9 at 8. From cattle drives to race tracks, the 77-year-old veteran director Howard Hawks looks back on the themes shaping his career. (60 mins.)

Firing Line, on 9 at 10. Should the next Special Watergate Prosecutor be independent of the White House? That's the topic discussed by host William F. Buckley Jr. and guest William Ruckelshaus, the former Deputy Attorney-General who was discharged by President Nixon after refusing to fire Archibald Cox. (60 mins.)

Movies

The Last Child, on 6 at 11:30 and 8 at 2:30. No rating available on this 1971 made-for-TV drama about a young couple expecting a child in a futuristic society where population control is the law. Van Heflin, Janet Margolin and Michael Cole star.

Golden Boy (xxx), on 13 at 11:30. William Holden got his big break in this 1939 film rendering of Clifford Odets' brilliant fight drama about a young man who has fought poverty and discouragement in order to become a great musician, announces to his father his decision to become a boxer. The play has lost some of its wallop in 30 years but it's still worth seeing. Barbara Stanwyck co-stars.

The Brave Bulls (xxx), on 13 at 1:30. An excellent screenplay and fine performances by Anthony Quinn, Mel Ferrer and Spanish actor Miroslava highlights this 1951 drama about the life, both public and private, of a famed matador. Probing photography makes it a penetrating study.

Blue Hawaii (xx), on 5 at 2.

PETER O'TOOLE . . . on 7 at 4 p.m.

Elvis Presley plays a happy-go-lucky beach bum in this 1961 musical co-starring Angela Lansbury and Joan Blackman.

The Fighting Seabees (xxx), on 11 at 2:30. A well-made, action-filled 1944 war drama, starring John Wayne, Susan Hayward and Dennis O'Keefe.

Lord Jim (xxxx), on 7 at 4. Peter O'Toole, Eli Wallach, James Mason and Dahlia Lavi star in this magnificently photographed and well-acted 1965 movie rendering Joseph Conrad's famous novel Set in 1900, it tells of a British seaman accused of cowardice who flees to the Far East in search of adventure and a new life. Produced, written and directed by the multi-talented Richard Brooks.

Casablanca (xxxx), on 13 at 4. An all-time favorite 1942 classic about wartime intrigue and romance in the mysterious city of Casablanca. This movie won an Academy Award for best picture and it stars Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman, Claude Rains, Paul Henreid and Peter Lorre.

Satan Never Sleeps (x), on 11 at 4:30. A tasteless and banal 1962 drama about two priests who perilously oppose the Chinese Reds when they take over their mission.

Elizabeth and Essex (xxxx), on 13 at 6. Oscar nominations went to this 1939 drama about the romance between Queen Elizabeth I and the youthful Lord Essex. An excellent cast includes Bette Davis and Errol Flynn.

The Hospital (xxxx), on 4 at 8:30. Paddy Chayefsky (author of Marty) wrote the Oscar-wining screenplay for this 1971 dark farce set in a big-city hospital where deadly mix-ups and patient fatalities are common-place occurences. George C. Scott heads an excellent cast that includes Diana Rigg, Canadain actor Don Harron and Richard Dysart.

El Dorado (xxx), on 12 at 9. A 1967 old-fashioned, action-filled Howard Hawks western about a gunfighter who helps a whisky-sodden sheriff redeem himself and clean out the town of bad guys. John Wayne and Robert Mitchum are great.

Forever Darling (xx), on 4 at 11:30. Lucille Ball, Desi Arnez and James Mason star in this 1956 comedy-fantasy about a guardian angel who comes to earth to save a marriage. For Lucy addicts only.

The Creeping Flesh, on 12 at 11:30 and 7 at midnight. No rating available on this 1972 thriller featuring England's top horror stars, Peter Cushing and Christopher Lee, in a story about two brothers exploring the nature of evil.

Gaslight Follies, on 2 at 11:45. A nostalgic roundup of silent films and stars of yesteryear that includes glimpses of Harold Lloyd, Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford.

Specials

An Interview with Golda Meir, on 5 at 1:30. Israel's Premier Golda Meir is interviewed in Israel by Arnold Forster, associate national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'Nai Brith. (30 mins.)

The Thanksgiving Treasure, on 7 and 12 at 7:30. A drama special about a Nebraska Thanksgiving in 1947. This gentle, low-key story unfolds through the eyes of Addie Mills, a spirited and precocious 11-year old to whom the holiday means friendship and forgiveness. An excellent cast includes Jason Robards, Mildred Natwick and Lisa Lukas (as Addie). (90 mins.)

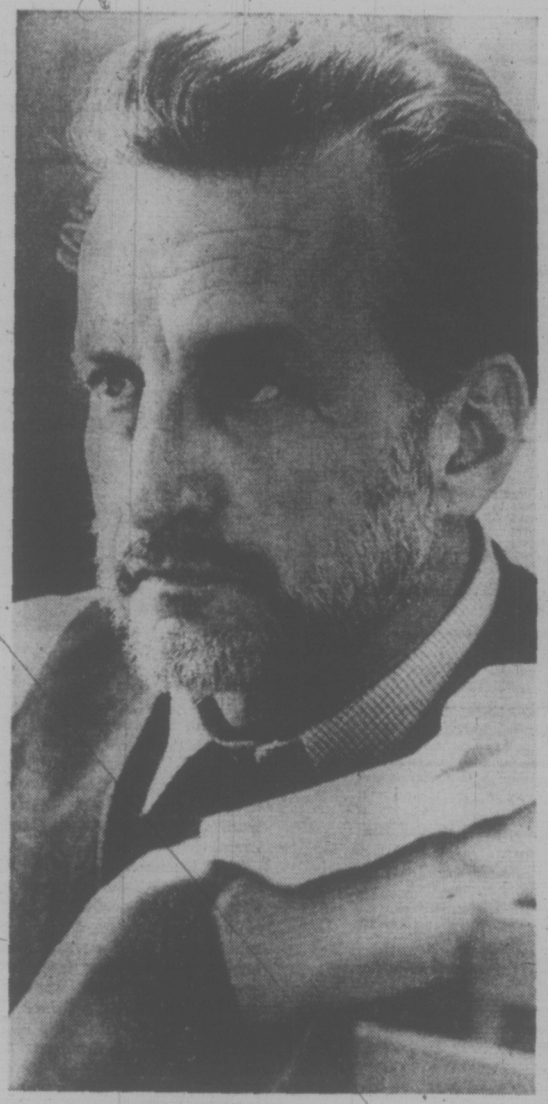
Frank Sinatra, on 8 at 7:30 and 5 at 8:30. Sinatra comes out of retirement in style in this musical special that finds Frank in a mellow mood. In a lighter vein, Gene Kelly helps Frank relive the 1940s in clips from their movies that sparks a snappy song-and-dance duet, and new songs get Sinatra's special touch in the finale. (60 mins.)

Godspell Goes to Plimoth Plantation, on 9 at 7:30. A freewheeling Thanksgiving celebration with the Boston cast of the musical Godspell as they visit a reconstructed pilgrim village and perform selections from their show. (30 mins.)

To the Wild Country, on 2 and 6 at 9. The rugged beauty of Canada's wild Pacific shores are surveyed by naturalists John and Janet Foster, in this documentary special narrated by Lorne Greene. (60 mins.)

Once Upon a Mattress, on 7 at 9. Carol Burnett is delightful in this repeat telecast of the spoof of Hans Christian Andersen's, The Princess and the Pea. The story concerns an unmarried prince whose mother thinks no woman is good enough for her son. Enter Winnifred Woebegone (Carol) and the fun begins. Supporting cast includes Ken Berry, Jane White, Jack Gilford and Lyle Waggoner. (90 mins.)

Dinah in Search for the Ideal Man, on 5 at 9:30. Dinah Shore joins Burt Reynolds and an all-male guest line-up (Don Knotts, Telly Savalas, Edward Asner, McLean Stevenson, Peter Graves and many other familiar TV faces) in a comedy search for the ideal man. (60 mins.)



GEORGE C. SCOTT stars as a physician dealing with the harsh daily realities of life and death in The Hospital, the Sunday Night Movie on Channel 4 at 8:30 p.m.

ON SUNDAY at 7:30 on Channels 7 and 12, Jason Robards, Mildred Natwick (centre) and Lisa Lucas celebrate a Nebraska Thanksgiving, circa 1947, in the drama special The Thanksgiving Treasure. This gentle, low-key story unfolds through the eyes of a spirited and precocious child to whom the holiday means friendship and forgiveness.

Hill's Uptight Image Fades at Home

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Arthur Hill has a face like an 18th Century Massachusettes sea captain, or perhaps a Colonial banker, and it works extraordinarily well for him each week in the title role of Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law.

If he also behaves convincing as an attorney it is because his father was a lawyer. Hill studied law himself at the University of British Columbia until he became interested in acting.

But his image dissolves when he is off the screen at home in his West Los Angeles surroundings.

His collection of conservative New York suits that he wore for so many years while acting on Broadway have been hung in the back of the closet. He revels in casual attire.

The uptight wardrobe he wears as Owen Marshall belongs to Universal Studios where the series is filmed. Even so, Hill picks out the suits and neckties meticulously for the character he plays.

Once the actor gets home he dons something comfortable, reads the paper and has dinner with his wife, Peggy, who spoils him with special curry dishes. She also rises early to fix him a healthy breakfast of bacon and eggs. Hill says his farmboy background requires a big breakfast.

Mrs. Hill was once an actress and has become adept at interior decorating. She bought all the furniture for their eight-room house.

There is sufficient space for the Hills to ramble around in now that son Douglas and daughter Jenny have moved away. Both live in apartments in nearby Westwood and visit their parents often.

ARTHUR HILL

Hill bemoans the fact he hasn't time to go back to White Plains, N.Y. more often. He still owns a home there which he rents out. But the architecture of his California house is reminiscent of the east.

The white structure has the look of a Cape Cod home, and Hill is proud that the house won a prize for its architect in 1931.

He has resumed his favorite East Coast preoccupation—sailing. When he lived in the East, Hill kept a 17-foot sailboat on the Hudson River at Croton Bay. Now he and two friends jointly own a 27-foot boat moored at fashionable Marina del Rey.

During the week Hill is up at 5:45 a?m? He is in makeup and wardrobe, ready to go to work at 8 o'clock.

Sometimes he is happily surprised when the show wraps up at 4:30 in the afternoon. But more often than not e he is involved on the set until 6 p.m. It's a half-hour ride home in heavy traffic.

Hill has one of the most difficult roles on the tube. As a lawyer who is in almost every scene, he is required to memorize endlessly long speeches, especially for the courtroom sequences.

Most weekends are spent painstakingly in his study at home committing the lines to memory. He is unfailingly pleased, therefore, when real attorneys approach him and introduce themselves as "lawyers, too." He also hears from lawyers in a flurry of letters if there is a technical mistake in any of the cases on the series.

So convincing is Hill on screen that his alma mater bestowed on him an honorary doctorate of law last year.

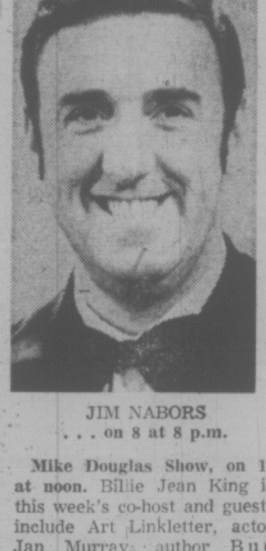
Today's Highlights



JIM NABORS
. . . on 8 at 8 p.m.

Mike Douglas Show, on 13 at noon. Billie Jean King is this week's co-host and guests include Art Linkletter, actor Jan Murray, author Bud Greenspan (Play It Again, Bud) and folk singer Lori Lieberman. (90 mins.)

The Rookies, on 8 at 8. Singer Jim Nabors plays a straight dramatic role as one of two brothers on a murder mission. Their target is the country singer they hold responsible for their sister's death in childbirth. (60 mins.)

In the South Seas, on 2 and 6 at 10. A look at urbanization problems in the South Seas . . . low incomes, European-priced goods and over-crowded housing in the cities and towns. (Last show of the series.) (30 mins.)

Medical Center, on 7 and 8 at 10. Jessica Walter stars in, Woman for Hire, a drama about the relationship between an ailing prostitute and the idealistic young resident doctor who is falling in love with her. (60 mins.)

Movies

Romance of Rosy Ridge (xxx), on 4 at 9:30. A well-made 1947 drama set in post-Civil War America where a mysterious stranger is looked upon with suspicion by a Southern - sympathizing farmer, starring Van Johnson, Thomas Mitchell and Janet Leigh.

Trouble in the Glen (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Orson Welles, Margaret Lockwood and Forrest Tucker star in this 1954 comedy-drama about a Scottish laird who returns from South America only to find himself in the middle of a feud.

Private Hell 36 (xxx), on 13 at 1:30. A well-made suspenseful 1954 crime drama about two detectives who turn greedy when they recover some stolen money, starring Ida Lupino, Howard Duff and Steve Cochran.

Return of the Gunfighter (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A 1966 made-for-TV western about a gunslinger who goes looking for the murderers of an old friend, starring Robert Taylor and Chad Everett.

DANNY KAYE
. . . on 7 at 8 p.m.

CARY GRANT
. . . on 13 at 8 p.m.

The Trouble with Angels (xx), on 7 at 3:30. Rosalind Russell and Hayley Mills star in this 1966 comedy about the misadventures of a group of convent-school girls and their worldly wise Mother Superior.

Daring Game (xx), on 12 at 7. A 1968 adventure about a team of skin divers who try to rescue a political prisoner from a Caribbean island, starring Lloyd Bridges and Michael Ansara.

The Secret of Life of Walter Mitty (xxx), on 7 at 8. Danny Kaye shines in this 1947 film rendering of James Thurber's delightful story of a shy young man who finds his day-dream adventures more exciting than real life.

The Grass is Greener (xxx), on 13 at 8. An entertaining and sophisticated 1961 comedy about a British earl who opens his stately mansion to paying tourists, starring Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum and Jean Simmons.

Cotton Comes to Harlem (xxx), on 5 at 9. Actor-writer Ossie Davis directed this slam-bang, high-spirited 1970 comedy-drama about a pair of rambunctious detectives investigating a phony fund-raising scheme. Godrey Cambridge and Raymond St. Jacques star.

The Ox-Bow Incident (xxxx), on 4 at 11:30. Henry Fonda and Dana Andrews star in this powerful indictment of lynching told with a simple force that leaves you limp. This low budget 1943 western can easily take its place as a screen classic.

All the Fine Young Cannibals (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. A muddled 1960 soap opera about a strong-willed young woman who refuses to marry the father of her child and heads to New York to start a new life. Natalie Wood and Robert Taylor star.

Evil of Frankenstein (xx), on 2 at 11:50. British horror star Peter Cushing plays Baron Frankenstein in this 1964 horror melodrama.

40 Guns to Apache Pass (xx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. A predicatable 1967 western starring Audie Murphy.

The Last Angry Man (xxx), on 13 at midnight. A talented cast buoys up this 1959 drama about a general practitioner working among Brooklyn's poor. Paul Muni is excellent and there is a great performance by Luther Adler in the role of a long-time doctor friend of Muni's.

The Azomic Brain (x), on 6 and 8 at 1:55. A 1965 routine sci-fi drama with a cast of unknowns. Don't bother staying up for this one.

Today's Specials

TWO-SIDED STORY — Both police detectives Jones (Godfrey Cambridge) and Iris (Judy Pace) are looking for a missing bale of cotton and money in Cotton Comes to Harlem, an original television movie to be telecast on Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4. Actor-writer Ossie Davis directed this rambunctious adventure farce filmed in authentic New York City locations.

FINICKY MORRIS LEADS VIP LIFE

By JUDITH MARTIN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Born on the streets, clawing and fighting one's way through life, ending up in an institution, being close to death, and then achieving fame, stardom, complete with money, groupies and propositions by mail — it's all still possible in America.

Provided, of course, you are a pussycat.

This is the heartening life story of Morris, who is the finicky cat in 9-Lives cat-food commercials, and he is on one of his VIP personal appearance tours to tell it to his adoring public. In Washington, he stayed at the Swank Madison Hotel and did five interviews.

Maybe you think nobody cares? Morris has to travel incognito, his handler says, because he would be overwhelmed if his name were on his flight cage.

— Morris receives enough fan mail, including some indecent suggestions and some honorable ones, to keep a secretary busy for three days a week.

— Morris has to watch out.

— Morris elicits shrieks from overeager groupies who try to grab him.

— Morris received recognition and coos of admiration from Washingtonians, even those who are too blase to turn around when the president of the United States walks by.

All of this probably says a great deal more about Morris's public than it does about Morris, whose chief virtue is that he keeps his mouth shut.

This is one of two qualities that got Morris where he is today. The other is his unusual reddish coat.

These were the things that attracted Bob Martwick; his handler, to rescue Morris from a humane society home where, as Martwick tells it (and there isn't a dry eye in the house), "he was within 20 minutes of being put to sleep."

Before this Lana Turner-style miracle, Morris was an alley cat whose ears became notched from street fights, and Martwick was a foundry engineer who trained cats and dogs for commercials.

Now they both live happily, on six acres outside of Chicago, with a free supply of food (Martfick says the tuna dinner is especially good, and people could save a lot of money by eating it), while Martwick's other working cats who haven't made it to the top — 14 in all — have to be content with living in a kennel underneath the master apartment.

At the presumed age of 11, Morris has about two to five more good earning years in him, Martwick estimates, and the idea of a successor has cropped up. Right now, they can't even find a stand-in. Martwick has interviewed 2,000 cats and is now running a look-alike contest, but, like all stars, Morris is unique.

TV Role Is the Real Malden

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "For years and years," said Karl Malden, "I thought my face was terribly detrimental to being an actor. I thought often of having a nose job to repair this twice-broken beak of mine. But I never did. So, in a sense, I guess I made it the hard way.

And yet, as it turned out, Karl Malden has a very good face for an actor. It is a face with crags and character, a face with strength, a lived-in, hard rock of a face. It is, moreover, a particularly good face for his role of Lt. Mike Stone, a plainclothes cop in ABC's "The Streets of San Francisco" series.

It was a break in the timing and Malden was taking his ease, hat back on his head, his suit properly nondescript. "I'll go to colleges, making talks to the drama students," he was saying. "I tell the kids, 'Look, just take a look at me. Don't be discouraged if someone says you don't have the looks for this business.'

After a distinguished career in the theatre and in movies — he won an Oscar for his work in A Streetcar Named Desire and he should have won another for his portrayal of Gen. Omar Bradley in Patton — Malden has taken his first venture into series television with "The Streets of San Francisco."

And for the [redacted], after years of [redacted]self in character roles. Malden says that now he is, more or less, playing himself. He finds it an interesting transition.

KARL MALDEN

"I've been in about 40 films and 23 Broadway plays and I was always someone else," Karl says. "Now the guy I'm playing is me. Mike Stone is me."

"Who is 'me'?"—I inquired.

"That's the question," Malden said with a grin. "It's taken me years to find out who is me. In all of my other parts, you never saw Karl Malden. In On the Waterfront, for instance, I was Father Corridan. In Patton you saw Gen. Bradley. Always it was a character. Now I'm strictly Karl Malden the Cop.

"It was never a problem, in other acting jobs, to know myself. The 'me' of Malden never really mattered. And it didn't really matter that I didn't know myself as, for example, Duke Wayne knows himself. The fascinating thing is that I'm finding out about myself, about who I am, as I go about the business of playing someone else who is, in actuality, me.

"Something else," he added. "I'm getting more fan mail than I've ever gotten in all the 30 years I've been an actor. Before, from my movie roles, I used to get some mail but it was mainly from Europe and South America — I have no idea why. Now the mail comes in from this country and from Canada. It's about 30 per cent from teenagers, the rest from grown-ups. And practically all the mail is complimentary about the way I portray a policeman."

Malden patted the bulge in his jacket. "I've got a gun here, but I'm a strong believer, both as me and as Lt. Stone, in antiviolence. Only at the last minute will Lt. Stone draw a gun. I happen to believe there should be a law against guns. I have a firm belief that guns spur crimes and I believe that even the hunters, who are opposed strongly to this idea, should place their guns in an armory. Just leave them there and sign for them and then withdraw them only when they go off on a hunting trip."

The Magician

BILL BIXBY finds himself involved in another adventure on tonight's episode of The Magician, telecast on Channel 5 at 9 p.m.

Movies

Three Godfathers (xxx), on 4 at 9:30. John Ford directed this entertaining 1948 western drama about outlaws fleeing across the desert who find and care for an abandoned child. A good cast includes John Wayne and Harry Carey Jr.

Cluny Brown (xxx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Jennifer Jones and Charles Boyer star in this pleasant 1946 comedy about the turbulent romance of a plumber's niece and a Czech refugee in England during the war.

The Mouse That Roared (xxxx), on 13 at 1:30. Peter Sellers plays three roles in this entertaining 1959 satire about a small, bankrupt country that declares war on the U.S. in order to lose, and then receives financial aid from the victorious Americans.

The Last Hunt (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Stewart Granger, Robert Taylor and Debra Paget star in this engrossing 1956 action drama about the last of the big buffalo hunters in the Dakotas in the 1880s.

Ride Beyond Vengeance (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A violent 1966 tale of murder and revenge in the old West, starring Chuck Connors, Michael Rennie and Bill Bixby.

Crawlspace, on 12 at 7. No rating available on this 1972 made-for-TV drama about a childless couple who discover a disturbed young man living in a crawlspace underneath their house, starring Arthur Kennedy and Teresa Wright.

War and Peace (xxxx), on 9 at 8. (Part 1). A British-made adaptation of Tolstoy's masterpiece in nine parts. There are lots of panoramic battle scenes, but the focus is more on Tolstoy's characters and subplots to capture a picture of Russian society during the turbulent years of the Napoleonic Wars. Tonight the major characters are introduced amid the vidual grandeur and rumblings of an imminent major conflict with Napoleon. Cast includes Anthony Hopkins, Morag Hood, Alan Dobie and Rupert Davis.

Key Largo (xxx), on 13 at 8. A great cast (Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, Edward G. Robinson and Claire Trevor) highlights this 1948 study of gangsters and their hostages during a Florida hurricane.

The Affair, on 4 at 8:30. A first showing of a 1973 made-for-TV drama that offers a tender love story about the romantic involvement between a crippled songwriter and a sensitive lawyer, starring Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner (who are husband and wife in real life).

Band of Angels (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. The producers of this Civil War epic thought that by casting Clark Gable in the role of a New Orleans gentleman with a past, lightning might strike twice at the box office (shades of Gone With the Wind). It didn't work, of course, but Sidney Poitier is excellent in the role of an educated slave. Yvonne de Carlo plays Gable's leading lady.

LAUREN BACALL . . . on 13 at 8 p.m.

The Young One (xx), on 2 at 11:50. A 1960 Mexican-made melodrama about a black musician fleeing the law who is drawn into another web of danger when he takes refuge on an island inhabitated by a young girl and an evil old man.

The Swimmer (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. An absorbing, off-beat 1968 story about a loser gradually flipping out of WASP society in suburban Connecticut, because he loathes the life style of mores of affluent executives. A much underrated film that never got the attention it deserved because the releasing company — Columbia Pictures — didn't know how to handle it and kept it lying around for a couple of years after it was finished. Burt Lancaster does swim his way down various pools in Westport, Connecticut but viewers who want something different will follow him stroke by stroke. Lancaster's major confrontation with his ex-mistress (Janice Rule) at the end of the film is superbly acted and directed.

Run Home Slow (x), on 6 and 8 at 1:55. A weak 1965 western drama about a woman determined to avenge the hanging of her father, starring Mercedes McCambridge.

Specials

Peanuts Cartoon, on 7 at 8. A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving, a holiday feast with the Peanuts clan. (30 mins.)

Honeymoon Suite, on 4 at 11:40. Three comedy sketches starring Sarah Kennedy, Dick Sargent, Sorrell Brooke, Nita Talbot, Rose Marie, Keenan Wynn and Arlene Galonka. 90 mins.)

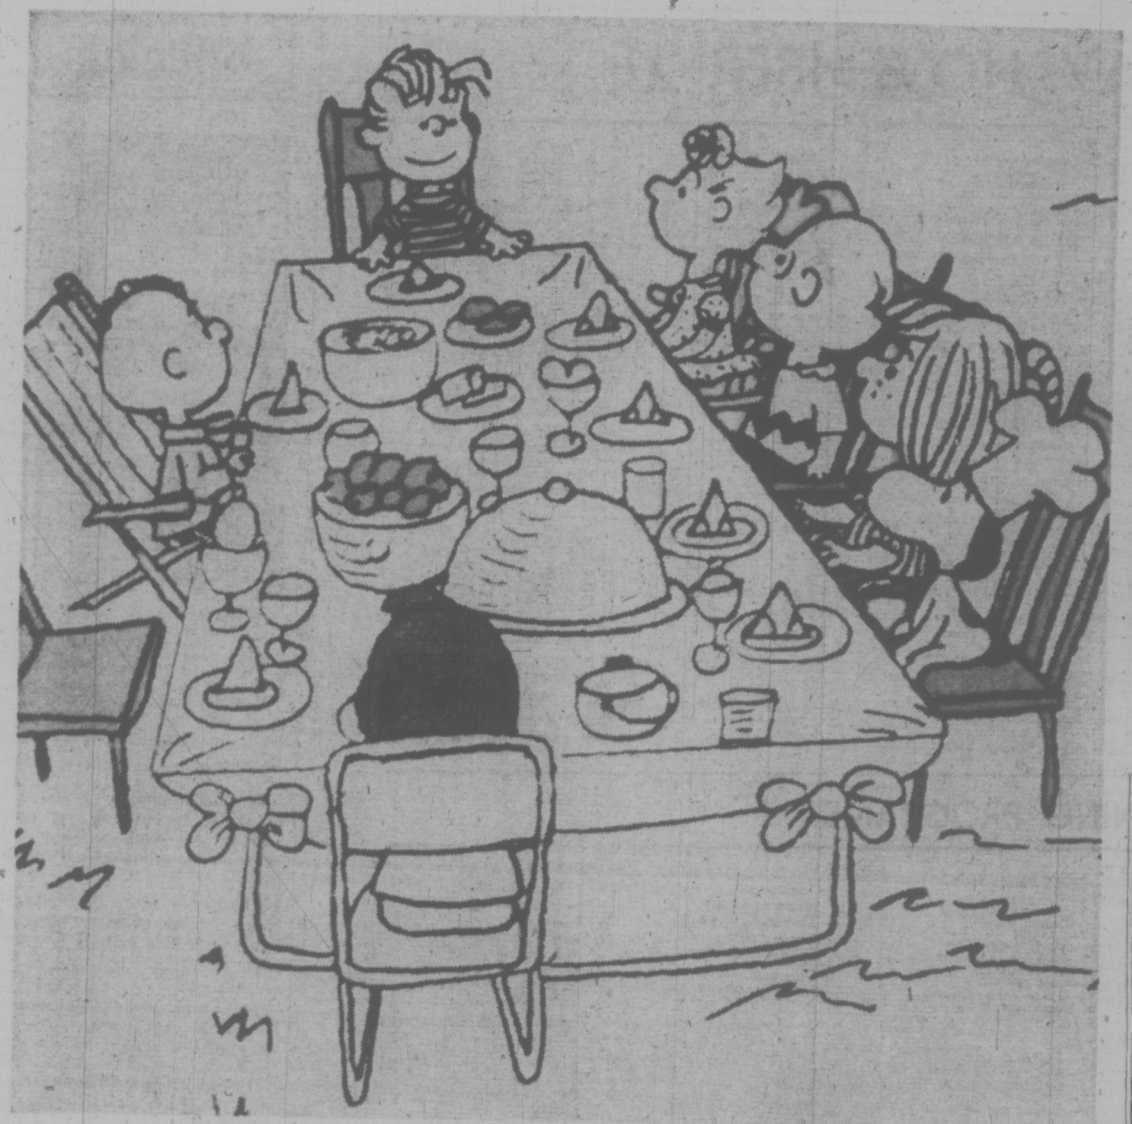
Today's Highlights

Mary Tyler Moore, on 2 and 6 at 8. Upset by his marital breakup, a lonely Lou has been haunting Mary's apartment, and she is faced with the delicate task of getting rid of her boss — by trying to reunite him with his wife. (30 mins.)

Police Story, on 2 and 6 at 8:30. Is a female cop equal to the job? Actress Sue Anne Langdon (Arnie) plays a policewoman who gets a chance to prove it in tonight's episode of Police Story. An excellent supporting cast includes Hugh O'Brien, Dean Stockwell and singer Jerry Lee Lewis. (60 mins.)

Kojack, on 8 at 8:30. A bizarre killer called Excalibur is Kojack's (Telly Savalas) quarry in tonight's episode of this new crime-drama series. All of the killer's victims have been left floating in water with a mark resembling King Arthur's sword traced on their foreheads. (60 mins.)

Hawkins, on 12 at 10. William Windom stars as Hawkins' (James Stewart) client, a neurotic accused of murder. (90 mines.)



On Tuesday at 8 on 7 the Peanuts Clan Celebrates American Thanksgiving

Three New Adventures For the Peanuts Gang

A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving is the first of three brand new Peanuts adventures which will premier on the CBS Television Network during this ninth season of animated specials based on the comic strip characters created and translated to television by artist-writer Charles M. Schulz.

The Thanksgiving special, which will be broadcast Tuesday, Nov. 20 (8:00-8:30 P.M.) on Channel 7, will be followed later in the season by It's a Mystery, Charlie Bown and It's the Easter Beagle, Charlie Brown, both starring Charlie, Lucy, Linus and the rest of the Peanuts gang, plus Snoopy (the Renaissance hound) and Woodstock (the bird-brained bird).

In It's a Mystery, Charlie Brown, Woodstock's nest is purloined by a person or persons unknown and Snoopy turns detective in an attempt to apprehend the culprit and recover his little friends raggedy abode.

Not since the Great Pumpkin has anything created the consternation among the Peanuts that greets Linus's latest legendary hero, in It's the Easter Beagle, Charlie Brown. As the youngsters prepare for the traditional Easter-egg coloring and treasure hunt, Linus informs them that they are going to unnecessary trouble because the Easter Beagle will provide all the trimmings. Recalling their disillusionment over the Pumpkin, the clan is, to say the least, a bit skeptical — but an unexpected turn of events gives them second thoughts.

Thursday, Dec. 6 marks the ninth broadcast of the now-classic holiday special, A Charlie Brown Christmas, which was the first of the animated Peanuts specials and forerunner of the highly successful series when it was presented on the CBS Television Network in December, 1965. It is one of the longest-running special features on network television.

NATALIE WOOD AND ROBERT WAGNER (husband and wife in real life) star in The Affair, an original TV movie to be telecast on Tuesday at 8:30 on Channel 4.

Specials

JOHN F. KENNEDY
. . . on 4 at 11:30 p.m.

Peanuts Cartoon, on 12 at 7. A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving, a holiday feast with the Peanuts clan. (30 mins.)

Leaving Home, on 2 and 6 at 9. A repeat telecast of David French's powerful drama of a family crisis. Set in Toronto in the mid-'50s, it's the story of a bitter confrontation — a one-night, no-holds-barred row that ends in an irreparable family rift. An excellent cast includes Sean Sullivan, Frank Moore, Maureen Fitzgerald and Anne Butler. (90 mins.)

JFK—A Time to Remember, on 4 at 11:30. Recalling the private side of President John F. Kennedy, who died ten years ago. Among those interviewed are the late President's brother Sen. Edward Kennedy; their mother Rose; Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary and Pulitzer Prize winner Theodore White (author of The Making of the President, 1960). (90 mins.)

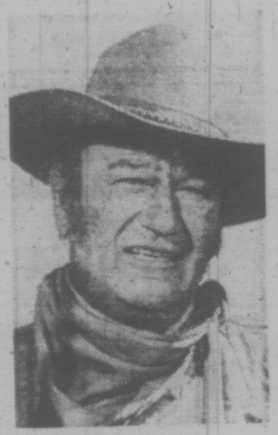
Movies

Return from the Ashes (xxx), on 4 at 9:30. A good cast (Maximillian Schell, Ingrid Thulin, anl Samantha Eggar) and some interesting plot twists make this off-beat 1965 suspense film worthwhile. It's about a woman scarred from years in a Nazi concentration camp, who undergoes plastic surgery, and returns home only to find her husband involved in an affair with her stepdaughter.

My Six Loves (x), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A Broadway star finds six kids living in her country home and decides to adopt them in this predictable 1963 comedy starring Debbie Reynolds and Cliff Robertson.

The Bamboo Prison (xxx), on 13 at 1:30. A well-directed 1955 drama about a young sergeant accused of collaborating with the Communists during the Korean War, starring Robert Francis and Brian Keith.

The Seven Year Itch (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. Marilyn Monroe gives one of her best screen performances in this delightful 1955 comedy. She is ideally cast as a sexy model who lives in the same apartment building as a happily married man (Tom Ewell) who finds himself thinking and living like a bachelor when his wife goes on a prolonged summer vacation.



JOHN WAYNE
. . . on 2 at 11:50 p.m.

The Deadly Affair (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. An engrossing 1967 detective drama set amid the world of espionage and agent, starring James Mason, Simone Signoret, Maximillian Schell and Lyn Redgrave.

JAMES MASON
. . . on 7 at 3:30 p.m.

Mason is excellent as a British agent who set out to uncover the hidden facts behind a government employee's mysterious suicide.

That Touch of Mink (xxx), on 13 at 8. An enjoyable spicey 1962 comely about how a business tycoon makes a play for an unemployed damsel, and vice-versa, starring Cary Grant, Doris Day and Gig Young.

Doctor Dolittle (xxxx), on 4 and 8 at 8. Rex Harrison, Samatha Eggar, Anthony Newley and Richard Attenborough star in this delightful music-filled 1967 fantasy based on Hugh Lofting's stories for children. This movie won Oscars for its visual effects and the song, Talk to the Animals.

No Time For Sergeants (xxx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. Andy Griffith re-creates his stage role in Ira Levin's hit Broadway play, about a farm boy who gets drafted into the army and creates mayhem among his superiors and colleagues. Filmed in 1958 with an excellent supporting cast that includes Nick Adams, Don Knotts, Myron McCormick and Will Hutchins.

Stagecoach (xxxx), on 2 at 11:50. The 1939 John Ford western classic about a group of assorted passengers on a stage going into hostile Indian country and their reactions under stress. A fine, dramatic film with an excellent cast that includes John Wayne, Claire Trevor and Thomas Mitchell.

Torture Garden (xx), on 6 at midnight. A well-made 1969 quartet of horror stories, starring Jack Palance and Burgess Meredith.

Murderers' Row (xx), on 8 at midnight. A 1966 sequel to Dean Martin's Matt Helm adventure that finds him trying to cope with a bevy of beautiful girls (Ann-Margret, Camilla Sparv) and an archvillain, delightfully over-played by pro Karl Malden.

King and Country (xxx), on 13 at midnight. An excellent British-made 1964 drama about a sensitive private who is placed on trial for desertion during the First World War, and is defended by a Captain convinced of his innocence. It's a brutal study of the injustices of war, and a flawless cast includes Dirk Bogarde, Tom Courtenay and Leo McKern.

Today's Highlights

Book Beat, on 9 at 7. The dean of detective writers, Rex Stout is interviewed by host Bob Cromie. Stout's best-known sleuth is a 300-pound gourmet named Nero Wolfe. Now 87 years old, Stout discusses his prolific career. (30 mins.)

Banacek, on 5 at 8:30. Shades of Briain's royal wedding — a precious jewel-encrusted coach has been created for an Eastern shah's marriage. Now it has vanished from the hold of a steamer, leaving Banacek to unravel, The Three Million Dollar Piracy. George Peppard plays the title role. (90 mins.)

Conflicts, on 9 at 8:30. Hollywood Television Theatre debuts a new weekly series of short plays dating from the turn of the century to the present. The first — and oldest — is George Bernard Shaw's, The Man of Destiny, a witty comedy about the young general Napoleon Bonaparte and his involvement with a mystery lady. Stacy Keach and Samantha Eggar star. (60 mins.)

French Chef, on 9 at 9. Tips for the holiday season as Julia Child prepares a turkey dinner with all the trimmings. (30 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Johnny welcomes comedian Rodney Dangerfield ("I don't get no respect . . ."). (90 mins.)

REX HARRISON plays the title role in the delightful musical fantasy, Doctor Doolittle, to be telecast on Wednesday at 8 p.m. on Channels 4 and 8. The kindly doctor is seen relaxing here with his parrot and his beloved Pushmi-Pullyu, a two-headed llama. This 1967 movie won Oscars for its visual effects and the song, Talk to the Animals.

TOMMY AND TESSIE—Dynamic British music hall star Tessie O'Shea sings and clowns with the host of the Tommy Banks Show, to be telecast on Wednesday at 10:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6. Dr. James Boren, who specializes in firing satiric barbs at Washington bureaucrats, rounds out the guest list for the show on this occasion.

CBC-TV's Grey Owl Up for an Emmy

Grey Owl, CBC-TV's one-hour biographical documentary on the life and work of Canada's great pioneer conservationist (1888-1938), has been selected as one of five nominees in the non-fiction category, International Emmy Awards. The winner will be announced in New York on November 19.

The film Grey Owl, produced and directed by Nancy Ryley for CBC-TV's Man at the Centre series, was first seen on the network on December 11, 1972, and repeated this fall (October 9). It combines nature photography with rare film of Grey Owl himself, and memories of the man recalled by his contemporaries, including Lovat Dickson, his British publisher, who wrote the script. Narration is by George Finstad, with voice-over portrayals by Colin Fox (as Grey Owl) and Chris Wiggins.

The other four nominees for the International Emmy Award in the non-fiction category (which includes news, documentary and biography) are from England:

Ian Tyson Show

FOLK SINGER Dee Higgins joins Charlie Rich and Kenny Rankin on the Ian Tyson Show, to be telecast on Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 8.

Movies

The End of the Affair (xxx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A well-acted but over-long 1955 melodrama about the love affair between an American writer and the wife of a British civil servant, starring Van Johnson, Deborah Kerr and John Mills.

Battle Stations (xx), on 13 at 1:30. An uninspired 1956 war movie about life aboard a Second World War naval aircraft carrier, starring William Bendix, Richard Boone and John Lund.

Hans Christian Andersen (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. A lavish and charming 1952 mixture of song, ballet and fantasy with Danny Kaye as the Danish storyteller. Family entertainment.

Jumbo (xxx), on 4 at 8. A 1962 Rogers and Hart musical extravaganza with a circus background, starring Doris Day, Stephen Boyd, Dean Jagger, Jimmy Durante and Martha Raye.

My Fair Lady (xxxx), on 5 at 8. A repeat telecast of Lerner and Lowe's musical classic, starring Audrey Hepburn, Rex Harrison and Stanley Holloway. George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion inspired the Broadway musical and this 1964 film, whose eight Oscars include Best Picture, Actor (Harrison), Director (George Cukor) and Costume Design (Cecil Beaton). Recommended, even if you don't like musicals—you'll enjoy this one.)

Shark (xx), on 12 at 8. Burt Reynolds, Barry Sullivan and Arthur Kennedy star in this 1970 adventure about a hunt for sunken trasure in the Sudan.

Duel at Diablo (xxx), on 7 at 9. A tough, effective 1966 western drama that offers a violent account of calvary-Indian warfare. The action centers on a trek into Apache country, where a scout seeks to avenge his Indian wife's murder. A competent cast includes James Garner, Sidney Poitier, Bibi Andersson, Dennis Weaver and Bill Travers.

Fun in Acapulco (xx), on 12 at 9. Routine 1964 Elvis Presley musical enhanced by some good tunes and lush Mexican scenery.

The Lost Continent (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. Comic strip stuff played with grim determination by a cast that includes Eric Porter and Hildegarde Neff. Bizarre sets, mechanical monsters and special effects provide the only inerest in this story about storm survivors landing on uncharted land.

The Scarlet Claw (xx), on 2 at 11:50. Sherlock Holmes (Basil Rathbone) and Dr. Watson (Nigel Bruce) investigate a legendary Canadian marsh monster blamed for a murder, in this 1944 mystery.

Captain from Castile (xx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. A 1947 costume adventure starring Tyrone Power as a fugitive from the Spanish Inquisition who joins the Cortex expedition in Mexico.

The Killers (xxxx), on 13 at midnight. A suspenseful, well-acted, well-directed 1946 crime drama about an insurance agent who unravels the killing of a washed up boxer. Extended from the taut Hemingway short story and starring Burt Lancaster, Ava Gardner and Edmond O'Brien.

Storm Over the Nile (xx), on 6 and 8 at 2. A British-made 1956 re-make of White Feathers, about an Englishman who resigns his army commission and goes to the Sudan to prove he is not a coward. Anthony Steele and Laurence Harvey star.

Specials

U.S. Thanksgiving Day Parade, on 5 at 10 a.m. R. H. Macy's 47th annual blockbuster parade, live from New York City with hosts Martin Milner and Kent McCord (Adam-12) and entertainment with Pat Boone and the Mike Curb Congregation. (3 hours)

Thanksgiving Day Parade, on 7 and 12 at 12:30. Highlights of four of North America's biggest parades with William (Cannon) Conrad and Miss Teenage America Melissa Galbraith as guides. Coverage includes Eaton's 69th annual Santa Claus Parade in Toronto. (3 hours)

Magic Man, on 5 at 3:30. Wizardry on display with Bill Bixby (The Magician) hosting a variety of magic acts. (90 mins.)

Alice Through the Looking Glass, on 5 at 5. A musical adaptation of Lewis Carroll's classic, a sequel to Alice in Wonderland. In this fantasy (first telecast in 1966) Alice can become a queen by making a visit to the Royal Castle. But she will have to avoid the Jabberwock — a flame-eyed monster that rules the land. Cast includes Agnes Moorehead, Jack Palance, Jimmy Durante and Judi Rolin as Alice. (90 mins.)

Changing Seasons, on 9 at 8:30. A season-spanning tour of Boston's Arnold Arboretum, with horticulturist Thalassa Cruso as tour guide. (30 mins.)

Jacques Cousteau, on 8 at 9. Cousteau challenges the Antarctic, in this first of a four-part chronicle of the oceanographer's "long-dreamed" ambition. This expedition is Cousteau's most dangerous as the Calypso faces raging seas fed by winds of 100 m.p.h., sub-zero temperatures and treacherous icebergs. (In a tragic accident, not on camera, the first mate is killed). (60 mins.)

David Niven: A Personal View, on 8 at 10: A special about actor David Niven, based on his best-selling autobiography, The Moon is a Balloon. (60 mins.)

A Salute to Humble Howard, on 4 at 11:30. Howard Cosell is on the receiving end of insults from (among others) Don Rickles, Steve Allen, Don Adams, Muhammad Ali and Dr. Joyce Brothers, in tonight's Friar's Roast. Host is David Steinberg. (90 mins.)

Today's Highlights

Luncheon Date, on 2 at noon. Host Elwood Glover welcomes Marlene Dietrich, Lillian Gish and country and western singer Tammy Wynette. (60 mins.)

Kung Fu, on 8 at 8. A repeat telecast of last season's opening show that establishes Caine's (David Carradine) skill in the defensive art of kung fu and — because he is sought by bounty hunters — the danger he brings to those he befriends. Brandon Cruz (Eddie from Eddie's Father) and John Saxon co-star. (60 mins.)

Burr Enjoys the Good Life on His Island

By LAWRENCE LAURENT
The Washington Post

Raymond Burr returned to Los Angeles this fall to begin his 16th year of network series television, and he had more problems than usual. On the way home from Portugal he had stopped in the Azores and had been hospitalized with a "mild" heart attack. (A "mild" heart attack is one that doesn't kill you.)

The medical experts, no more immune to the celebrated Burr charm thon the rest of us, had turned fierce. Burr, at 6 feet 3 is a big man, but he is terribly overweight.

The doctors told Burr that he must restrict his intake to no more than 1,000 calories a day. He's supposed to take off 100 pounds, which would carry him below the weight he carried when he began playing Perry Mason in 1957.

The doctors had also ordered Burr to stop smoking, no easy matter for a confirmed two-packs-a-day addict.

Still, Burr was in a good mood. He had received an honor that morning, the first day of shooting for the seventh season of Ironside. Universal Studios had put up a huge sign across the main entrance: "Welcome back, Raymond."

But the chauffeur who drove Burr from Hollywood to Universal City hadn't been told about the sign, and he took Burr, as usual, through the back entrance.

Burr was in his dressing room when he heard about the sign. He summoned the chauffeur, got into the back seat of the Cadillac, went out of the studio and made a proper, honored re-entry.

Burr beamed: "that's the first time the studio ever did that for anyone."

Another reason for Burr's sunny mood was that he was once again involved in the reconstruction of a home. Burr is a formidable builder. He transformed a house on the Pacific Ocean into a mansion, lost interest and sold it. He now owns the island of Naitauba in the Fiji Islands and has a magnificent home there.

This time he bought an old place in the Hollywood Hills and set about transforming it into a mansion. The hill has already been terraced. The greenhouses for growing orchids were finished, and new trees had been planted. The heated swimming pool was ready for use, and the third floor that Burr added to the old house was nearly finished.

Included in the work force are six natives of the island Burr owns. They go to school, learning the crafts that are needed by the people of the Fijis, and they help with the work around the home. Burr pays all the bills and is pleased to do so.

Burr plans to retire to his island. He bought it six years ago for a price reported at $200,000 and immediately broadened his investment with an electrical power plant. A village on the island has about 180 citizens. In a news service story about speculation in buying islands, Fijian officials carefully excluded Burr from the speculators. One said: "his sort is welcome here."

Burr is welcome most of the places around the world. He has been a guest at the White House, meeting with every president since he was invited by Franklin D. Roosevelt. He made dozens of trips to South Korea when American troops were fighting there, and he made a dozen trips to South Vietnam during that war. He never went as part of a big group. He travellled alone, stopping to chat with soldiers, individual to individual.

He fell to reminiscing about the Ironside series. "I was not the first choice for the role," he said, and the statement surprised me. "We spent much of the first year in turmoil, trying to define the character of Robert T. Ironside."

Originally the man in the wheelchair had been a steady drinker of burbon and in constant state of irritation. Burr found the character simply didn't work, and several producers later Burr had the kind of Ironside he — and a large segment of the television audience — wanted.

Burr, Don Galloway and Don Mitchell have been with Ironside from the beginning. This is the second season for Elizabeth Baur, who came in as a replacement for Barbara Anderson after that actress decided to concentrate on marriage. The decision didn't last long, but by the time Anderson was ready to return to work, the job was being done by Baur.

Burr is too thoughtful a man to use the Hollywood cliche about the cast being "just one big, happy family." He knows too well that the pressure of filming deadlines and honorable differenees of opinion do occur among actors.

A sound stage is seldom a happy place, and it isn't intended to be one. It is a place of tension and the kind of struggling that accompanies an honest effort to create. "We get along very well on the set." Burr said and left the subject right there.

Meanwhile, Burr is not the kind of man to diet idly. He has plans to market orchids commercially. He has more Fijians to educate and at least one book to write. The successful television special he did on Pope John XXIII may become a feature length motion picture. Business propositions come to him daily, and he gives most of them careful consideration.

"Money is no longer a problem," he said with a grin, "but the wise and prudent use of it will always be a problem." He couldn't have made that statement when he first arrive in Los Angles in 1940.

He was 23 and just out of the forestry service. He called on an old friend, actress Ona Munson, who quickly invited Burr to escort her to a party for the premiere of Alfred Hitchcock's Rebecca. Burr found a rooming house, rented a tuxedo and went off with Munson to Ciro's. During the party he became a favorite dancing partner of actress Hedy Lamarr.

Burr got back to his hooming house about 4 a.m., just in time for a telephone call. A laundry service needed a driver, and one of Burr's forestry service buddies had applied, leaving Burr's telephone number. To hold the job open until the buddy could be located, Burr agreed to take the morning run as the laundry truck driver.

By 11 a.m. he was making delivery to an imposing Bevery Hills mansion, which just happened to belong to Hedy Lamarr, his dancing partner of the previous evening. Burr, burdened with linen, entered the house and immediately encountered the actress.

"Don't I know you?" she asked.

Burr laughed at the 33-year-old memory.

"I didn't say a word. I just put down the linen and left. I didn't even collect.

"My buddy had been located, and he took over the job of driving the laundry truck.

"But to this day, as far as I know, Hedy Lamarr still thinks she spent a night at a party dancing with a laundry truck driver."

Now that NBC has its Tomorrow program on the air Monday through Thursday at 1 a.m., it seems to have monopolized clock and calendar, what with its already established Today and Tonight programs. But what about a "Yesterday" show?

H.M.S. PINAFORE—Michael Rayner has a musical word with Pamela Field in this scene from the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company's production of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera H.M.S. Pinafore to be telecast on Channel 7 at 2 p.m. on Friday.

Gilbert and Sullivan An Ill-Matched Pair

In perfect harmony, the two men were virtually indispensable to each other as musical creators. But as friends, the best they could come up with was one long dischord.

The two gentlemen, of course, were the redoubtable Sir Arthur Seymour Sullivan and Sir William Schwenck Gilbert, respectively, the composer and the librettist of comic operas that have thrived for nearly 100 years and show no signs of diminishing.

The Gilbert and Sullivan magic will glisten again when one of the most popular of their works, H.M.S. Pinafore, is presented by the famous D'Oyly Carte Opera Company on the CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People Friday, Nov. 23 (2:00-3:30 p.m.) on Channel 7 and 12. Richard Thomas (John-Boy on The Waltons) will appear as the program's host-narrator.

Born in London on May 13, 1942, Sullivan, at age 14, received the first Mendelssohn Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, in 1856, and studied for two years at Leipzig. Although he produced some successful music, such as the ballad The Lost Chord, it was his work with Gilbert — the operettas — that brought financial rewards.

In the Victorian mind, however, there was something shoddy about a serious composer getting rich from "flighty" material. Even Queen Victoria made the point to Sullivan. Eventually, Sullivan believed it.

Not so with Gilbert. The product of upper-middle-class parentage, he was originally a civil servant. He took to writing humorous sketches while at school and continued to do so at work. Later, he became a barrister —but not a very successful one. Yet, his experiences in court supplied him with satirical material, which was eventually published in a magazine called Fun.

Richard D'Oyly Carte, a composer of songs and operettas who turned impresario, brought Gilbert and Sullivan together for their first successful collaboration, Trial by Jury, in 1875. (Previously they'd worked together on a long-forgotten operetta, Thespis, which folded in a month.)

Trial by Jury was such a solid hit that D'Oyly Carte moved fast. He tied up Gilbert and Sullivan's services, created a comedy opera company to present their shows and, in 1877, staged another G. and S. work, The Sorcerer. Thus, the series of Gilbert and Sullivan creations was launched. Audiences adored them, and the trio became very rich men.

Never had music witnessed such a symbiotic partnership. Unfortunately, the two men didn't particularly care for one another. Theirs was never a "let's sit down at the piano and write a song together" relationship. Gilbert would write some lyrics and ship them off to Sullivan. If Sullivan approved, he'd set them to music. The pair made sure that they saw as little of each other as possible. Moreover, Gilbert had an inflammable temper anl argued constantly with Sullivan towards the end of their career. Their collaboration ended with the poorly received The Grand Duke.

Sullivan died in 1900, and Gilbert died in 1911, in an attempt to save a woman from drowning.

8:00 (FM) The Entertainers—The current concert and nightclub sensation Bette Midler, sings hits from the 20s, 30 and 40s in the style of those times, "The divine Miss M", as she calls herself, discusses her brand of 'trash with flash' is an interview with freelancer Wendy Blair. Activist Wins Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — In a landmark decision, the Federal Court of Canada dismissed today an appeal by United States authorities for the extradition of Puerto Rican activist Humberto Pagan.

The appeal marked the first time in Canada a state has appealed a decision refusing extradition.

Pagan, 22, faces a murder charge in Puerto Rico in connection with the death of a police captain, killed during a student demonstration.

Last year, County Court Judge A. E. Honeywell ruled against an extradition appeal by U.S. authorities, saying there was no factual basis for the murder charge in evidence presented during a three-week hearing.

Last August, the Federal Court refused to hear the U.S. appeal against Pagan, saying it had no jurisdiction in the matter.

The U.S. then went to the Supreme Court of Canada, seeking the right to take the appeal to the Federal Court.

Pagan still faces a deportation order issued after he fled to Canada under a false name.

The U.S. has three courses of action open in the case.

The matter can be dropped, a last appeal can be made to the Supreme Court of Canada, or an entirely new extradition hearing can be launched, with new evidence.

Sources indicated the latter possibility is unlikely.

U.S. Recession Fear Growing

Times News Services

The U.S. National Petroleum Council, the board chairman of Atlantic Richfield Oil Co. and a prestigious economic forecasting group are predicting that the United States energy crisis may quickly lead to serious unemployment and a recession.

"The 1973 U.S. economy is now vulnerable to a recession and may quickly succumb to the effects of the growing fuel crunch," was the conclusion of a special forecast of the Wharton Econometric team at the University of Pennsylvania.

If no emergency actions are taken, a National Petroleum Council report said, anticipated fuel shortages will "cause an annual loss of $48 billion from what the U.S. gross national product in 1974 would otherwise have been.

A commerce department official said next year's GNP will probably be about $1,400 billion, not counting energy losses.

Atlantic Richfield chairman Robert O. Anderson said his firm's refinery operating rate will drop to 85 per cent by year's end and, after that, into the low 80s, "if we are lucky."

Both Anderson and the National Petroleum Council report said unemployment resulting from fuel shortages could reach as high as 8 per cent.

At the same time warnings came from sources close to President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, as well as Harvard economist Otto Eckstein and Treasury Secretary George Shultz, against alarmist economic predictions based on still uncertain energy variables.

Shultz told the senate finance committee that "there have been lots of very dire and foreboding statements" on the implications of the shortages. "I think myself it's too soon" to be making such judgments.

He said the problem may "be handled by measures that will still allow the economy to move ahead powerfully."

Professors Lawrence Klein, George Green and F. Gerard Adams of the Wharton school said in their special forecast that although the economy has for some time tottered on the brink of mild recession, "It now appears that a substantial shock is coming from an unplanned source — the cutting off of Middle East oil imports."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield today called on Congress and President Nixon to stop "dilly-dallying" and start printing gas ration coupons.

"Unless something is done, mark my words, it'll mean recession in 1974," Mansfield said.

U.S. corporations reported sharply slower growth in profits in the third quarter of the year, led by declines in auto industry earnings, the U.S. commerce department reported today.

Personal income of Americans rose at a slower pace in October — a $9.2-billion increase compared with an increase of $11.2 billion in September.

In New York, some company officials were warning that fuel oil cutbacks could lead to bankruptcies of some companies. Inability to buy fuel would temporarily close some operations and would force marginal companies to shut down.

In Detroit the automobile industry was reducing prices on large cars with low gas mileage as the mood of the buying public changed and a definite trend toward smaller cars was under way.

In Los Angeles construction officials were concerned that the energy crisis would postpone or cancel many projects on the books, including some for refinery expansion. Some refineries were being forced to consider cutbacks, rather than production increases.

In Vancouver oil industry officials were confident that supplies would be available in British Columbia in the near term but the trend towards conservation would reduce volume of sales and lead to an uncertain corporate performance.

The uncertainty was reflected in the stock market with the Dow Jones industrial index under pressure and the Toronto market trending downward in sympathy.

The Dow Jones on Sept. 13 had been 880.57 and rose dramatically to a peak of 987.06 on Oct. 26, powered by signs that a predicted recession in 1974 either would not happen or would be of small duration and extent.

THE END OF THE CREAM

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Conservationist and architect R. Buckminster Fuller says the United States has "not a crisis of energy, but a crisis of ignorance."

Fuller said, "Much of the crisis is in confusion over the issues and the excitability of man, especially when he is ignorant. We do not have a shortage of energy; we have to understand how to convert energy to our use.

"We've been taking the cream from the top for many years," he said. "We've just put the pipes into the ground, and up has come the oil.

"We've been living on our savings account, and, of course, you can't do that," Fuller said. "If a family lives on its savings instead of its income . . . well, it can't do that for long."

Fuller said that other sources of energy must be considered and he mentioned the sun and wind.

"The prospects of harnessing wind power is immediate," he said, "but nobody seems interested in the windmill."

Fuller, who invented the geodesic dome, said that wind as a source of power "can be accumulated in good batteries." He said a project of the National Academy of The Sciences in Massachusetts has built "a battery of windmills to feed right into a power plant."

Fuller said solar energy is also capable of being conserved. He said he once lived in a room in Carbondale, Ill., with tinfoil lining the floor and ceiling with the result "heat bounced back and forth with remarkable efficiency."

Fuller, now a visiting professor at Southern Illinois University here, said alternative sources of energy are not being implemented because of the lobbies against them.

"The enormous amount of wealth released when petroleum was let loose in this country made the oil companies very powerful," he said. "The present government is really paying attention to big money, and the lobbies are so powerful.

"We have options that most people don't know we have. Humanity has just broken out of its eggshell and we have to make good within a minute. We'll see more changes taking place in the affairs of man in the next five years than in the entire history of man."

ATHENS FIGHT RAGES

Times News Services

ATHENS — Battles flared between thousands of student demonstrators and police throughout the Greek capital today after the students issued a call to topple the regime.

Battles between club-carrying rioters and baton-swinging police erupted in almost every square in the city.

In a matter or minutes the city turned into a battleground as squads of policemen raced through the streets hitting at anyone in front of them.

Announcers shouted over the radio station broadcasting from the student-occupied Polytechnic Institute that "tonight is our night."

The announcers issued instructions for groups of demonstrators to move through the city, and told them: "Don't be afraid of police, the junta collapses tonight."

The station dubbed itself the Radio of the Free Students.

"We appeal to anti-dictatorial and progressive forces to join us," the broadcast said. "Our struggle is anti-fascist and anti-imperialist. We want to free Greece from foreign capital."

On Thursday, more than 10,000 demonstrators choked off the main Pattission Boulevard in the capital for four hours to show support for about 3,000 students barricaded inside the Polytechnic.

Rookies Blast Off

Times News Services

CAPE CANAVERAL — Three rookie astronauts rocketed into orbit today to start man's longest space voyage, an 84-day "holiday cruise" aboard the earth-orbiting Skylab space station.

Gerald Carr, William Pogue, and Dr. Edward Gibson, 37, soared into space atop a Saturn 1-B rocket at 6:01 a.m. PST.

Ten minutes later, Mission Control reported their Apollo ferry ship was safely in orbit ready for the marathon journey.

The astronauts immediately began tracking down the 85-ton Skylab space station, a demanding task expected to take more than eight hours.

The first of five manoeuvres leading to the rendezvous came two hours later when the pilots fired the main engine of the Apollo for the first time for two seconds. This raised them into a higher orbit and narrowed the gap between Apollo and Skylab.

"That was one heck of a kick in the pants," Carr said.

The astronauts plan to sleep in Apollo tonight and enter the space station Saturday morning.

Doctors advised them to move cautiously in the first days in space to avoid the motion sickness problems encountered by the second Skylab.

All three astronauts, however, appeared to be in great shape in orbit and enjoying their first exposure to prolonged weightlessness.

"I'll tell you it's neat, it's really neat," Carr said. "You've got three happy rookies up here."

"It's a great world," Gibson said in an enthusiastic burst of communications with the ground.

"We can't hardly take our eyes away from the windows," Pogue said. "There's already nose smears on them."

The rocket, plagued by structural cracks and a fuel tank problem during the last weeks of checkout, worked flawlessly.

Launch director Walter Kapryan admitted he was "scared to death" when the space machine went through the period of maximum aerodynamic stresses but said all studies showed the rocket would work as well as it did.

During the marathon flight, which will span United States Thanksgiving Day, Christmas and New Year's, the spacemen are to conduct extensive studies of the sun, earth and man.

They will also take an unprecedented look at the comet Kohoutek, now streaking in from deep space.

Fire Kills 24 In Los Angeles

Times News Services

LOS ANGELES—A fire described as the worst in the city's history raced through a three-storey frame apartment building early today, killing residents in their beds while others jumped to their deaths trying to escape the flames.

The fire department said at least 24 persons were killed, including nine children, and more than 30 others injured.

"The place was loaded with kids, unfortunately, and we lost some of them," said fireman Steve Varney.

The blaze erupted in the middle of the H-shaped Stratford Apartments, a wooden building housing 120 to 150 residents, most of them Mexican-American.

"When we arrived there were people hanging from windows and jumping or falling. There were people standing beneath them with blankets, trying to catch them, or yelling at them in Spanish to stay in the building as long as they could—not to jump," Varney said.

"Everything was quick," said Vince Alvarez, who lived on the first floor with his wife Cristina and son Porgy, 15.

"I was asleep, and when I got up to get some water, I saw smoke and fire in the hallway. People were screaming and there was fire all over.

"I screamed to my wife 'let's go!' after I got my wife and son out, I was coming out the window and a lady that jumped almost hit me. She had a baby in her arms and she threw it to my son and he caught the baby."

Witnesses said when the first firemen arrived bodies lay in piles on the street. Bodies weer stacked by firemen in amakeshift morgue across the street.

Most of those who survived lived near fire escapes, survivors said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Whelan Recalled

ROME (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has unexpectedly called Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan back to Ottawa to attend an unusual Saturday morning cabinet meeting.

Whelan said he was not sure why he had been called back but suspected it was for a general cabinet meeting that may precede a Commons adjournment.

U.S. Output Grows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board reports American factories increased production by 0.6 per cent last month, a sizeable figure considering that some industries are now running flat out with no room left to expand.

The commerce department reported significant improvements in the U.S. balance of payments with foreign trading partners in the July-September quarter.

$15M 'Missing'

NEW YORK (Reuter)—More than $15 million worth of negotiable U.S. government treasury securities are missing from the vault of the Chase Manhattan Bank here. More than $10 million of them belonging to customers.

Norse Crown Up

OSLO (Reuter) — New exchange rates for the Norwegian crown were announced today as a result of the government decision Thursday night to raise the value of the currency 5 per cent.

When foreign exchange markets reopened this morning the crown was back at the centre of the floating band of seven West European currencies after pressing its ceiling early this week.

IRA Ambush

BELFAST (UPI) — Irish Republican Army gunmen used the rural home of an elderly couple today to ambush an armor-plated police car, wounding one policeman in the leg.

FIRMS SCRAMBLE FOR TANKERS

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Oil companies are scrambling in search of tankers to ship excess crude from Vancouver to eastern Canada via the Panama Canal.

Already one company — Gulf Oil — has lined up one ship carrying 180,000 barrels and several others with refineries in Quebec are expected to follow.

"The situation is that there are at least three shippers in eastern Canada endeavoring to line up tankers and we anticipate they will have some success," said Kenneth Hall, vice-president, operations, of Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co. Ltd., owner of the pipeline that supplies Vancouver and Washington State.

Hall predicted the port of Vancouver will see four to five tankers in about 10 days.

In Ottawa, Environment Minister Jack Davis said Thursday his department doesn't know whether the proposal to ship oil through the Strait of Juan de Fuca is ecologically safe.

But in any case, he said, the volume required from the West Coast would be only "a drop in the bucket" compared to the quantity of Alaskan oil which would be carried by huge tankers into the Cherry Point refinery from Alaska.

Israel Offering Deal to Syria

By United Press International

With the Israeli-Egyptian prisoner of war exchange in its second day Israel stepped up efforts today to get back PoWs held by Syria and prepared to submit to Egypt a three-part plan to pull both armies back from the Suez Canal. The plan would set up a UN-controlled buffer zone on each side of the canal.

It would be the second stage of a Middle East settlement leading to a peace conference in Geneva. But there were indications the Arab world was in disarray and that both a proposed Arab summit conference and the Geneva peace conference might be postponed before the early December date mentioned earlier.

In the PoW exchange, 28 Israeli soldiers flew to Tel Aviv from Cairo to a tearful welcome from Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and 294 Egyptians flew from Tel Aviv to Cairo aboard planes chartered by the International Red Cross. Nine of the Isrealis had been held since the 1970 war.

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan also disclosed a "far reaching" offer aimed at letting Syrians return to captured territory in the Golan Heights in exchange for a prisoner release.

Dayan offered to let about 15,000 Syrian villagers return to abandoned homes in territory captured by Israel in exchange for a trade of prisoners seized in fighting on the Golan Heights.

At the United Nations, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said that despite a request to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to help achieve a PoW exchange with Syria, "unfortunately, I can't say there is reason for hope."

Syria was reported by officials in Tel Aviv to be holding 70 to 80 Israelis, while about 150 Syrians were reported in Israeli hands.

LETHAL WASTE SPILLS AGAIN

RICHLAND, Wash (UPI) — An estimated 7,000 gallons of lethal nuclear waste spilled into the ground from a pipe Thursday at the Hanford Atomic Reservation.

But a new spill-monitoring system kept the leakage small, according to officials of the federal plant, where more than 530,000 gallons of nuclear waste have leaked into the ground since 1958.

Gas Price War Feared in City

British Columbia is beginning to produce surplus gasoline and the oil industry is concerned about a possible price war in Vancouver and Victoria, B.C. Petroleum Association president Barry Sleigh said today.

He said refineries are going full out to meet a heavy demand for furnace oil.

"However, we can't refine furnace oil without producing gasoline at the same time. We are concerned about the situation because surpluses usually lead to price wars."

Sleigh said British Columbians can expect to have sufficent supplies of furnace oil for many years and surplus supplies of gasoline during winter months.

"Petroleum products in short supply are lubricating oils and a possible shortage of heavy bunker oil in the winter of 1974-1975."

Bunker oil is used as fuel in heavy industries.

Sleigh said industrial fuel oil from California was guaranteed by contract for this winter but industries should get contracts for next winter right away because American supplies are uncertain.

He said industries could also face a serious problem of maintenance of machinery if lubricating oils become scarce, as seems likely.

Motorists and homeowners, however, are assured of good supplies of oil.

"If the British Columbia refineries are unable to meet the demand, we can import product from offshore. If that is not available, we can import furnace oil from the prairies, where there is a surplus."

Furnace oil brought by train from Edmonton or Calgary would be more expensive than B.C. fuel because of

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—A weakening trend in oilseeds that developed late in the session cut part of the gains in flax and pushed most rapeseed prices down at the close today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

After a strong opening, flax prices lost several cents or more, but still closed well above Thursday's closing levels. Thunder Bay rapeseed was down slightly, while Vancouver rapeseed was mixed, with gains limited to deferred contract months.

Rye was mixed, and oats and barley were up in light trading.

Thursday's volume of trade was 1,040,000 bushels of flax, 2,434,000 of rapeseed, 1,397,000 of rye, 50,000 of barley and 10,000 of oats.

Gas Testing Statements Don't Agree

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Contradicting U.S. Army Secretary Howard Callaway, a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday "there are no plans at all" for any open air testing of nerve gas in the United States.

Callaway said Wednesday in Salt Lake City that the army plans such tests.

But Jerry Friendheim, the Pentagon's chief press spokesman, said "there is no approved plan or program within the department of defence or within the department of the army at this time for any open-air testing of open-air agents."

Friendheim stressed U.S. policy is not to resort to any first use of chemical warfare agents.

Callaway's remarks about plans to test nerve gas in the open air were made at a Salt Lake City new conference.

He said open air tests are more useful than tests in restricted areas and that there are "places sufficiently isolated" to permit open air testing.

Dupont Plans $40M Plant In Quebec

MONTREAL (UPI) — Dupont of Canada Ltd. has announced it will construct a $40 million dacron production plant at St. Ignace du Coteau du Lac, Que., 40 miles west of Montreal.

Du Pont president R. J. Richardson told reporters the polyester yarn plant will employ some 350 persons.

Gerard Cadieux, parliamentary assistant to the minister of industry, trade and commerce, said each of the jobs will create 20 others in related industries throughout the province.

About 65 per cent of Canada's textiles are produced in Quebec. Dacron is used in apparel fabrics and for textured and stretched materials.

Toronto Prices Sharply Higher

Prices on the Toronto stock market remained sharply higher in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 2.13 million shares compared with 2.37 million at the same time Thursday.

Advances more than doubled declines, 301-to-146, with 212 issues unchanged.

Paper and forest, industrial mining, real estate and pipeline stocks were among sectors of the market recording the best gains, while steel, communication, food processing and construction and material issues were lower.

Moore Corp. rose 1½ to $54½, Chrysler 1⅜ to $20⅛, Falconbridge Nickel 1½ to $76½, Home Oil A 1⅛ to $54¼ and Noranda A 1 to $52½.

Texaco Canada gained 1¼ to $51, Atco Industries ⅝ to $16⅜, Cominco ⅞ to $37, MacMillan Bloedel ⅞ to $35½ and Grafton Group ¾ to $29¾.

Dome Mines was up 2⅛ to $102⅛ and Rio Algom 1¼ to $33.

United Canso climbed 1¼ to $22½ and Ranger 1 to $32.

New York

The stock market bounced up again today after a topsy-turvey session.

After opening lower, the Dow shot up in response to President Nixon's statement that there was a possibility of an easing in the Arab oil boycott. It trimmed its gains on reassessing the statement, brokers said, and finally began rising again.

On the New York Stock Exchange, advances led declines by about eight to five.

NYSE prices included Penn Central, down ½ to $3; GM, up 1 to $56⅜; Phillips Petroleum, down 2⅝ to $63¾; Hercules, up 1⅞ to $31⅝, and Pepsi Co., up 1 to $80⅞.

Logger Jailed For Rape

PARKSVILLE (CP) — Logger Jack Roy Wiggins, 26, of Franklin River camp, Thursday was sentenced in provincial court to 6½ years in prison for rape and sexual intercourse with a female under 14 years of age.

He was also sentenced to 3½ years, concurrent, for indecent assault.

The charges stemmed from an incident in the Nanoose Bay area, Oct. 20.

Montreal

All sectors but utilities climbed in light trading on the Montreal stock market today.

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 723,000 shares, compared with 564,187 at the same time Thursday.

Rio Algom Mines rose 1½ to $33, Placer Developments ¾ to $24¾, Texaco Canada ½ to $50¼ and Royal Trust ⅜ to $27 while Trimac Ltd. fell two to $8¾.

On the Canadian Stock Exchange, Cuvier Mines rose 15 cents to $3.00 on a volume of 46,700 shares.

London

Prices on the London stock market were slightly higher in light trading today.

The Financial Times index rose 1.8 points to 389.9 in mid-session trading.

Observers said the government's denial of rumors that it would introduce new deflationary measures contributed to the rise.

Canadian issues were higher.

CALGARY LIVESTOCK

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. today from the Calgary Public Stockyards totalled 4,200 head, practically all stock calves. Trade was moderately active with buyers sorting closely for quality.

There were no slaughter steers or heifers on offer. Cows sold steady for quality. A few bulls were sold at steady prices.

Cows, D1, D2: 31.50-33. D3:30-31.25. D4: 25-30.

Bulls, good: 38-42.

Replacements were practically all stock calves. Good stock calves sold steady, with plainer kinds selling under pressure at lower prices. Black calves were discounted $1 or more.

There were insufficient yearling steers or heifers sold early to establish a market. Good stock steer calves more than 400 pounds: 52-64. 300-400 pounds: 55-62. Common to medium: 40-50, depending on weight. Good stock heifer calves more than 400 pounds: 45-52. 300-400 pounds: 45-52. Common to medium: 38-45, depending on weight.

Hogs f.o.b. to 11 a.m.: 52.75.

Our Men in the South —They're a Sorry Lot

The attempt by an NDP member of Parliament to have our ambassador to Chile recalled, because of some messages that might be interpreted as an apology for the military goons who have taken over the country, is really quite funny if you happen to have a sardonic sense of humor.

I know it's not a subject that's going to grab you by the lapels, but it's surely time somebody put down the simple truth—that the official face of Canada everywhere throughout Latin-America is as reactionary and as resistant to desperately-needed change as any practising fascist you ever met.

I happen to know Andrew Ross, our man in Chile, and it's no surprise at all that, in his confidential cables to Ottawa, he should have seen the Chilean military thugs as a viable alternative to an elected, democratic government or that he should have urged quick Canadian recognition of the junta even while they were assassinating Chileans whose only crime was their belief in freedom of speech.

But "Andy" Ross is only typical of the career diplomats hand-picked by our people in external affairs and if the Trudeau government were to decide to recall him, which it won't, it would be just as reasonable to recall the whole bunch.

In two years of covering the nations of South America, as the first resident Canadian correspondent in that hemisphere, I was never anything less than appalled by the kind of man who is selected to represent us. They are not, in fact, representatives of a genuine Canadian attitude or opinion but representatives only of Canadian business. Like their American counterparts they are concerned with "stability." If that means rule by the gun that's just too bad.

In nations where, without exception, malnutrition means a cruelly shortened life expectancy for three out of every four children, our people live like millionaires. I never found one who was even remotely in touch with the realities of explosive societies in which a handful of the very rich keep in serfdom entire populations, always with the armed might of the privileged military in reserve when there's a threat to the oligarchy.

It can't be an easy task, finding men who are completely pragmatic, whose interest lies only in the status quo of trade and commerce, but somehow External Affairs has managed it.

One of the first, unforgettable sights when I began my two-year stint in Rio de Janeiro, only weeks after the military overthrow of the democratically elected government of President Goulart, was an oil portrait being painted by the wife of the then Canadian ambassador to Brazil, Paul Beaulieu. The subject was the economics minister appointed by the generals, a gent who, I gathered, was hugely enjoying his sittings in the baronial residence of our appointed envoy.

When I was threatened with expulsion from Brazil by the military—a move I circumvented by taking my family voluntarily to Argentina—our embassy took a strictly "hands off" view. If I was going to go on committing the "crimes" I was charged with—writing the story of grinding poverty in South America's largest and richest nation—then that was my affair, wasn't it?

It was only later that I came to realize there was a hard and fast line established by our people in Ottawa. When I wrote a story about the proposed Canadian embassy in the new capital of Brasilia I informed my editors that a sketch of the building, designed by Ned Pratt, of Vancouver, could be provided by External Affairs. The head of the Latin-American division there refused to release the sketch when he was told that it would illustrate my report. "We wouldn't want the Brazilian government to think that we're collaborating in any way with Scott," was the explanation. That "government" was—and is—a fascist dictatorship.

I was to find the same attitude by our appointed officials, at every level, wherever the news took me and, later, this was also the experience of Paul Kidd, of the Southams, who had a similar roving assignment.

Paul once told me, "Whenever I go into a Canadian embassy to find out some facts I'm pumped for the 'real story' of what's going on. All these people know is what they hear at their cocktail parties."

That was a common experience. If you found the occasional lower-echelon Canadian official who was troubled by the cynicism and the ignorance of his superiors you talked in whispers. Canadian and American business interests were what counted.

Andy Ross' estimate of the Chilean situation—that the military murderers had simply assumed "the probably thankless task" of sobering Chile up from a surfeit of politics (in other words that the blood bath could somehow be justified)—is right in character.

I do not believe our embassies throughout Latin-America can or should strive to influence events in that hemisphere, as the United States does through the CIA and through the supplying of arms. If we give our tacit approval to such machinations, as all the evidence suggests, it wins us neither friends nor enemies since we are totally without an expressed policy.

But I do believe that we should be represented by men and women who have a genuine concern in the future of millions of oppressed people, whose sole object should be a watching brief on a struggle that eventually will make Southeast Asia seem a picnic. Our people should know intimately what's going on and should be reporting the facts to Ottawa in the hope, however forlorn it may be, that we will some day take a stand for decency.

'Marks' Point To Capital Commission

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

There is "persistent evidence" to indicate the provincial government may soon establish a Provincial Capital Commission in Victoria, a city alderman said today.

Asked to comment on rumors to that effect, Ald. Mike Young said: "There are marks all over the globe that show this is going to happen."

But Young admitted he was "dealing strictly in hunches," and that the city had received no official intimation of any such move to establish a planning and development body similar to Ottawa's National Capital Commission.

Mayor Peter Pollen said he tended to think the rumors were strictly that, lacking any real substance. And Esquimalt MLA Jim Gorst, who has been the most outspoken advocate of a provincial capital commission, told the Times this morning he had heard nothing to indicate his proposals were receiving cabinet support.

Formed in 1959, the National Capital Commission is charged with the responsibility "to prepare plans for and assist in the development, conservation and improvement of the National Capital Region in order that the nature and character of the seat of government of Canada may be in accordance with its national significance."

It does not have jurisdictional authority over any of the municipal or regional authorities or the two provincial governments concerned.

Meanwhile, Pollen confirmed the provincial government had taken over from the city in negotiations with Marathon Realty Ltd. for purchase of the company's key property on the Inner Harbor near the Legislative Buildings.

'Gee, Be Our Guest'

Pollen said the city had been negotiating with Marathon Realty over the past six months on the basis of an understanding the provincial government would foot the bill of around $1 million.

But in the course of negotiations the acquisition area had grown to include a lot in the vicinity of Centennial Park, and as a result the price had risen by some $200,000, he said. "The provincial government seems to think this is excessive."

Pollen said the provincial authorities had asked if the city had any objections to the province taking over the negotiations, "and I said 'Gee, be our guest'."

But Pollen said he regrets the revised situation the Marathon deal leaked out in a radio news report, as this might prejudice the bargaining.

The provincial government is believed to be strongly in favor of acquiring the Marathon property for a number of reasons, but mainly because it eyes the pillared CP ticket office building — which now houses the Wax Museum on a long-term lease — as a possible provincial conference centre.

Young said the latest Marathon developments are an example of the "evidence" to which he was referring, but added: "That's coupled with about 12 other things."

"A number of things have happened that have convinced me we are only a few months away from a move of a fairly dramatic sort relating to provincial participation in development in the city," he said.

'It's Pretty Obvious'

"It's pretty obvious the provincial government foresees the opportunity to use money to try to establish political influence in the city of Victoria, where it has none at the present time.

"There is an excuse for moving in a fairly substantial way," Young added.

Young said he views the formation of a provincial capital commission with "considerable apprehension," as it would involve abdicating much responsibility for planning and development to a body which has no representation in the city.

He was concerned "particularly in the light of the motives that may be behind" such a move, he said.

Pollen said he has already told Premier Barrett he opposes the proposal as the Capital Improvement District Commission is already in existence and functioning well.

"By its very nature a provincial commission of this sort would have a tendency to exclude municipal participation. We have enough bureaucracy as it is," Pollen said.

Sell Car, Keep Those Plates

After next week, B.C. car owners will be required to hold on to their car licence plates even if their car is sold or traded, motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield said today.

The move is another step in the permanent licence plate system being adopted by the province. It will also be co-ordinated with the new car insurance scheme being initiated by the provincial government next year.

Hadfield said that after Nov. 24, people will be required to keep their licence plates when they sell, trade or dispose of their cars. The plates will then be used on any subsequent cars they buy, he said.

The same procedure will apply to other types of motor vehicles as well Hadfield said.

"By starting this new licensing control system now, a smooth move into the auto insurance plan can be made. We're confident that motor vehicle owners will adjust easily to the system and will be pleased with it," he said.

New transfer and registration forms will be available at motor vehicle branch offices to cover sales transactions after Nov. 24.

People who dispose of a vehicle and do not buy another one will be able to turn in their plates to a MVB office where they will be able to get a refund for the remaining portion of the licence year, Hadfield said.

Complete information for those persons buying vehicles will be available from dealers after Nov. 24, he said.

Emergency Plan Asked On Airport Crowding

An emergency plan to cope with increasing congestion at Victoria International Airport was called for by airport officials meeting with Ministry of Transport representatives today at the Empress Hotel.

Stan Mooney, an Air Canada official, stressed the need for some kind of plan to deal especially with congestion this summer.

He indicated thousands of additional passengers on chartered flights are expected to go through the Victoria terminal and asked for some assurance that measures would be taken in the near future.

"We're choking to death in the summer," Mooney told a meeting organized by ministry officials to lay groundwork for the future needs of the airport.

All segments of the community — service clubs, airline officials and representatives of three level of government were invited to the day-long meeting to discuss and plan the airport's needs for the next 20 years.

Transport official Des Allard said the ministry wanted advice from the community on a co-operative basis as part of an over-all master plan.

Advice for the future, however, became concern for the present, as delegates voiced their ideas.

Mooney said the congestion was "so bad last summer you couldn't get people in the terminal with a shoe horn.

"We want some emergency measures even if we have to push down walls."

Eric Anderson, MoT regional supervisor of planning, gave positive assurance that emergency requirements would be studied and "if need be we will knock down walls to handle the increase."

Officials said the congestion was not only limited to the reservation area, but customs clearance space and baggage procedure and inflight checks were also hampered by a lack of room.

A city representative was more concerned with over-all planning.

Graham Stallard, an assistant planner, said he would like to see thorough investigation into the whole transportation situation from both regional and national points of view.

He mentioned shuttle service plans and rapid transit system schedules linking Victoria and Vancouver with central Canada and stressed the need for an over-all master transit plan.

Fire Hazard Brings Plea for Suite Curbs

Esquimalt council will be asked Monday to pass a 60-day moratorium on all apartment building construction permits, Ald. George McCreadie said today.

McCreadie will recommend the move as chairman of council's fire committee "to give council time to adjust a conflict of interpretation over height regulations for apartments."

The move follows the release of a report from retiring fire chief Earl Sarsiat that Esquimalt had "the most vulnerable" frame structures" in Greater Victoria.

McCreadie said he requested the report about a month ago following his own brief inspection of a few apartment buildings.

"What we're concerned with here," he said, "are those buildings between three and six storeys high, which the National Building Code stipulates must be a mixture of combustible and non-combustible material."

Esquimalt's zoning bylaw now says that an apartment building must not exceed a maximum of 45 feet above the average finished grade of the site, he said.

"Average is the key word here," he added.

Depending on whether underground parking has been provided and whether the maximum height has been measured at the lowest point of the lot — "some apartment buildings seem to be five storeys high."

He said an amendment to the bylaw being considered would specify that "that type of building be limited to 35 feet above the average grade."

The fire chief has also pointed out that many of the taller buildings do not have a 30-foot wide area designed for fire trucks, as required by the building code.

Ald. McCreadie said the planning and zoning committee, chaired by Ald. Ken Hill, is studying a recommendation that the setback areas required for apartments be adjusted "to stop a tunnelling effect seen in the municipality after a tremendous burst of apartments."

Sarsait, who retires at the end of this year, said Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich all have more stringent bylaws regarding access of fire-fighting equipment to apartment buildings.

"Their bylaws also provide that plans of all buildings, other than private residences, must be . . . approved by the fire chief as well as the building inspectors."

Mayor Art Young, asked to comment on the report, said he'd rather wait until it was brought before council.

VOTE MONDAY ON GORGE PACT

About 350 employees at Gorge Road Hospital will meet Monday night to vote on a tentative contract.

Negotiators for the Hospital Employees Union and the B.C. Hospitals Association reached agreement in Vancouver Thursday after a final round of bargaining which began Monday.

The employees, all but registered nurses and paramedical personnel, had earlier voted 98.5 per cent to strike if necessary.

Details of the proposed contract are not being released before the ratification meeting. A location for the meeting is still being sought, a union spokesman said today.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAY — In loving memory of Leonard R. Day who passed away November 16, 1953.
We often think of days gone by,
When we were all together,
The family chain is broken now,
But memories live forever.
—Ever remembered, Harvey and Mari.

FENTON—In loving memory of my dear wife Charmaine Fenton, who passed away November 16th, 1972.
I have lost my souls companion,
A life linked with my own
And day by day I miss her more,
As I walk through life alone.
Her loving husband Ed Fenton.

FORD — Joseph Edwin, in loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away October 1st, 1971.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind,
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by wife Eulalie and daughter Fay.

GORDON — In loving memory of my dear friend Barbie, who was called away November 16th, 1972.
Someone remembers, someone cares,
Your name is whispered in all my prayers,
A smile, a tear, a thought sincere
How often Barbie I wish you were here.
Always together in memory's lane
Today, tomorrow, always the same.
Wherever I go, whatever I do,
My thought's dear Barbie are always with you.
—ALWAYS remembered and sadly missed from your best friend Kimberley LeQuesne and her family.

GORDON — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Barbie Gordon, who passed away on November 16, 1972.
Greatly loved and sadly missed.
Heart of our heart, we miss you so,
Often my darling our tears will flow
Cherishing your picture before our eyes,
But never the one in our heart that lies.
The stars seem dim as we whisper low,
Our darling Barbie, we miss you so.
— Loving memory, Mummy, Daddy, Gena, Don, Brad, Belle, Alec, Stew and brother-in-law Denis.

PARKER — In loving memory of William H. D. Parker, who left us on November 16, 1972.
Time cannot dim the face of love,
The memory of your smile,
The countless things you did for us,
To make our life worthwhile.
It broke our hearts to lose you
But you did not go alone,
For part of us went with you,
The day God called you home.
—Still missed by his loving wife Mary, daughter and son-in-law Claire and Doug.

PARKER — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, William, who passed away November 16, 1972.
Dearly loved in life,
Never forgotten in death.
—Muriel, Manny and Tammy and Jody.

Activist Wins Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — In a landmark decision, the Federal Court of Canada dismissed today an appeal by United States authorities for the extradition of Puerto Rican activist Humberto Pagan.

The appeal marked the first time in Canada a state has appealed a decision refusing extradition.

Pagan, 22, faces a murder charge in Puerto Rico in connection with the death of a police captain, killed during a student demonstration.

Last year, County Court Judge A. E. Honeywell ruled against an extradition appeal by U.S. authorities, saying there was no factual basis for the murder charge in evidence presented during a three-week hearing.

Last August, the Federal Court refused to hear the U.S. appeal against Pagan, saying it had no jurisdiction in the matter.

The U.S. then went to the Supreme Court of Canada, seeking the right to take the appeal to the Federal Court.

Pagan still faces a deportation order issued after he fled to Canada under a false name.

The U.S. has three courses of action open in the case.

The matter can be dropped, a last appeal can be made to the Supreme Court of Canada, or an entirely new extradition hearing can be launched, with new evidence.

Sources indicated the latter possibility is unlikely.

U.S. Recession Fear Growing

Times News Services

The U.S. National Petroleum Council, the board chairman of Atlantic Richfield Oil Co. and a prestigious economic forecasting group are predicting that the United States energy crisis may quickly lead to serious unemployment and a recession.

"The 1973 U.S. economy is now vulnerable to a recession and may quickly succumb to the effects of the growing fuel crunch," was the conclusion of a special forecast of the Wharton Econometric team at the University of Pennsylvania.

"If no emergency actions are taken, a National Petroleum Council report said, anticipated fuel shortages will "cause an annual loss of $48 billion from what the U.S. gross national product in 1974 would otherwise have been.

A commerce department official said next year's GNP will probably be about $1,400 billion, not counting energy losses.

Atlantic Richfield chairman Robert O. Anderson said his firm's refinery operating rate will drop to 85 per cent by year's end and, after that, into the low 80s, "if we are lucky."

Both Anderson and the National Petroleum Council report said unemployment resulting from fuel shortages could reach as high as 8 per cent.

At the same time warnings came from sources close to President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, as well as Harvard economist Otto Eckstein and Treasury Secretary George Shultz, against alarmist economic predictions based on still uncertain energy variables.

Shultz told the senate finance committee that "there have been lots of very dire and foreboding statements" on the implications of the shortages. "I think myself it's too soon" to be making such judgments.

He said the problem may "be handled by measures that will still allow the economy to move ahead powerfully."

Professors Lawrence Klein, George Green and F. Gerard Adams of the Wharton school said in their special forecast that although the economy has for some time tottered on the brink of mild recession, "It now appears that a substantial shock is coming from an unplanned source — the cutting off of Middle East oil imports."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield today called on Congress and President Nixon to stop "dilly-dallying" and start printing gas ration coupons.

"Unless something is done, mark my words, it'll mean recession in 1974," Mansfield said.

U.S. corporations reported sharply slower growth in profits in the third quarter of the year, led by declines in auto industry earnings, the U.S. commerce department reported today.

Personal income of Americans rose at a slower pace in October—a $9.2-billion increase compared with an increase of $11.2 billion in September.

In New York, some company officials were warning that fuel oil cutbacks could lead to bankruptcies of some companies. Inability to buy fuel would temporarily close some operations and would force marginal companies to shut down.

In Detroit the automobile industry was reducing prices on large cars with low gas mileage as the mood of the buying public changed and a definite trend toward smaller cars was under way.

In Los Angeles construction officials were concerned that the energy crisis would postpone or cancel many projects on the books, including some for refinery expansion. Some refineries were being forced to consider cutbacks, rather than production increases.

In Vancouver oil industry officials were confident that supplies would be available in British Columbia in the near term but the trend towards conservation would reduce volume of sales and lead to an uncertain corporate performance.

The uncertainty was reflected in the stock market with the Dow Jones industrial index under pressure and the Toronto market trending downward in sympathy.

The Dow Jones on Sept. 13 had been 880.57 and rose dramatically to a peak of 987.06 on Oct. 26, powered by signs that a predicted recession in 1974 either would not happen or would be of small duration and extent.

THE END OF THE CREAM

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Conservationist and architect R. Buckminster Fuller says the United States has "not a crisis of energy, but a crisis of ignorance."

Fuller said, "Much of the crisis is in confusion over the issues and the excitability of man, especially when he is ignorant. We do not have a shortage of energy; we have to understand how to convert energy to our use.

"We've been taking the cream from the top for many years," he said. "We've just put the pipes into the ground, and up has come the oil.

"We've been living on our savings account, and, of course, you can't do that," Fuller said. "If a family lives on its savings instead of its income . . . well, it can't do that for long."

Fuller said that other sources of energy must be considered and he mentioned the sun and wind.

"The prospects of harnessing wind power is immediate," he said, "but nobody seems interested in the windmill."

Fuller, who invented the geodesic dome, said that wind as a source of power "can be accumulated in good batteries." He said a project of the National Academy of The Sciences in Massachusetts has built "a battery of windmills to feed right into a power plant."

Fuller said solar energy is also capable of being conserved. He said he once lived in a room in Carbondale, Ill., with tinfoil lining the floor and ceiling with the result "heat bounced back and forth with remarkable efficiency."

Fuller, now a visiting professor at Southern Illinois University here, said alternative sources of energy are not being implemented because of the lobbies against them.

"The enormous amount of wealth released when petroleum was let loose in this country made the oil companies very powerful," he said. "The present government is really paying attention to big money, and the lobbies are so powerful.

"We have options that most people don't know we have. Humanity has just broken out of its eggshell and we have to make good within a minute. We'll see more changes taking place in the affairs of man in the next five years than in the entire history of man."

ATHENS FIGHT RAGES

Times News Services

ATHENS — Battles flared between thousands of student demonstrators and police throughout the Greek capital today after the students issued a call to topple the regime.

Battles between club-carrying rioters and baton-swinging police erupted in almost every square in the city.

In a matter or minutes the city turned into a battleground as squads of policemen raced through the streets hitting at anyone in front of them.

Announcers shouted over the radio station broadcasting from the student-occupied Polytechnic Institute that "tonight is our night."

The announcers issued instructions for groups of demonstrators to move through the city, and told them: "Don't be afraid of police, the junta collapses tonight."

The station dubbed itself the Radio of the Free Students.

"We appeal to anti-dictatorial and progressive forces to join us," the broadcast said. "Our struggle is anti-fascist and anti-imperialist. We want to free Greece from foreign capital."

On Thursday, more than 10,000 demonstrators choked off the main Pattission Boulevard in the capital for four hours to show support for about 3,000 students barricaded inside the Polytechnic.

Rookies Blast Off

Times News Services

CAPE CANAVERAL — Three rookie astronauts rocketed into orbit today to start man's longest space voyage, an 84-day "holiday cruise" aboard the earth-orbiting Skylab space station.

Gerald Carr, William Pogue, and Dr. Edward Gibson soared into space atop a Saturn 1-B rocket at 6:01 a.m. PST.

Ten minutes later, Mission Control reported their Apollo ferry ship was safely in orbit ready for the marathon journey.

The astronauts immediately began tracking down the 85-ton Skylab space station, a demanding task expected to take more than eight hours.

The first of five manoeuvres leading to the rendezvous came two hours later when the pilots fired the main engine of the Apollo for the first time for two seconds. This raised them into a higher orbit and narrowed the gap between Apollo and Skylab.

"That was one heck of a kick in the pants," Carr said.

The astronauts plan to sleep in Apollo tonight and enter the space station Saturday morning.

Doctors advised them to move cautiously in the first days in space to avoid the motion sickness problems encountered by the second Skylab.

All three astronauts, however, appeared to be in great shape in orbit and enjoying their first exposure to prolonged weightlessness.

"I'll tell you it's neat, it's really neat," Carr said. "You've got three happy rookies up here."

"It's a great world," Gibson said in an enthusiastic burst of communications with the ground.

"We can't hardly take our eyes away from the windows," Pogue said. "There's already nose smears on them."

The rocket, plagued by structural cracks and a fuel tank problem during the last weeks of checkout, worked flawlessly.

Launch director Walter Kapryan admitted he was "scared to death" when the space machine went through the period of maximum aerodynamic stresses but said all studies showed the rocket would work as well as it did.

During the marathon flight, which will span United States Thanksgiving Day, Christmas and New Year's, the spacemen are to conduct extensive studies of the sun, earth and man.

They will also take an unprecedented look at the comet Kohoutek, now streaking in from deep space.

Fire Kills 24 In Los Angeles

Times News Services

LOS ANGELES—A fire described as the worst in the city's history raced through a three-storey frame apartment building early today, killing residents in their beds while others jumped to their deaths trying to escape the flames.

The fire department said at least 24 persons were killed, including nine children, and more than 30 others injured.

"The place was loaded with kids, unfortunately, and we lost some of them," said fireman Steve Varney.

The blaze erupted in the middle of the H-shaped Stratford Apartments, a wooden building housing 120 to 150 residents, most of them Mexican-American.

"When we arrived there were people hanging from windows and jumping or falling. There were people standing beneath them with blankets, trying to catch them, or yelling at them in Spanish to stay in the building as long as they could—not to jump," Varney said.

"Everything was quick," said Vince Alvarez, who lived on the first floor with his wife Cristina and son Porgy, 15.

"I was asleep, and when I got up to get some water, I saw smoke and fire in the hallway. People were screaming and there was fire all over.

"I screamed to my wife 'let's go!' after I got my wife and son out, I was coming out the window and a lady that jumped almost hit me. She had a baby in her arms and she threw it to my son and he caught the baby."

Witnesses said when the first firemen arrived bodies lay in piles on the street. Bodies were stacked by firemen in a makeshift morgue across the street.

Most of those who survived lived near fire escapes, survivors said.

Israel Offering Deal to Syria

By United Press International

With the Israeli-Egyptian prisoner of war exchange in its second day Israel stepped up efforts today to get back PoWs held by Syria and prepared to submit to Egypt a three-part plan to pull both armies back from the Suez Canal. The plan would set up a UN-controlled buffer zone on each side of the canal.

It would be the second stage of a Middle East settlement leading to a peace conference in Geneva. But there were indications the Arab world was in disarray and that both a proposed Arab summit conference and the Geneva peace conference might be postponed before the early December date mentioned earlier.

In the PoW exchange, 28 Israeli soldiers flew to Tel Aviv from Cairo to a tearful welcome from Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and 294 Egyptians flew from Tel Aviv to Cairo aboard planes chartered by the International Red Cross. Nine of the Israelis had been held since the 1970 war.

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan also disclosed a "far reaching" offer aimed at letting Syrians return to captured territory in the Golan Heights in exchange for a prisoner release.

Dayan offered to let about 15,000 Syrian villagers return to abandoned homes in territory captured by Israel in exchange for a trade of prisoners seized in fighting on the Golan Heights.

At the United Nations, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said that despite a request to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to help achieve a PoW exchange with Syria, "unfortunately, I can't say there is reason for hope."

Syria was reported by officials in Tel Aviv to be holding 70 to 80 Israelis, while about 150 Syrians were reported in Israeli hands.

LETHAL WASTE SPILLS AGAIN

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — An estimated 7,000 gallons of lethal nuclear waste spilled into the ground from a pipe Thursday at the Hanford Atomic Reservation.

But a new spill-monitoring system kept the leakage small, according to officials of the federal plant, where more than 530,000 gallons of nuclear waste have leaked into the ground since 1958.

NEWS BRIEFS

Whelan Recalled

ROME (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has unexpectedly called Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan back to Ottawa to attend an unusual Saturday morning cabinet meeting.

Whelan said he was not sure why he had been called back but suspected it was for a general cabinet meeting that may precede a Commons adjournment.

U.S. Output Grows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board reports American factories increased production by 0.6 per cent last month, a sizeable figure considering that some industries are now running flat out with no room left to expand.

The commerce department reported significant improvements in the U.S. balance of payments with foreign trading partners in the July-September quarter.

$15M 'Missing'

NEW YORK (Reuter)—More than $15 million worth of negotiable U.S. government treasury securities are missing from the vault of the Chase Manhattan Bank here. More than $10 million of them belonging to customers.

Norse Crown Up

OSLO (Reuter) — New exchange rates for the Norwegian crown were announced today as a result of the government decision Thursday night to raise the value of the currency 5 per cent.

When foreign exchange markets reopened this morning the crown was back at the centre of the floating band of seven West European currencies after pressing its ceiling early this week.

IRA Ambush

BELFAST (UPI) — Irish Republican Army gunmen used the rural home of an elderly couple today to ambush an armor-plated police car, wounding one policeman in the leg.

FIRMS SCRAMBLE FOR TANKERS

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Oil companies are scrambling in search of tankers to ship excess crude from Vancouver to eastern Canada via the Panama Canal.

Already one company — Gulf Oil — has lined up one ship carrying 180,000 barrels and several others with refineries in Quebec are expected to follow.

"The situation is that there are at least three shippers in eastern Canada endeavoring to line up tankers and we anticipate they will have some success," said Kenneth Hall, vice-president, operations, of Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co. Ltd., owner of the pipeline that supplies Vancouver and Washington State.

Hall predicted the port of Vancouver will see four to five tankers in about 10 days.

In Ottawa, Environment Minister Jack Davis said Thursday his department doesn't know whether the proposal to ship oil through the Strait of Juan de Fuca is ecologically safe.

But in any case, he said, the volume required from the West Coast would be only "a drop in the bucket" compared to the quantity of Alaskan oil which would be carried by huge tankers into the Cherry Point refinery from Alaska.

Gas Price War Looms in B.C.

British Columbia is beginning to produce surplus gasoline and the oil industry is concerned about a possible price war in Vancouver and Victoria, B.C. Petroleum Association president Barry Sleigh said today.

He said refineries are going full out to meet a heavy demand for furnace oil.

"However, we can't refine furnace oil without producing gasoline at the same time. We are concerned about the situation because surpluses usually lead to price wars."

Sleigh said British Columbians can expect to have sufficent supplies of furnace oil for many years and surplus supplies of gasoline during winter months.

"Petroleum products in short supply are lubricating oils and a possible shortage of heavy bunker oil in the winter of 1974-1975."

Bunker oil is used as fuel in heavy industries.

Sleigh said industrial fuel oil from California was guaranteed by contract for this winter but industries should get contracts for next winter right away because American supplies are uncertain.

He said industries could also face a serious problem of maintenance of machinery if lubricating oils become scarce, as seems likely.

Motorists and homeowners, however, are assured of good supplies of oil.

"If the British Columbia refineries are unable to meet the demand, we can import product from offshore. If that is not available, we can import furnace oil from the prairies, where there is a surplus."

Furnace oil brought by train from Edmonton or Calgary would be more expensive than B.C. fuel because of
